Trapped U.S. Sub Crushed, 33 Lost; Wreckage Rises

Hope Is Abandoned For O-9, on Bottom 400 Feet Down, Twice Her Depth

By the Associated Press

Portsmouth, N. H., June 20.—Crushed by the tremendous pressure of a 402-foot depth, the sunken submarine O-9 began to disintegrate tonight and death of all of her 33 officers and men was unofficially acknowledged by the Navy.

The rescue ship Falcon radioed ashore just after midnight: "Have two grapnels fouled on object on bottom."

The naval officer who made the announcement said that it could not be said definitely whether the Falcon had contacted the sunken submarine.

Lieut. Comdr. Edmund Jewell told newsmen that "it's a good chance that the object is the submarine." Divers, he said, "probably would be sent over as soon as possible.

After a day of desperate search for the craft by the sizable Navy fleet, and with her exact location still uncertain, one high Navy officer viewed wreckage that shot to the surface and said he held no hope that the men on the ocean floor could have lived.

Officially, however, the Navy refused to give up.

Divers Stand Ready

Searchlights of the rescue fleet were trained through the night on the spot where oil slicked the surface for 1,000 square feet, where occasional air bubbles rose, with bits of cork from the inner hull of the submarine and pieces of deck grating sometimes spotting the surface.

Four of the Navy's most expert divers stood ready on the deck of the rescue ship Falcon. Helium was rushed from the Portsmouth Navy Yard, approximately 18 miles from the scene, in the event the divers went down. Officers reported the men could descend to 500 feet if necessary.

Rear Admiral John D. Wainright said dragging operations had been officially suspended for the night, which would definitely seal the fate of the crew if any were still alive, but the Falcon kept a magnetic drag over the side.

"Undoubtedly Punctured"

Lieut. Comdr. Jewell, returning from the scene, told newsmen that only if a line could be attached to the submarine, which lay not far from where the submarine Squalus sank in 1939, could a rescue bell be used. The bell saved 33 of the Squalus' 59 men in a series of sensational dives.

Without a line to the surface the

Marylander Joined Crew of Lost Sub But 2 Weeks Ago

Herbert T. Fost, 23, of Hancock, Md., one of the crew of 33 aboard the Navy submarine O-9, which sank yesterday off the coast of Portsmouth, N. H., had been aboard the ill-fated ship only two weeks, The Post learned yesterday from his brother, Edward Fost.

Fost has three brothers and four sisters. Mrs. Charles Powers, one of his sisters, has been a nurse at Emergency Hospital here since last January.

He enlisted in the Navy at Hagerstown, Md., three years ago, it was said, and after undergoing training at Norfolk entered the submarine service. He spent two years in Hawaii and planned to reenlist in the Navy this fall when his current enlistment expired, his brother said.

William T. Crute, of Halifax, Va., is also among the crew of the sunken submarine, it was learned.

Police Theory Upset

A middle-aged colored man who said he saw Jessie Elizabeth Strieff, 23, walk to a delicatessen shop in the 1800 block Florida Avenue last Sunday and walk away from it, upset police theorizing with his disclosure last night.

John Simms, 55, who lives just six doors from the store where the pretty War Department clerk purchased a stick of butter, was standing in the doorway of his home, 1824 Florida Avenue Northwest, just before the storm broke.

While one group of investigators sought to verify Simms' story, another group pursued two "hot leads," both of which indicated the Strieff girl entered an automobile.

The first was the story of a colored woman who lives above the delicatessen. She told police she saw a young woman resembling the murder victim, alight from a black sedan and run into the store. She hurried out and reentered the machine a few minutes later, she said.

Umbrella Found in Car

The other was the report from the owner of a rent-a-car garage that a white transparent umbrella similar to that Miss Strieff carried, was found in one of his cars after it was rented on Sunday.

Simms was watching for the return of his three daughters, Dorothy, Grace and Agnes, he said yesterday, hoping they'd get back from a visit to their aunt before the cloudburst.

A young woman dressed in a blue transparent raincoat and hood, carrying a white umbrella, walked past his home on the north side of the street, he declared.

"I first noticed her turn the corner from Nineteenth Street," Simms asserted. "She walked toward Eighteenth Street." He was certain she was wearing a raincoat and was carrying a white umbrella unopened.

Saw Her Leave Store

The witness said he watched the young woman pass his home and saw her cross the street and enter Duncan's delicatessen at 1810 Florida Avenue.

Simms said he remained in the doorway watching for his children whom he expected to come from Eighteenth Street, and noticed the

Sen. Harrison Is Reported 'Improved'

Tide Turns After Condition Is First Said to Be 'Grave'

The condition of Senator Pat Harrison (Democrat), of Mississippi, who underwent an intestinal operation Monday, was reported last night to be "improved" by his close friend and attending physician, Dr. Sterling Ruffin. He is at Emergency Hospital.

Earlier in the day, however, his condition had been described by his office as "very grave." The Senator's son, Pat Harrison, Jr., of Gulfport, Miss., arrived in town yesterday. However, last night Dr. Ruffin said the Senator had taken a turn for the better and "had held his own during the afternoon."

"His temperature is somewhat higher and his circulation is not so good as on Thursday," he said, and he is taking "insufficient nourishment."

Harrison is president pro tempore of the Senate and chairman of its Finance Committee.

The operation was performed only a few days after the Senator's return from Hot Springs where he was under treatment since the middle of March for general "fatigue." His health has been unsatisfactory since he suffered a severe attack of influenza in 1939, it was said.

Discharged WPA Employes To Get 5-Cent Milk Privilege

By Gerald G. Gross.
Post Staff Writer

The 4,000 District WPA workers scheduled to be lopped off the rolls July 1 have one dubious consolation:

In losing their jobs, they will automatically receive the privilege of buying milk at 5 cents a quart—if, being unemployed, they have the funds.

WPA officials yesterday revealed that this group will revert to the status of being certified for work relief and awaiting assignment. Thus they would be eligible to apply for surplus milk cards, enabling them to buy first grade milk at little more than one-third the regular store price.

Other developments yesterday in the milk situation included:

Representative William T. Schulte (Democrat), of Indiana, made public the text of his letter to Leon Henderson, Federal price administrator, urging him to "see to it that the milk monopoly here is not permitted to place an additional burden on the people of Washington."

Mrs. Sarah Newman, president, said the Consumers Milk Committee is considering sponsorship of a campaign for increased consumption of dried and evaporated milk to "persuade" fluid milk producers into line.

The Surplus Marketing Administration, Department of Agriculture, announced there would be no postponement of the milk marketing order hearing, as requested by the consumers' committee, which wanted more time to prepare its attack on the producers' demand of a cent-a-quart increase. The hearing will open at 9:30 a. m. Monday in the

Finns Order Full Mobilization; Roosevelt Calls Nazis 'Pirates'; Allies Pierce Damascus Lines

R.A.F. Bombs City For First Time; French Put Up More Resistance

By the Associated Press

Jerusalem, June 20.—Allied forces attacking the historic Syrian capital of Damascus today pushed into the main lines of the city's defenses under a severe artillery fire, a British military spokesman announced tonight.

French resistance stiffened today, he said, as the attackers reached the "last lap" in operations for capture of the Capital. Heavy French artillery replied to the British batteries as the Allies closed in.

British and Indian troops which pushed forward to Mezze airdrome about 3½ miles west of Damascus were hotly engaged there, and the spokesman described their positions as uncertain.

To the south numerically superior Vichy forces were said to have counterattacked Free French troops in the neighborhood of Jebel el Kelb, but the Allies still held the railroad and highway leading back to Transjordan.

British Also Shelling Capital; Fires Started

Ankara, Turkey, June 20.—The Royal Air Force in Syria bombed Damascus for the first time today, the Beirut radio reported tonight as British military sources in Ankara warned that Allied forces in Syria were preparing a total war to blast French artillery from the city and take Damascus by storm.

The heavy raid, according to Beirut, caused wide damage and casualties, particularly in Arab quarters of the city.

[Also, the Associated Press reported, French officials in Beirut announced the British started shelling the "Holy City" as the advance pressed to within a few miles of Damascus early this morning.

[The Mahajamrene sector was reported the worst hit by the shelling which began Friday night. The French said fires were started throughout that quarter of the city.

[Syrian authorities at once sent a protest to Bagdad, asking the Iraqis to point out to the British that the bombardment would have an adverse effect upon Arab opinion.

Reparations Demanded

By George Bookman
Post Staff Writer

President Roosevelt charged yesterday that the Nazi sinking of the American freighter Robin Moor is the first step in a German master plan to "seize control of the high seas" and he served plain warning that the United States will forcefully resist.

Making a first-rank issue of the Robin Moor case, Mr. Roosevelt in a special message to Congress, branded the sinking an act of "piracy" for which Germany must make "full reparation."

Construing the torpedo and shell-fire sinking of this 5,000-ton vessel as part of a German grab for seapower, the President defiantly retorted:

"Were we to yield on this we would inevitably submit to world domination at the hands of the present leaders of the German Reich.

"We are not yielding and we do not propose to yield."

The Robin Moor, bound out of New York for South African ports, was sunk May 21 by a German U-boat midway between Africa and South America in the South Atlantic. Her 48 passengers and crew were all saved, but only by sheer luck—"accidentally," the President said.

From every point of view, Mr. Roosevelt's treatment of this first loss of an American vessel in the present war was more serious, more vehement and more ominous than Woodrow Wilson's handling of the first German sinking of a U. S. ship in the World War, the William P. Frye.

More Severe Than Wilson's

Against a background of German-American relations already strained by expulsion of each other's consuls, the President gave added importance to his views on the Robin Moor case by laying them before the Congress.

In addition, Mr. Roosevelt seized

Text of Message on Robin Moor

The text of President Roosevelt's message to Congress on the sinking of the Robin Moor follows:

To the Congress of the United States of America:

I am under the necessity of bringing to the attention of the Congress the ruthless sinking by a German submarine on May 21 of an American ship, the Robin Moor, in the South Atlantic Ocean (23 degrees and 40 minutes west, 8 degrees and 10 minutes north) while the vessel was on the high seas en route to South Africa.

According to the formal depositions of survivors, the vessel was sunk within 30 minutes from the time of the first warning given by the commander of the submarine to an officer of the Robin Moor.

The submarine did not display its flag, and the commander did not announce its nationality.

The Robin Moor was sunk without provision for the safety of the passengers and crew.

It was sunk despite the fact that its American nationality was admittedly known to the commander of the submarine and that its nationality was likewise clearly indicated by the flag and other markings.

Total Disregard . . . of International Law

The sinking of this American ship by a German submarine flagrantly violated the right of United States vessels freely to navigate the seas subject only to a belligerent right, accepted under international law. This belligerent right, as is known to the German government, does not include the right deliberately to sink a merchant vessel, leaving the passengers and crew to the mercies of the elements. On the contrary the belligerent is required to place the passengers and crew in places of safety.

The passengers and crew of the Robin Moor were left afloat in small lifeboats from approximately two to three weeks when they were accidentally discovered and rescued by friendly vessels. This chance rescue does not lessen the brutality of casting the boats adrift in mid-ocean.

The total disregard shown for the most elementary principles of international law and of humanity brands the sinking of the Robin Moor as the act of an international outlaw.

The Government of the United States holds Germany responsible for the outrageous and indefensible sinking of the Robin Moor. Full

Fear Stalin May Yield

R. A. F. Pours Bombs on Reich To Forestall Invasion Attempt

By the Associated Press

London, June 20.—In a powerful offensive against German industrial and troop centers, the R. A. F. is trying to cripple at its prospective bases a Nazi attempt at invasion of Britain which is expected to come at once if Hitler takes Stalin into camp without fighting.

This, it was disclosed today, is the urgent purpose behind the unprecedented British bombing campaign which for ten successive nights has spread a red pattern of violence from deep in the German Ruhr to the occupied French ports whence an attempt to leap the channel would be sprung.

[The United Press reported that 2,000 British bombers, operating in nightly fleets of 200 to 300 planes, have blasted and burned Germany's vital industries with 6,000,000 pounds of high explosive bombs and tens of thousands of incendiaries during the last ten nights.]

While thousands of tons of British bombs are falling through the darkness upon the continent, however, British diplomacy is considering its course against the alternative in the German-Russian crisis: The possibility that the Russians might not give in to the current Nazi demands and thus might have to meet the shock of Nazi divisions marching from Poland and Rumania.

Authoritative sources declined today even to speculate on what British policy would be in such an event, remarking: "It is strictly a matter for the cabinet; Hitler, too, probably would like to know what we would do."

But some private quarters expressed the opinion that if the Soviet fought the Germans, the Russians "would be our allies and it is reasonable that we would give them whatever aid possible."

The London Standard, published by Lord Beaverbrook, the British minister of state, declared plainly for British aid to the Russians in such circumstances, saying:

"If Germany goes to war with

Ford Grants C.I.O. Union Shop; Mediators Avert Three Strikes

Agreements Reached In Curtiss Aircraft, Bohn and Bliss Cases

The National Defense Mediation Board yesterday averted three strikes in defense industries when settlements were obtained in the Curtiss-Wright Aircraft and Bohn Aluminum and Brass Co., disputes and a voluntary arbitration agreement was reached in the E. W. Bliss Co., controversy.

A board panel, after day and night negotiations which began on Wednesday, brought about signing of a contract between the Curtiss-Wright Aircraft Co.'s propeller division, makers of steel propeller blades for aircraft, and the Steel Workers Organizing Committee, local 1470, C. I. O. The contract provides a wage increase of 10 cents an hour for all employes except learners, and "certain wage adjustments consistent with the prevailing wages in the Pittsburgh area." Recognition and sole bargaining rights are granted the union, without a closed shop.

The company has considerable defense contracts and employs 960 workers at its Neville Island, Pa., plant.

The union had set a strike for June 12, but postponed the action at the board's request to permit mediation.

Members of the panel which conducted the negotiations are Judge Walter P. Stacy, for the public; Eugene Meyer, for employers, and Thomas Kennedy, for labor.

Similar success was attained by the board panel mediating the controversy at the five plants of the Bohn Aluminum and Brass Co.,

Motor Firm Accepts Checkoff of Dues, Pledges Higher Pay

The Ford Motor Co. yesterday broke its years-long resolution never to sign a union labor contract, and granted the C. I. O.'s United Auto Workers the most comprehensive and inclusive agreement that organization yet has obtained in automobile field.

As was forecast in The Post yesterday, the company made concessions even beyond those agreed to by other automobile manufacturers who had preceded Henry Ford in accepting unionization of their plants. In addition to agreeing to pay the highest wages in the auto, steel, glass and other industries in which Ford workers are employed, the company granted the union shop and the check-off system by which it will deduct union dues from members' pay and turn the money over to the union.

Going Whole Way

Edsel Ford, president of the company, said in a statement that "we have decided to go the whole way," since it was recognized that "no half measures will be effective."

He said he hoped the decision "attains the ends sought and results in peaceable and uninterrupted production, that the company's operation toward national defense shall not be hampered in any way."

Immediate result toward that end was the dropping of all cases against the Ford company pending before the National Labor Relations Board. All charges of violation of the Wagner Labor Relations Act will be

Miss Cochran Hopes to Pilot More Bombers to England

By William W. White
Associated Press Staff Writer

London, June 20.—Katherine Cochran delivered an American-built Hudson bomber to Great Britain today as the first woman transatlantic bomber pilot and at once upset the routine of silence clamped down by somber and careful British officials upon the ocean plane-ferrying flights.

The 32-year-old American aviatrix, holder of many flying records, wife of an American financial titan and a business woman herself, flew the bomber all the way without relief.

Then she tried her best to cooperate with officials of the ministry of aircraft production who strove to keep her transatlantic flight quiet.

But these officials were forced to give way before the demands of the many who wanted the story of this decidedly modern version of woman's part in war.

With unmistakable evidence that she knows a thing or two about other women at war, she immediately displayed three dozen pairs of silk stockings and some oranges she had brought to give away to friends in this rationed nation.

"I was at the controls all the way and had a wonderful trip completely without incident," said Miss Cochran in the few brief words the Government officials would permit her to say. "My only companion was Capt. Carlisle—Capt. Grate Carlisle—who did the navigating.

"The ship was wonderful to handle. I think Hudsons are grand planes. This was my first trip across the Atlantic. We had plenty of sandwiches, boiled eggs and tomato juice."

Miss Cochran said she "probably" would fly back to the United States

Helsinki, June 20.—Finland ordered general mobilization tonight.

Proclamations posted on street corners ordered reservists up to the age of 44 to report at once for service in the army.

The formal mobilization decree affects comparatively few men, since an intensive program of calling them to the colors already had been carried out in recent days by individual notification.

Even before the proclamation was posted, Finnish youths who had been called up for military service were departing for their posts and an appeal was issued for mothers to get their children out of Helsinki without delay.

[Heavy Russian troop concentrations, the Associated Press said, were reported in the Leningrad area by Martin Agronsky, N. B. C. correspondent in Ankara, who said in a broadcast that Russian to a preview of the Sunday Post

CAN YOU SOLVE A MURDER MYSTERY?

"It takes a murder to make a really satisfactory mystery story," a famous writer of mysteries once remarked. "An embezzlement or robbery just doesn't grip the imagination enough to provide the needed interest and suspense."

The same thing is true in real life—it's the murder case that not only makes the front page, but holds the headlines day after day, that focuses the whole city's attention on the problems the police face in solving the mystery.

Those problems, comments Edward T. Folliard, in a special article in The Sunday Post, are entirely different from the ones a mystery story writer poses for his readers.

Take the Gelett Burgess mystery story, "Ladies in Boxes," the complete Sunday novel in tomorrow's Post, and compare it with the all-too-real mystery of the murder of Jessie Strieff.

Here's the problem set by Novelist Burgess:

Three very pretty young women dine at the home of an Argentine millionaire. After dinner they are shown some of his fabulously valuable possessions. A priceless ring disappears. The millionaire makes the conventional offer—"I'll turn out the lights. You can put it back unseen and nothing more will happen. But put it back—because I know who took it!" The lights go off. The lights go on. The ring is not put back. The next day all three girls are dead—one stabbed, the other two poisoned!

Quite a start for a successful mystery novel, isn't it? You'll enjoy reading "Ladies in Boxes" in The Sunday Post.

But don't miss reading Folliard's article, either. In it he points out the fundamental difference between such a problem as outlined above and that faced by the detectives—police and amateur—trying to solve the riddle of the Jessie Strieff case.

And if you're wondering what's the matter with the Washington police, you may be able to answer that, too, after reading what Folliard has to say.

WHAT'S OUR BIGGEST DEFENSE NEED?

Most spectacular expansion of our armed forces during the past 12 months has been the increase in size of the Army—from 260,000 to 1,400,000 officers and men. Some people approve. Others ask, "Why do we need such a big Army—all we want is a big Navy and a big air force!" In tomorrow's Post you'll find how the public divides on the subject of which branch of the service most needs strengthening. A Gallup poll.

were believed to be moving toward the Finnish frontier.]

Railroad service was reduced drastically and large areas of the country, including the region around Helsinki, were forbidden to foreigners.

News regarding the status of Finland in the international situation was under rigid control.

The official news agency announced that the country's labor camps had been closed, but gave no explanation. Informed sources expressed belief that the tension would be dispelled soon in one way or another.

A correspondent who traveled across southern Finland said the only evidence he saw of German troops was a picture in a provincial newspaper of a group of German soldiers "somewhere in Finland."

Competent spokesmen said general mobilization was necessitated by the fact that at this time of the year it was impossible to move troops under cover of darkness in case of actual emergency. The "light nights" last from the beginning of June to mid-July in the south and until August in the north.

Thus any bombing raids could be waged 24 hours a day on troop trains if a mass movement to the front were made imperative by the actual outbreak of hostilities.

Antiaircraft guns suddenly appeared on the tops of high buildings, and many automobiles and trucks were commandeered.

Many optimists still believed the situation could be settled peacefully and advantageously for Finland.

Persons who recently left Estonia and crossed the Gulf of Finland said Russian authorities had evacuated the entire population from several Baltic coastal districts.

They said a "belt of devastation" 60 miles wide had been created along the German-Lithuanian frontier, in which bridges and railways were destroyed, houses burned or blown up and entire villages obliterated.

The same sources said Soviet authorities recently had arrested a "great many undesirables" in the Baltic countries.

Nazi Chief at Bucharest

London, June 20 (AP).—German Field Marshal Siegmund List, who commanded the Balkan campaign, was said in a report quoted by Reuters (British news agency) today to have established his headquarters at Snagov, 15 miles from Bucharest.

The report, attributed to London diplomatic circles, said List, commanding a group of German armies in Rumania, had a Rumanian army staff attached to his headquarters.

It added that the Moldavian provincial capital of Jassy and other Rumanian towns on the Soviet frontier are being evacuated.

Moscow Outwardly Calm

Moscow, June 20 (AP).—Intensive training of the Red army and its reserves was in full swing throughout Russia today, but the capital preserved an atmosphere of outward calm and nowhere was there any public indication of a crisis in relations with Germany.

The government newspaper Izvestia declared that "neither through the forests, nor the steppes, mountains nor seas will the enemy ever step across the forbidden boundary."

Izvestia's declaration was contained in a description of the special border guards of the secret state police which it said "keep watch all year round, day and night, afoot, on horses or camels, or drawn by reindeer."

fourth century and believed to have contained the head of St. John the Baptist.]

British quarters here stated Gen. Dentz, French high commissioner for Syria, forfeited Damascus' only right to immunity from bombardment when he ignored the warnings of Gen. Sir Henry Maitland Wilson, Allied commander in chief, and refused to declare Damascus an open city.

All information available here indicated the Allied campaign, now developing rapidly, will become deadlier daily as the Allies press every advantage to end the struggle. These sources emphasized that some new German initiative is to be seen in the Middle East in view of the grave Russo-German situation.

Royal Air Force bombers also raided Beirut today, according to French radio reports tonight which, like the reports of the Damascus raids, assert that some British bombs fell in the Arab quarters, destroying lives and property.

Late French reports this evening said that British advances about Damascus have been repulsed by vigorous Vichy counterattacks and that 400 prisoners were taken near Damascus.

British military sources claim that French artillery shelled British forces from within the environs of Beirut, adding that British naval guns, and artillery and the air force have not yet replied, seeking to avoid damage to property in that city. British bombers raided Beirut harbor, however, according to the British, lodging direct hits upon navigation in the port.

Beirut reports said French bombers attacked British columns near Jezzire and Merdjayun, south of Damascus. British sources here said that a full-scale attack is beginning to form against the fortress of Merdpayun, which was retaken by the French in a counterattack earlier this week.

Naval activity continued today, according to both French and British reports, with British warships shelling the French in the coastal region to the south.

Russia we should recognize our interest in sustaining Russia's resistance—we should attempt to make our friends, the Americans, understand, too."

For, said the Standard, should Hitler be able to smash the Soviet "he would be free to hurl all his weapons against us."

Britain's aerial effort, which was carried on again last night with attacks on the industries of Cologne and Duesseldorf in western Germany, is operating in two sections of a master plan.

Oil Supply First Target

The first, directed against the Ruhr and industrial Germany generally, is to cut sharply the output of war supplies and particularly of synthetic oil, and to put into chaos the westward transport system from these reservoirs of materials which would be needed for a grand offensive against Britain.

The second, involving continuing bombing assaults on the occupied Channel coast, is to push back the forward zone of probable combat by smashing advanced Nazi bases—or making them too perilous for effective use—and in general to break up the offensive facilities necessary for invasion.

Like the rest of the world, British informants did not profess to know what would be the outcome of the strain between Stalin and Hitler. But, simply as a straw in the wind, they pointed out that in recent days German aerial activity against Britain had been extraordinarily light and they declared it beyond question that the Nazis had diverted both planes and troops to the Russian frontier.

The President's Day

By International News Service

LATE & EARLY: The President went to work early yesterday after staying up late the night before mulling over an international problem; summoned his aides to his bedroom along with breakfast for orders and consultation.

CONFUSION: Confusion set in at 10:30 when Steve Early lifted the phone in the President's bedroom, told the Executive Offices to cancel the scheduled press conference, gave no explanation for the scratching. The correspondents relayed the news to their offices but had a hunch something was about to break.

The break came at 11:30 with the arrival of Acting Secretary of State Sumner Welles, who clicked hastily through the marble-floored lobby, up the stairs to the Presidential sanctum. Spokesman Early announced the press conference cancellation was due to a message to Congress which the President had been working on all morning, was now whipping into final form. Secretary Hull, ill at home, was called, heard the final draft of the message, talked to the President and Welles.

FOREIGN CORRESPONDENTS: Official correspondents from Germany, Japan, other foreign countries, arrived at the executive offices, hung around watchfully—waiting for the mysterious message. At 1:20 the message was released amid one of the most violent stampedes the White House press room has seen in some time. Up to Capitol Hill the President sent two copies of his stand on the sinking of the Robin Moor.

NO TIME OUT—Mr. Roosevelt was up to the hubs in vitally important work, tied up with diplomacy and international action, when lunch was sent in to him, paid little attention to his fruit salad, toasted rolls and iced tea. Congressional leaders called, told him the massage had been read at 1:50 p. m.

GARDEN PARTY: A detachment of Illinois Masons filled the south grounds in the afternoon, had tea, were taken through the first floor of the White House. The President was upstairs and invisible. At the end of a long, hectic day the President put in a bid with Dr. McIntire for a swim in the White House pool, had supper and returned to the oval study to work all evening, review dozens of reports.

reparation for the losses and damages suffered by American nationals will be expected from the German government.

Our Government believes that freedom from cruelty and inhuman treatment is a natural right. It is not grace to be given or withheld at the will of those temporarily in a position to exert force over defenseless people.

Policy of Frightfulness and Intimidation

Were this incident capable of being regarded apart from a more general background, its implications might be less serious—but it must be interpreted in the light of a declared and actively pursued policy of frightfulness and intimidation which has been used by the German Reich as an instrument of international policy.

The present leaders of the German Reich have not hesitated to engage in acts of cruelty and many other forms of terror against the innocent and the helpless in other countries, apparently in the belief that methods of terrorism will lead to a state of affairs permitting the German Reich to exact acquiescence from the nations victimized.

This Government can only assume that the government of the German Reich hopes through the commission of such infamous acts of cruelty to helpless and innocent men, women and children to intimidate the United States and other nations into a course of nonresistance to German plans for universal conquest—a conquest based upon lawlessness and terror on land and piracy on the sea.

Such methods are fully in keeping with the methods of terrorism hitherto employed by the present leaders of the German Reich in the policy which they have pursued towards many other nations subsequently victimized.

Step in a Campaign Against United States?

The government of the German Reich may, however, be assured that the United States will neither be intimidated nor will it acquiesce in the plans for world domination which the present leaders of Germany may have.

We are warranted in considering whether the case of the Robin Moor is not a step in a campaign against the United States analogous to campaigns against other nations. We cannot place reliance on official declarations to the contrary.

Like statements, declarations, and even solemn pledges have been forthcoming in respect of many nations, commencing with the statement that the government of the German Reich considered its territorial aspirations satisfied when it seized Austria by force. Evidence that the government of the German Reich continues to plan further conquest and domination is convincing, and, indeed, scarcely disputed.

Viewed in the light of the circumstances, the sinking of the Robin Moor becomes a disclosure of policy as well as an example of method. Heretofore, lawless acts of violence have been preludes to schemes of land conquest. This one appears to be a first step in assertion of the supreme purpose of the German Reich to seize control of the high seas, the conquest of Great Britain being an indispensable part of that seizure.

Interruption of Our Trade

Its general purpose would appear to be to drive American commerce from the ocean wherever such commerce was considered a disadvantage to German designs; and its specific purpose would appear to be interruption of our trade with all friendly countries.

We must take it that notice has now been served upon us that no American ship or cargo on any of the seven seas can consider itself immune from acts of piracy. Notice is served on us, in effect, that the German Reich proposes so to intimidate the United States that we would be dismaded from carrying out our chosen policy of helping Britain to survive.

In brief, we must take the sinking of the Robin Moor as a warning to the United States not to resist the Nazi movement of world conquest. It is a warning that the United States may use the high seas of the world only with Nazi consent.

Were we to yield on this we would inevitably submit to world domination at the hands of the present leaders of the German Reich.

We are not yielding and we do not propose to yield.

The Gallup Poll

81% of U. S. Workers Prefer Private To Government Operation of Their Jobs

By Dr. George Gallup

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

Princeton, N. J., June 20.—One of the questions raised by some commentators in the aftermath of the North American Aviation Co., strike at Inglewood, Calif.—in which the Government sent in troops to take over the plant—is whether labor groups will regard this as an invitation to launch more strikes with the sole purpose of forcing the Government to take over more industrial plants.

Washington observers report the question has aroused attention in the Capital, and spokesmen for United States business discussed it in talks before the National Association of Manufacturers this week.

In view of such speculations, it is worth asking: How many Americans actually employed in private business and industry would welcome the substitution of Government operation for present business management?

How many American workers, in other words, would like to see the Government step in?

The answers—from a Nation-wide survey by the American Institute of Public Opinion—will bring comfort to those who may have thought that any large number of Americans in the employed classes have come to regard blanket Government operation or ownership as a desirable end.

"Do you think you would be better off if the concern you work for were taken over and operated by the Federal Government," the Institute asked a cross-section of the more than 30,000,000 workers in United States business and industry, "or would you prefer to leave it under the present business management?"

Only one employe in 14 on the average (7 per cent) said he would favor Government operation of the company he worked for.

The remainder were overwhelmingly in favor of retaining business management and control.

The actual vote:

Prefer Government Operation	7%
Prefer Present Business Management	81
No Choice or No Opinion	12

This does not mean that under certain circumstances—in the North American strike itself, for instance—the public might not favor temporary Government operation in the interests of national defense production. But the survey shows remarkably little sentiment for Government operation as a permanent policy.

Most employes gave short, terse answers. Many of them were surprised at the suggestion.

Some typical replies were:

"It's OK the way it is, mister."

"That wouldn't be democratic" (or "that would be communism" or "that would be fascism").

"The Government doesn't know how to run all these businesses."

"I don't believe in the Government interfering in private business, except maybe to prevent some business men from pulling a fast one now and then."

President Charges 'Piracy' to Nazis

immediately on this first present-day German attack on United States shipping as a direct threat to freedom of the seas, as part of a deliberate plot to extend the Swastika from Europe to the oceans of the world.

The President's tone was far more severe than the tenor of the American note to Germany February 10, 1915, holding the Imperial Government to "strict accountability" for any attacks on American shipping. Relations between the two countries at that time were very cordial, the exact opposite of the status now.

Mr. Roosevelt branded the sinking of the Robin Moor "the act of an international outlaw."

Reparations Demanded

Holding Germany responsible for what he termed "the outrageous and indefensible" sinking, the Chief Executive said that the Nazis would be expected to make "full reparation for the losses and damages suffered by American nationals."

He recited the now-familiar official version of the incident: How the passengers and crew were given only 30 minutes to abandon ship, how the submarine did not divulge its nationality, how the Germans made no provision for the safety of passengers and crew, leaving them afloat on the broad Atlantic in small boats until their accidental rescue days later by ships of a friendly nation.

Charges Listed

Then viewing this incident against the general background of German policy, the President made these charges:

1. That by sinking the Robin Moor, the German government was trying to "intimidate the United States" into nonresistance to German plans for world conquest, just as Germany terrorized and later victimized the smaller nations of Europe.

2. That Germany, scheming to seize control of the seas, hoped by incidents such as the Robin Moor sinking to drive American commerce from the oceans and interrupt our trade with friendly countries.

3. That the Robin Moor incident is part and parcel of a German warning to the United States "not to resist the Nazi movement of world conquest," a warning that the United States must ask Germany's permission to use the high seas of the world.

As had been forecast, the President charged the Nazis with violating the rules of naval warfare and with infringing the reasserted American doctrine of freedom of the seas.

The message was delivered to Congress while State Department officials were preparing a formal protest to Germany of the Robin Moor sinking. It was not known when the protest would be dispatched, but it was expected to follow closely the pattern of the President's message.

The Presidential message contained no hint of how Mr. Roosevelt proposes to enforce freedom of the seas, but official quarters believed that Mr. Roosevelt was holding in reserve several different measures for the protection of shipping.

The President has already said that plans for the arming of merchant vessels have been ready in a Navy safe since 1918. When they will be taken out was a matter of speculation, but it was recalled that Woodrow Wilson did not ask Congress for authority to arm merchant vessels until February 26, 1917, after many American vessels had been lost at German hands.

Message Gets Wide Approval In Congress

By Robert C. Albright

Congress yesterday received with grim but overwhelming approval the President's terse denunciation of the sinking of the Robin Moor.

But isolationists again criticized the President's policy, with non-interventionist spokesmen charging an effort "to arouse the war spirit."

From Senator Pepper (Democrat), of Florida, often a harbinger of foreign policy moves, came a call for arming of merchant ships and intensifying of naval patrols. He said Germany must be warned to keep her warships out of Western Hemisphere waters or American patrols will shoot.

Senator Byrnes, of South Carolina, acting Senate Majority Leader, said the American people will heartily subscribe to the message and House Majority Leader McCormack called it notice "to the pagan forces of the world that we will not permit suppression of our right to freedom of the seas."

In a letter to the President, Representative Celler (Democrat), of New York, asked that Hans Thomsen, German charge d'affaires, "be given his walking papers and the (German) embassy should be closed" to complete the job against Nazi espionage.

From the other extreme, Senator Wheeler (Democrat), of Montana, spearhead of the noninterventionists, condemned the message as "just another bitter and warlike diatribe against Germany." He said the President was trying to arouse the people.

Wheeler said German treatment of survivors was "cruel" and no one could defend it. But he charged the Robin Moor cargo was 70 per cent contraband and accused the President of withholding such information.

Chandler Takes Opposite View

Senator Chandler (Democrat), of Kentucky, took the opposite view that the President instead of arousing the public was trying to prevent a recurrence of incidents that brought a war declaration in 1917.

Speculation on the purpose of the purely informative message was general. Some thought the President wished to advise Congress of the facts before Germany is formally warned by note in equally plain-spoken language. Others thought it a foreword to protective measures against another such incident. All agreed it was for the purpose of laying the Robin Moor case before the American people as well as Congress.

After the message was read, Pepper delivered his shortest speech on record. "This announcement," he said, "cruelly demonstrates what has been eating into the consciousness of many of us for so long—Adolf Hitler must be destroyed or eventually he will destroy us."

Later he told reporters that "if our ships of peace are not permitted to enter the war zone, then German ships of war should not be permitted to enter our peace zone." He said Germany should be warned out of Western Hemisphere waters, and if they disregard the warnings, patrols should sink any that enter.

Bloom Concurs

Chairman George of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee withheld comment, but Chairman Bloom of the House Foreign Affairs Committee said, "it's right to the point in every way and I wholeheartedly concur."

Other comment:

Representative Ramspeck (Democrat), of Georgia—It was a message for emphasis . . . We are bound to uphold these rights by whatever means may be necessary.

Representative Knutson (Republican), of Minnesota—It was a curtain-raiser for a declaration of war.

Sound Message

Chairman May of the House Military Committee—I will always stand for sending our ships of commerce wherever they desire to go and back them with the full power of this Nation.

Representative Eaton (Republican), of New Jersey—It is a sound American message, though of course it is one more step into a great tragedy. I am not willing to see our ships driven from the seas by anyone.

Chairman Reynolds of the Senate Military Committee—There is a question involved of whether the Robin Moor was carrying contraband steel rails that will have some bearing on the issue.

Representative Faddis (Democrat), of Pennsylvania—His expressions will meet with the approval of the American people.

"Time to Speak Out"

Representative Thomason (Democrat), of Texas—Certainly it is time to speak out against outlawry of that kind.

Representative Mills (Democrat), of Arkansas—His action in taking a definite stand is commendable.

Senator Van Nuys (Democrat), of Indiana — He said nothing very alarming or startling in the message.

Representative Bender (Rpublican), of Ohio—It should have been directed to the German Reich rather than to Congress.

Senator Truman (Democrat), of Missouri—I agree with the President that it was an act of piracy.

Berlin Silent On Roosevelt Piracy Charge

By the Associated Press

Berlin, June 20.—A German spokesman, though bitter, declined to comment tonight on President Roosevelt's message to Congress on the Robin Moor case. He said, however, that the message was carefully noted.

The German foreign office mouthpiece, Deutsche Diplomatisch Politische Korrespondenz, in commenting on the closing of American consulates in Germany, tonight accused the United States Government of "bad manners."

The paper observed that "with the liquidation of the American consulates in Germany and Italy and territories occupied by them Americans are withdrawn from the greatest part of the European continent."

"Perhaps," the commentary added, "the Americans regard this as a diplomatic success. The British intelligence service will find the withdrawal less ingenious. And also, those Americans who recall out of the history books that Europe isn't synonymous with England perhaps will reflect whether the bad manners of the American Government will pay in the long run."

D. P. K. repeated the earlier assertion of authoritative persons that shutting United States consulates was "long overdue." It added that "the sympathies of the United States for English affairs went further than its neutral position allowed."

Accuse Us of Propaganda

The activities of the American consulates in gathering information reached "to such an extent that a clearing house in Washington became necessary" to transmit incoming telegraphic reports to the British embassy, it was asserted.

"Even neutral observers," the commentary went on, "noticed that certain events in Germany—for example damage caused by British air attacks on individual houses or city districts—could be commented upon shortly afterward by the British radio.

"Every rumor, even the most stupid, was seized upon by American consular agents without knowing the facts and guided into the channels of anti-German propaganda."

The question of whether closing each other's consulates would lead to a break in diplomatic relations between Germany and the United States was a matter of lively speculation in both German and American quarters tonight.

British Paper Sees Break

London, June 20 (AP).—Commenting upon President Roosevelt's Robin Moor speech, the newspaper Daily Express said today "clearly this sort of undeclared war cannot go on without reaching a breach."

Lord Beaverbrook's newspaper continued: "Although Roosevelt does not reveal his plans it is easy to surmise what he will do. He will not see American ships like the Robin Moor sunk with impunity. . . . He will protect his ships. . . ."

Other papers gave smash play to the message and editorial comment expressed hearty approval.

"Clearly the new world balance is shaping rapidly under the hands of the United States," the Daily Telegraph said. "As this fateful struggle advances to its climax it is for the words of the President of the United States that the world waits most anxiously. It is in American hands and not those of the dictators that the ultimate issue lies."

Peace Again Is Advocated By Lindbergh

By the Associated Press

Hollywood, June 20.—Charles A. Lindbergh said tonight the alternative to a negotiated peace in Europe "is either a Hitler victory or a prostrate Europe, and possibly a prostrate America as well."

"I tell you that the only way our American life and ideals can be preserved is by staying out of this war," he asserted in an address for delivery at a mass meeting in the Hollywood Bowl under auspices of the America First Committee. "I tell you that the only way European civilization can be saved is by ending it quickly."

He summarized "the true facts as they appear before us in plain American wording" as:

"1. We are still unprepared for war, and it would take us years to prepare adequately for the type of war we now consider entering. It would mean turning this country into a military nation that exceeds Germany in regimentation. Life as we know it today would be a thing of the past.

"2. Even if we were fully prepared at this time, we would face the superhuman task of crossing an ocean and forcing a landing on a fortified continent against armies stronger than our own and hardened by years of war. It would probably mean the loss of millions of American lives.

"3. We in America have the best defensive position in the world. No foreign power can invade us today, and with reasonable preparation on our part, no combination of foreign powers will ever be able to invade us. Since they cannot invade, it will be only a question of time before they desire to trade with us. And I have full confidence in American ability to hold its own in a trade."

That 'Perpetual' Peace Vigil Will Cease at 1 P. M.

The pacifist pickets of the Perpetual Peace Vigil will end their demonstration today at 1 p. m. after more than 1,000 hours of pounding the sidewalk in front of the White House, it was announced yesterday by the American Peace Mobilization headquarters.

New plans for presenting the objectives of the A. P. M. were discussed Thursday night at a special meeting of its national board in New York, it was said.

Frederick V. Field, executive secretary of the A. P. M. will reveal the next step of the A. P. M. today at 1 p. m. when he addresses the pickets before the White House.

Nazis Hint Another 'Secret' Weapon

Berlin, June 20 (INS).—Production of a new German naval mine against which Britain "will be helpless" was hinted at tonight by the semiofficial Dienst aus Deutschland.

This authoritative news agency stated:

"It is not improbable, accordingfi to Berlin sources, that the mine production offices will soon produce a new weapon against which Britain will be helpless."

Roosevelt Puts Curb on All Oil Exports

President Roosevelt placed all petroleum products under export control yesterday and forbade their export from the East Coast with the exception of shipments to the British Empire, Egypt and the Western Hemisphere.

The new restrictions were doubly designed, however, to relieve Japan, sorely in need of American oil, as much as to relieve the threatened shortage of oil on the East Coast.

The Presidential order and later official explanations made it clear that Japan will continue to be able to buy all American petroleum products except high-octane aviation gasoline, although shipments will have to be from West Coast or Gulf ports.

The White House said at the same time that a plan will be prepared for the most effective use of tanker facilities available to supply petroleum to the Eastern Seaboard and the other American Republics.

Due to Tanker Shortage

The threatened East Coast oil shortage is due chiefly to a shortage of tankers, according to Interior Secretary Ickes, whom President Roosevelt has named as petroleum czar to deal with the expected oil problem. Transfer of more than two score of tankers to Britain has aggravated the shipment problem.

The White House announcement said that "further restriction of shipments from the Gulf or Pacific ports of the United States is not contemplated."

This was interpreted as assurance to Japan, Russia, and other foreign purchasers that the action was not aimed at them.

There has been pressure in Congress for a complete ban on shipment of oil to Japan. Yesterday's announcement was taken to mean the Administration has no intention of indorsing any such embargo at the present time.

General licenses for the export of oil under the new rules issued late yesterday by the State Department authorized shipments of petroleum products from the Eastern seaboard to any port of the British Empire, to Egypt and to countries of the Western Hemisphere.

Some Licenses Canceled

All licenses previously issued for the export of petroleum products were canceled, except those specifically permitted by the new rules.

The Administration policy has been that aviation gasoline of 87 octane and above was restricted to the British Empire and the Western Hemisphere. Other nations could buy all lower grades under a general license.

Roosevelt Gets Power Over Aliens, Travel

Copyright by New York Times

The Senate passed yesterday, without a record vote, a House amendment of a World War law to give the President almost unlimited authority to regulate or prohibit movement into or out of the country of both citizens and aliens.

An amendment by Senator Taft (Republican), Ohio, accepted 58 to 0, restricts the new grant of authority so far as it applies to citizens, to the period of the national emergency instead of making it available any time any two nations are at war.

Taft held the powers proposed were "extreme," and therefore should expire at the end of the present emergency. Adoption of the amendment sent the bill to the House, where concurrence promptly followed, sending the measure to the President.

Senator Van Nuys (Democrat), of Indiana, in charge of the bill, assured questioning Senators the authority would not be used to restrict or prohibit normal travel of citizens and aliens between this country and others of the Western Hemisphere and would not impose passport requirements between the United States and Canada and Mexico.

"Since the outbreak of the present war," his report said, "it has come to the attention of executive agencies that there are many persons in and outside of the United States who are directly engaged in espionage and others engaged in activities inimical to the best interests of the United States who desire to travel between the United States and foreign countries in connection with the activities, as well as others who desire to leave the United States to evade justice."

Full Nazi-French War Alliance Predicted

London, June 20 (INS).—Conversations between the German and French general staffs, arranged by Vice Premier Admiral Darlan, will soon produce a full military alliance between the Vichy government and the Axis conquerors of France, the "Free French" news agency said today.

The major objective of this alliance, according to the "Free French" agency, is to forestall American intervention in the war.

Raid Warden Registry Opens In New York

By the Associated Press

New York, June 20.—Executives and bootblacks, jobless domestics and Park Avenue dowagers—they all hurried to police stations today to be among the first to volunteer for air raid warden service. They were answering the call for 64,000 men and women to aid in safety work that might be occasioned by an air raid on the metropolis.

"This is not a clambake or a pinochle party," said Mayor LaGuardia, National Director of Civilian Defense, in announcing the registration last night.

Eighty-two police stations were made registration centers and officials said they wouldn't be surprised if more than 2,000 persons volunteered.

Registration will continue daily until the required 64,000 have been accepted.

An 18-year-old boy was among the first to apply. A woman who gave her age as 65 was another.

The first registrant in Chinatown was Ginn Y. Lee, 37, an insurance agent. William P. Miller, 65-year-old naturalized German who said he enlisted in Theodore Roosevelt's "Rough Riders," filled in an application.

Several women arrived in limousines driven by liveried chauffeurs.

The plan provides for dividing each police precinct into zones covering 50,000 persons, the zones into sectors of 5,000 persons and the sectors into posts of 500. One or more wardens will be assigned to each division.

Haile Selassie Orders Kinsman, Two Others Seized

Cairo, Egypt, June 20 (AP).—The restored Emperor Haile Selassie has ordered the arrest of his son-in-law and two other powerful Ethiopian tribal chieftains for treachery in trafficking with the Italians.

The three are Ras Haile Selassie Gugsa, who married the Emperor's daughter, Zenab Wark, Ras Seyoum, and Ras Hailu.

Reports from Addis Ababa indicated the Lion of Judah had only Ras Hailu in custody. It was considered likely the other two were hiding out in the back country.

British Lose 98 Ships in May, More in April

By the Associated Press

London, June 20.—Britain disclosed today that April was her worst month of this war for shipping losses and authoritative sources asserted sinkings in the battle of the Atlantic still rose during May although ship losses for all seas declined in that month.

Germany was said to have increased the number of submarines sent into the vital Atlantic lanes to strike at Britain's supply routes.

The admiralty announced May ship losses were 98 ships, totalling 461,328 tons, or 119,823 tons less than revised figures for April. But the corrected April total—581,251 tons instead of the previously announced 488,124 tons—indicated that May figures might be much higher when all returns were in.

Britain's Position Worse

In May, it was indicated, the sea warfare slackened in areas other than the Atlantic, bringing the total losses down, but Britain's position in the all-important battle of the Atlantic itself was worse.

The deduction that the number of U-boats at large against Britain had increased was made, it was said, "on the basis of all figures, including the number of attacks made by our defenses against submarines, the number of targets our shipping has presented, the number of known losses of our ships and the 'kills' of U-boats."

Britain during may sank 299,000 tons of Axis shipping, it was announced.

Any estimate on the number of submarines "killed" was refused, but it was added that "we can say that the number of attacks on U-boats since March is a record."

There has been a distinct improvement, it was stated, in one unspecified area of the Atlantic which formerly was the U-boats' most profitable hunting ground. German undersea and air raiders, it was said, have now been forced to change their tactics and go farther afield.

Convoys Still Favored

The British admiralty, it was said, still is in favor of the convoy system on the basis of proved results.

The total of British, Allied and neutral shipping losses from the beginning of the war to the end of May were set at 1,639 ships of 6,702,807 tons, broken down as follows: British, 1,008 ships of 4,302,445 tons; Allied, 314 ships of 1,411,543 tons, and neutral, 317 ships, of 988,819 tons.

The British figure of 461,328 tons lost for May was compared by authorities with a German claim of 805,000 British tons sunk and an Italian claim of 36,000 tons, making "a total enemy claim of 881,000 tons."

Reviewing the British fight in the Battle of the Atlantic, the informant said that a number of recently acquired United States Coast Guard cutters "are now at work."

"They are very fine ships and are fine for our use," it was said.

"O, JESUS, THOU ART STANDING"
BISHOP WILLIAM W. HOW

O Jesus, Thou art standing
Outside the fast-closed door,
In lowly patience waiting
To pass the threshold o'er:
Shame on us, Christian brothers,
His Name and sign who bear:
O shame, thrice shame upon us,
To keep Him standing there!

Little Stories of GREAT HYMNS
This popular hymn is said to have had its inspiration in the verses of a beautiful poem, and in Holman Hunt's famous picture, "The Light of the World" depicting the figure of Christ, crowned with thorns, carrying a lighted lantern, knocking at a closed door

Daily Vacation Bible Schools Start Monday

Two daily vacation Bible schools will open with sessions from 9 a. m. to noon Mondays through Fridays.

The Chevy Chase Community project will be centered at Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church under the direction of the Rev. Edward O. Clark, pastor of Chevy Chase Baptist Church. There will be nursery, kindergarten, primary and junior departments.

The program at Lewis Memorial Methodist Church will include Bible stories through the visual method; songs, religious instruction and recreation for children from 3 to 16. Mrs. Clifton Housley is supervisor.

A school will be opened at Albright Church on Monday morning with a program of worship. A competent staff of teachers will be on hand to teach Bible stories, handwork, play, dramatization, and other games. Picnics and parties are being planned and all children from 6 to 14 years of age are invited to attend.

A daily vocation Bible school will open Monday morning at 9:30 in the Letts Educational Building of Foundry for children from 4 to 12 years of age. This is a community project sponsored by the Federation of Churches and with the cooperation of the Church of the Holy City, Grace Reformed, First Baptist, Covenant-First Presbyterian and Luther Place Memorial Church. Sessions will be held each weekday morning, except Saturday, for a three-week period.

Canadian Surgeon To Lead Six-Day Church Conference

Dr. Arthur I. Brown, author-scientist-surgeon-prophetic teacher, will conduct a six-day prophetic conference beginning tomorrow at 11 a. m. at the Non-Sectarian Tabernacle, 6440 Piney Branch Road Northwest. His initial subject will be "The Wonderful Man of Galilee."

DR. BROWN

He will speak at 3 p. m. tomorrow on "The Coming of Satan's Counterfeit Christ" and at 8 p. m. on "The Present World Crisis—Will Germany Become a World Empire?" He will speak daily through Friday at 8 p. m.

Dr. Brown was formerly a surgeon in large practice in Vancouver, and is a Fellow of the Royal College of Surgeons of Edinburgh. He is said to be one of Canada's most learned Bible teachers. Dr. John McNeill, minister of the Tabernacle, will speak tomorrow at 9 a. m. on the Church of the Air Program over WOL and at 4:05 p. m. on WINX.

New Church Waits For Cornerstone

Reversing the usual order, the Bethesda, Md., First Baptist congregation today at 1:30 p. m. will lay a cornerstone—in the already completed $30,000 edifice at Wilson Lane and Melrose venue.

Haste to finish the building that was dedicated on January 26 left no time for planning a "stone laying," explained the Rev. J. Raymond Nelson, pastor. An opening was left for the stone, and the worshipers decided there should be a ceremony.

The Masonic rites will be conducted by the Bethesda Lodge of Masons, No. 204, under Worshipful Master George Clendennin, member of the First Baptist congregation.

Funds Campaign

A Building Fund drive will be held during the next two weeks at Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church in an effort to raise $15,000 toward payment of the debt on the new educational building. A report supper meeting is set for Monday night and a victory dinner for Thursday night.

Christian Science

"Is The Universe, Including Man, Evolved by Atomic Force?" is the subject of the lesson-sermon in all the Churches of Christ, Scientist, tomorrow, at 11 a. m. and 8 p. m. Sunday school is at 11 a. m. The public is invited to attend the church services including the Wednesday evening meetings at 8 o'clock.

The newlyweds will enter missionary work in Brazil in August

Religion and National Defense

Defense Calls Thinning Ranks Among Sunday School Leaders

Its "We're in the Army Now" instead of "Onward Christian Soldiers" for many local church workers being called into service by the national emergency.

Lieut. Waple

And while everyone's taking the situation in its stride with a chins-up Christian spirit, a temporary reshuffling of Sunday school and church leadership positions has been necessitated in many cases.

Grace Lutheran Church, among others, has found its leadership ranks thinned. Into the service have gone its Sunday school superintendent and assistant—Frank A. Stutz and Richard Winkelman, respectively, and one of its ace teachers, Louis A. Waple.

A reserve volunteer, First Lieut. Stutz is now assistant to the director of military training at the Ordnance Replacement Center, Aberdeen, Md. He was a local high school teacher before entering the service.

Pvt. Winkelman

Private Winkelman, a draftee, is in Company E, 176th Infantry, Twenty-ninth Division, Fort Meade. He was an employe of the Firemen's Insurance Co. prior to being called.

Summoned for Reserve Officers' duty, Second Lieut. Waple is in the Seventy-first Coast Artillery Corps; Battery C, Port Story, Cape Henry, Va. He is a recent graduate of Wilson Teachers' College.

Lieut. Stutz

Said Dr. Gerhard E. Lenski, Grace pastor: "They're fine chaps, and believe me, we miss them."

SOLDIERS ON WEEKEND LEAVE — Make a date for Mount Vernon Square, Ninth Street and Massachusetts Avenue Northwest, tonight at 8. The Mount Vernon Church has arranged a musical program and tabloid play under organist-composer Deane Shure's direction.

Service Council Formed

The General Assembly of the Southern Presbyterian Church has set up its Defense Service Council and is calling upon all the churches to contribute to this work tomorrow.

The council is intended to aid the churches near the camps to provide spiritual and recreational advantages.

A day of fasting and prayer is also designated for tomorrow.

Christ Lutheran Sermon

Chaplain E. E. Heuer, of Fort Belvoir, Va., will occupy the pulpit of Christ Lutheran Church, Sixteenth and Gallatin Streets Northwest, tomorrow at 11 a. m., speaking on "The Man Who Said 'No'."

Silver Tea Planned

The P. W. Jeffries Bible Class, of the Francis Asbury Methodist Church, will hold a silver tea at the home of Mrs. A. C. Embrey, 433 Quincy Street Northwest, Tuesday, from 3 to 10 p. m., for the benefit of the building fund. There will be entertainment and refreshments.

Two Pastors Named Canons Of Cathedral

The Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, yesterday announced the election of the Rev. Charles W. F. Smith, rector of Christ Church, Exeter, N. H., and the Rev. Merritt F. Williams, rector of St. Philip's Church, Charleston, S. C., to be canons of Washington Cathedral and members of the Cathedral Chapter.

The new canons will be actively engaged not only in the work of the cathedral, but also in that of the cathedral schools and the College of Preachers. They will take up their active duties in the late summer.

The Rev. Mr. Smith, after his graduation from the University of Virginia, was, for a time, assistant at historic St. Paul's Church, Richmond, associated there with the Rev. Beverly Dandridge Tucker, D. D., now Bishop of Ohio. Following his work there, he was associated with the Rev. William H. Laird in student work at the University of Virginia. Since 1935 he has been rector of Christ Church, Exeter, N. H. In recent years the Rev. Mr. Smith has been a member of the faculty of Philips Exeter Academy. He was born in London, England, July 16, 1906; is married and has one daughter.

The Rev. Mr. Williams served as missionary in Alaska from 1929 to 1932, and as student chaplain at the University of Florida from 1932 to 1935. Since then, he has been rector of St. Philip's Church in Charleston, and an active leader in the work of the church in the Diocese of South Carolina.

The Rev. Mr. Williams was born in Wakefield, Mass., May 31, 1899. He is married and has one son and one daughter.

and added: "I hope to fly the Atlantic route again many times."

First the representatives of the ministry of aircraft production, through which the ferry pilots operate, tried to kepe the trip entirely quiet. But they had never had a flying glamor girl to deal with before. They finally gave up when British and American correspondents stormed Miss Cochran's room.

Still, they did manage to put the hush on an interview regarding details of the flight, and they finally —as soon as possible—hurried her out of town to a farm she and her husband, Floyd Odlum, own in the English countryside.

She was shy about appearing in her soiled flying outfit.

"I'm feminine," she explained before going away to change.

List of Victims Missing on Ill-Fated Sub

New London, Conn., June 20 (AP).—Lieut. Comdr. George C. Crawford announced today that 2 officers and 31 crew members were aboard the missing submarine O-9 when she sailed yesterday from New London, her home port, for trials off Portsmouth, N. H.

Her commander was Lieut. Howard J. Abbott of Osceola, Iowa. The only other officer abroad, Commander Crawford said, was Ensign M. P. Wangsness, a naval reservist of San Diego, Calif.

The crew members:

Marvin D. Barry, seaman, second class, Manhattan, Kans.

W. R. Cannady, electrician's mate, third class, Blytheville, Ark.

Charles L. Eagleton, signalman, third class, Del Norte, Calif.

John H. Edwards, mess attendant, third class, Ittabenna, Miss.

H. T. Frost, quartermaster, third class, Hancock, Md.

James D. Fowler, chief machinist's mate, Lattimore, N. C.

Bob A. Gardner, torpedoman, third class, Alsea, Oreg.

N. Gersen, seaman, Bronx, N. Y.

Francis H. Golden, fireman, second class, Holyoke, Mass.

F. A. Griffiths, seaman, second class, Bellefontaine, Ohio.

Henry J. Gunn, machinist's mate, first class, Garr, Nebr.

Levitt E. Kruger, torpedoman, third class, San Diego, Calif.

Thomas W. Tillery, jr., machinist's mate, first class, New London.

Earl V. Varner, chief machinist's mate, Los Angeles.

Bernard J. Venhaus, seaman, second class, Lawrence, Neb.

William C. Wolf, chief torpedoman, Hartford, Conn.

Lieut. Abbott was born in Des Moines, Iowa, May 21, 1910.

He was attached to the destroyer Peary serving in the United States Asiatic Fleet from 1933 to 1936. He was aboard the Peary when that ship rescued the passengers and crew from the wrecked steamer Silver Hazel in San Bernardino Straits, Philippine Islands, in November, 1935. Lieut. Abbott's address in 1937 was 302 West McLane Street, Osceola, Iowa.

Ensign Wangsness, Naval Reserve, was born on August 29, 1913, in Garretson, S. Dak. His wife is Mrs. Katherine Hyatt Wangsness, and his residence is at 4538 Terrace Drive, San Diego, Calif.

Sub Disasters Have Taken 139 U. S. Lives

By the Associated Press

During the last 27 years 139 American naval men have perished as the result of disaster overtaking five United States submarines. Ten more lives were lost in five lesser accidents.

The greatest in loss of life and the most terrifying of them all was the collision, on December 17, 1927, of the S-4 and the Coast Guard vessel Paulding. Forty men died as the S-4 sank in 100 feet of water off Provincetown, Mass.

Rescue crews heard signs of life and frantically fought to free the imprisoned men. Hours later when divers pierced the torpedo tube with an oxygen hose it was too late.

The most recent disaster was the sinking of the Squalus off White Island, N. H., May 23, 1939. Thirty-three men were saved with a diving bell, thus used for the first time, but 26 died.

Within a month of the Squalus sinking came disasters which took the lives of 91 British and 71 French sailors. On June 1 the British submarine Thetis sank in Liverpool Bay, and on June 15 the French submarine Phenix sank off the coast of French Indo-China.

Depths Crush Trapped U. S. Sub

O-9's men had no hope of using their "Momsen lungs," with which men have come up from great depths by ascending in easy stages. An ascent without a retarding line would mean instant death.

Looking out toward the rescue fleet, Admiral Wainwright said:

"If she's down 400 feet I don't know what they can do."

Jewell said he had not given up all hope. He asserted that although the submarine undoubtedly was punctured, it might be possible that some compartments still remained intact.

(Twice during the night, President Roosevelt was in personal touch with the Navy Department in Washington, making his last call shortly before midnight. Officers said he expressed deep concern and regret when they advised him the Navy "was not optimistic" about the situation.)

The O-9, one of the Nation's oldest submarines and only recently recommissioned after a decade of idleness, went into a deep trial dive at 7:56 o'clock, Eastern Standard Time, this morning. About two hours later a smoke bomb distress signal came to the surface.

A frantic search followed, but no sound came from the O-9, nor was any direct contact made, until the rescue ship Falcon, one of a dozen Navy vessels which rushed to the scene, radioed shortly before 8 p. m.:

"Have picked up painted cork, pieces of O-9 deck grating, oil slick, air bubbles, depth 67 fathoms."

The submarine previously had been reported at a depth of 370 feet, although it was built to stand only the pressure of a 200-foot depth. The Falcon's report placed her at 402 feet.

An officer who returned from the scene reported that it appeared that the cork bits had come from the inside of the hull.

The craft was commanded by Lieut. Howard J. Abbott, of Osceola, Iowa, and the only other officer aboard was Ensign M. P. Wangsness, naval reservist from San Diego, Calif. The crew of 31 had been assembled from all sections of the country, with many of them from the West Coast.

The Navy quickly shot all available rescue equipment to the scene. It was within a few miles of the spot where the submarine Squalus went down in May, 1939, when 33 of the 59 men aboard were rescued sensationally by means of a diving bell.

Twenty-one expert divers were flown here from the Washington Navy Yard. More flew from the New London (Conn.) Submarine base. A diving bell similar to that used in the rescue of part of the crew of the submarine Squalus two years ago was rushed from New London aboard the salvage vessel Chewink.

Officers said the diving bell could be used on the O-9, despite the craft's lack of other safety features.

It was the underwater silence that bothered Navy men most during the day.

Sharp Message

President Roosevelt minced no words in his report to Congress yesterday on the sinking of the Robin Moor. Undoubtedly he chose the form of a special message because it will convey to the American people, as well as to Congress, the very serious strain which this and other recent incidents have placed upon relations between the United States and Germany. In the words of the President, the Reich has "flagrantly violated the right of United States vessels freely to navigate the seas subject to a belligerent right accepted under international law." The President sees in this "lawless act of violence" an attempt to drive American commerce from the ocean—an attempt to intimidate the United States and thus prevent American weapons and supplies from reaching Great Britain. And he has voiced the mildest reply that a great self-respecting Nation can make to such a threat: "We are not yielding and we do not propose to yield."

Germany is now employing in the Atlantic precisely the methods which brought about the spread of the war throughout Europe. Ruthless disregard of one neutral's rights widens the theater of conflict and thus encourages further frightfulness and intimidation. War waged by these methods has no bounds. It becomes, in fact, world war jeopardizing the lives, liberties and property of all peoples. The United States is confronted by the ugly reality that American lives are not immune to this menace. Lawlessness and brutal force are sweeping over land and sea and will continue to do so until stopped by superior force. The real significance of the President's message is that it reflects the growing determination of the United States to reply to every invasion of American rights in the only terms that the Nazis understand.

Bargaining Unit

An important principle is involved in the decision of the National Labor Relations Board allowing three local A. F. of L. unions on the West Coast to decide for themselves whether they wish to be absorbed for purposes of collective bargaining into the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union (C. I. O.). In effect the board has decided that it will no longer attempt to destroy these well-established local unions because a majority of the longshoremen on the Pacific Coast wish to bargain as a unit. To say the least, the decision serves the interests of industrial democracy.

Three years ago the NLRB certified the I. L. W. U. as the exclusive representative for workers doing longshore work in Pacific Coast ports. It acted on the ground that wages, hours and working conditions should be uniform in this area, noting also that employers were organized on a coastwide basis. To be effective the longshoremen, too, would have to bargain as a single group. That reasoning was sound then, and it is sound now. Yet the board is fully justified in making an exception in the case of longshoremen working at Tacoma, Port Angeles and Anacortes.

The A. F. of L. unions in these three ports have persistently refused to cast in their lot with Harry Bridges and the I. L. W. U. They were excluded from the terms of the agreement negotiated by the dominant union, and an arbitrator decided that the I. L. W. U. had no right to name employe representatives to its labor-relations committees for these ports. In short, the unions continued to exist for three years in spite of the fact that the NLRB had denied them the right of bargaining collectively for their own members. Nor has the Bridges organization been able to win over any of the longshoremen of Tacoma, Port Angeles and Anacortes.

By authorizing an election to determine whether the longshoremen of these ports wish to function as separate units, therefore, the NLRB is merely following the letter of the law guaranteeing to workers the right to bargain collectively through representatives of their own choosing. Separate bargaining units are likely to prove less effective than one united organization. But the longshoremen affiliated with the A. F. of L. are well aware of that risk. If they favor smaller and less effective units, they will do so with their eyes open and for reasons that seem compelling to them. Care must be exercised by the NLRB to avoid denying collective bargaining rights to established unions merely because they are small. The ultimate structure of labor organizations is a question for workers themselves, and not for any governmental agency, to decide.

Time To Seek Help

Yesterday found the District Commissioners still talking about an investigation of the Police Department. But the Strieff murder was still a mystery and the problem of improving law enforcement in the District was still enveloped in confusion. The people are looking for forthright and positive action. Officials seem to be content to chew over vague plans. There is good reason, of course, for deliberation on the future set-up of the Police Department. But this should not prevent prompt and effective action now to arrest the fiend-murderer who may be still lurking in a Washington alley.

There has been too much loose talk at the District Building of a police investigation of the police. Such a farce would only add to the grave concern which fathers and mothers of the District feel for the safety of their daughters. Obviously no one in the Police Department can conduct an adequate investigation of that department's deficiencies and shortcomings. And since the Commissioners share the responsibility for laxity of law enforcement in Washington, they must also avoid the appearance of investigating their own administration. If they decide to go ahead with an inquiry, certainly it should be conducted by independent experts. Such experts might better be chosen by Congress or the President since funds to finance an inquiry would have to be voted by Congress in any event.

What the Commissioners can do is to concentrate their energies on quick solution of this murder. Why have they not asked for help from the FBI? As Senator Herring has pointed out in a letter to Attorney General Jackson, the Federal Bureau of Investigation has authority to probe into the violation of all Federal laws. It would be very strange if Federal agents should lack power to aid in tracking down criminals in the Nation's Capital. But, of course, the FBI is reluctant to step in until its assistance is asked. Nor can the police, who have failed to make any noticeable progress in solving the crime, be expected to request help from an outside source. It is clearly the responsibility of the Commissioners to face this breakdown in law enforcement squarely and ask the FBI for help.

Damascus

The British insist that the fall of Damascus will be announced at almost any moment, though they have been saying the same thing for nearly a week. But if and when Damascus is taken, it will make no more than the barest footnote to the history of that most ancient city. In the course of a few thousand years Damascus has changed hands so many times that it is literally impossible to count them. It has been taken by Mesopotamians, Egyptians, Israelites, Macedonians, Romans, Armenians, Arabians, Suljuks, Crusaders, Mongols, Ottoman Turks, English, French and others. It is a place through which have flowed nearly all the great historical religious movements of the past 3,000 years and the number of cults and sects it has sheltered from time to time scarcely can be computed. It was, of course, in the principal street of Damascus, the street which is still called Straight, that occurred one of the greatest of all religious incidents—the reception into Christianity of Saul of Tarsus. And it is probable that the historical consequences of that event will continue after the present Syrian campaign has been forgotten.

Canada And U. S.

Two months ago President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Mackenzie King of Canada announced that their two countries had agreed "as a general principle that in mobilizing the resources of this continent each country should provide the other with the defense articles which it is best able to produce, and above all, produce quickly, and that production programs should be coordinated to this end." As a means of giving effect to this program a Navy Department mission has since visited Canada to study the facilities available for building small ships, and the War Department has sent emissaries to inspect the Dominion's ordnance manufacturing plants. A Materiel Coordinating Commission has also been formed, consisting of OPM officials and members of Canada's Wartime Industry Control Board, through which the Metals Reserve Co. has placed an order for $63,000,000 of aluminum. As a further means of implementing the agreement the two countries have just set up joint committees to work out plans for achieving a greater degree of economic cooperation in the present emergency and for alleviating postwar economic dislocations.

One of the immediate practical results of this agreement is that it will enable Canada to finance purchases of our goods on a greatly expanded scale to meet the requirements of her own and Britain's defense program. For we have agreed that Canadian purchases from the United States for use in British defense equipment shall be released in accordance with the Lend-Lease Act. Furthermore, the United States is expected to buy between $200,000,000 and $300,000,000 of defense articles from Canada during the current year. This means, of course, that the drain upon Canada's cash balances in this country will be greatly reduced. However, Canada has not relaxed her ban on nonessential imports from this country because she still needs to conserve her inadequate supplies of U. S. dollars. The reasons for such precautions are evident from a study of foreign trade statistics. While Canada normally has an unfavorable balance of payments with the United States, her trade balance with the rest of the world (chiefly Great Britain) is normally favorable. As a result of the war, however, Canada is now confronted by an extraordinarily unfavorable balance of payments due to the United States, while returns from sales of Canadian goods to the mother country are to an increasing extent inaccessible, taking the form of sterling balances held in London. In the circumstances the plan of economic collaboration which is now in process of being implemented provides the most feasible method open to our Government of providing Canada with the United States dollars that she must have if her efforts to aid Britain are to be fully effective.

Refugee Visas

The State Department is to be commended for its action in barring immigration visas to alien refugees who leave behind close relatives subject to Nazi pressure. This is one sure way of thwarting the machinations of the German Secret Police. For it has been painfully clear to Federal agencies charged with protecting this country from subversive elements that the Gestapo has been able to exercise control over many of the refugees emigrating here: By threatening relatives still resident in Germany or in German-controlled lands, it has been relatively easy for the Gestapo to force emigres into espionage service. Moreover, evidence has been turned up proving conclusively that Nazi agents have posed as refugees fleeing oppression and have thus been admitted entry into the United States. Such abuse of American hospitality is no more than we have come to expect from a regime which has consistently outraged every element of decency. The saddest part is that temporarily, at least, our historic role as an asylum for the oppressed must be suspended. To the hundreds waiting for passage in Lisbon—indeed, to the thousands throughout Europe who have been hoping against hope to get over here—the news will be crushing. Our sympathy must inevitably go out to them. Yet we cannot forget that the State Department ruling is clearly a vital prerequisite to our own national security. The world has had more than enough evidence of how effective and ruthless Nazi infiltration can be.

Price Policy

Policies in conflict have littered the history of the Roosevelt Administration, but sometimes there is only a seeming inconsistency. This is the case with the policy of the Department of Agriculture in stimulating cheese production by promises of higher prices and the policy of the Department of Justice in simultaneously obtaining indictments against several groups of food producers in a drive to lower prices to consumers. At first glance it seems highly inconsistent for one Government department to be actively abetting higher prices for certain foodstuffs while another department is "cracking down" on food profiteers. However, there is a logical explanation for this seeming contradiction. In proceedings against combinations or agreements allegedly in restraint of trade, the Department of Justice is not seeking primarily to bring down prices. Only if the illegal restraint which is the object of attack has resulted in unjustifiably high prices, as is usually the case, is the incidental result of a successful prosecution a lowering of prices. Moreover, the Government is not, of course, committed to a policy of keeping prices from rising, though injudicious official utterances sometimes convey that impression. Instead it is committed to a policy of balanced prices—which means that prices of certain commodities may be permitted or assisted to rise while others are kept from rising. Hence, if the Department of Agriculture thinks current prices of dairy products, such as cheese, too low to bring forth needed supplies, it is quite in line with our eclectic price policies to see that they are raised.

OLD GREY CAT

The old grey cat has moon-strange eyes.
He is night knowing and rat wise.

When darkness blacks out waning light,
The old grey cat knows no such night.

His eyes are full moons to the rim.
A soft grey world it is to him.

Grey shadows glide like shapes of dream.
He stiffens, springs. A reedy scream

Breaks quiet where a wraith has lain,
And quiet closes in again.

The old grey cat has moons for eyes.
He sees at night. Though fierceness lies

In his tamed heart, a fleet caress
Will brim his eyes with gentleness.

Labor Organizations

When President Grover Cleveland, with characteristic courage, sent Federal troops to Chicago to stop interference with the business of the United States Government on the part of the lawless element among the Pullman strikers, his order to the Army was the death warrant of the union involved. The American Railway Union did not long survive the failure of the Pullman strike. Is it too much to hope that the effective action taken by President Roosevelt in the North American Aviation strike will have a similar effect on the C. I. O.? Is it too much to hope that now, at least, newspapers and perhaps even politicians will begin to discuss openly the inevitable liquidation of the old-fashioned, conspiracy type of labor union?

I say "inevitable," because the eventual dissolution of these organizations may be said to be assured by the very nature of their avowed aims. I think we may lay it down as axiomatic that society will never long endure any organization of men banded together solely to extort special advantages for themselves at the expense of the rest of mankind. In the immemorial mores of our kind any such organization is a conspiracy, and history bears witness that sooner or later society will refuse to tolerate a conspiracy. Thus we may say that the fate of the A. F. of L. is implicitly in the fate of the now all-but-forgotten Knights of Labor; that the fate of the C. I. O. is foreshadowed by the fate of the malodorous I. W. W.

I think we may say, too, with some assurance, that the labor organization that takes the place of these old, antisocial unions, will observe the amenities of civilized society if it is to have any greater life expectancy than the relatively ephemeral labor organizations of the past have had.

RHUDDLAN MARSH.

Our Nation's Capital

Your meritorious editorial of June 18, "Murder in the Capital," exactly expresses my own reaction to the wave of revolting murders that have taken place in the District since I moved here in October. At that time the Rock Creek sniper filled the newspapers, and there has been a fairly steady succession of hair-raisers since.

It seems fairly obvious, in comparing Washington with other cities in which I have lived, such as New York or Boston, that the city's governing bodies are utterly incompetent. From either of the above cities a howl of protest would long since have caused severe jitters in the D. A.'s office. Where the citizens have no active and effective part in the selection and control of various officeholders, no one to whom they can go in a body and demand action, or else, what can be expected but laxity and incompetence? This huge city is like a great locomotive thundering along at high speed while its engineer is busy in the dining car.

And not only is the crime wave horrifying. The traffic deaths are such that one is almost afraid to leave the comparative safety of the Virginia countryside for a simple little shopping tour in Washington. The traffic management is certainly the worst that I have ever seen anywhere. Hitherto, St. Louis, Mo., held first place in my mind (though its citizens have undoubtedly remedied it by now). The Capital takes the lead unquestionably, with not enough lights, a mere skeleton crew of traffic officers, and not a bit of cooperation from the citizens. The District drivers, and I do not mean tourists, seem to delight in seeing how close they can come without knocking one down or crumpling a fender. And why? Because it isn't their city—it's Uncle Sam's.

Of A German Peace

A portion of Walter Lippmann's column in The Post of June 10 deserves special attention in connection with the various and numerous peace moves in which Hitler and his friends are so much interested. Mr. Lippmann states:

"What is happening to France is a conclusive demonstration of what the defeat of Britain would mean to the United States. Marshal Petain, like so many Americans today, thought that if he surrendered to Hitler, he could then retire into neutrality. But in fact France is compelled not merely to desert her ally but to turn against her ally; to be defeated in this war is not to retire from the war but to be pulled over to the other side.

"Those Americans who innocently advise the British to make peace with Hitler ought to realize from the example of France that what they are advocating is something that is a deadly danger to America. For the only kind of British government that can make peace with Hitler is a British government on the Vichy model, and such a government could only hope to get concessions from a victorious Hitler if it collaborated with him against the last free government left on earth. Since the Western Hemisphere is the greatest prize of empire that there is, it is obvious that the collaboration of Hitler with a British Darlan must be carried out at the expense of the Americas. And therefore, those who are working to force Britain to sue for peace are, whether they realize it or not, striking a mortal blow at the security and the vital interests of America."

It should be perfectly obvious to anyone who has followed Hitler's statements and his actions that he would be delighted with a negotiated peace—any kind of negotiated peace—since this would give him a valuable breathing spell, a chance to consolidate his gains, to force his negotiated victims to knuckle under, and to prepare for his next moves.

Those persons who are so naive as to think that we are safe from such a combination of forces, as depicted by Mr. Lippmann, will never learn. Any kind of peace now would be but an armed truce which would smolder along and finally erupt in a worse cataclysm than anything that has yet happened.

We must fight this thing through now. It will be expensive—war is always expensive—but the cost of postponement will be so much more vast that any comparison is impossible. Action now, or postponement of action, may very well mean the difference between the continuance of our security and the complete loss of that security.

In a German victory there can be no hope, but in a British-American victory there will exist all the possibilities for a constructive approach to the building of a new world.

Relief Rolls

I drove down to Culpeper County, Va., yesterday to visit the farm of my boyhood. I stopped on the way down to talk to a colored merchant whom I had known quite well when a boy. While in conversation with him, a young man drove up and inquired whether the merchant knew of a man whom he could employ to work on his farm. The merchant replied that he knew of no one.

When I arrived at Mr. X's, who owns the farm where I formerly lived, I was told by his wife that their son, just returned from college, was plowing corn, and she remarked that he was the only one on the place to do anything, as her husband's physical condition did not permit him to work. When Mr. X returned from some errands, he advised me that he had one man who was supposed to work seven days a week but that he was off half the time drunk. He added that it was impossible to get any help on the farm since everyone was on relief; that they would rather exist on a small amount than thrive on a good salary for which they had to work. My brothers in Culpeper, my brother-in-law in Charlottesville, and many other farmers I talked to in Virginia, Maryland and North Carolina confirmed the same conditions.

I do not believe we should let our worthy citizens suffer or starve, but, frankly, I say this relief has done more harm to our country and encouraged more idleness and laziness than anything ever before done by our Government. I was advised by letters from friends that this same situation prevails in other parts of the country. I believe that this relief should be cut out to a great extent and that taxes should be reduced instead of taxing the farmers to let these people idle. Congress should see to it that they struggle to get on in life as all our ancestors did before relief was ever heard of.

German Defeat Certain

With the discontinuance of relations with Germany the United States will be released from the restraining shackles of law with which we bind ourselves while we recognize that nation's government as legitimate.

Our treaties with Germany, as with each lawful government, are by our Constitution the supreme law of the land; however, by her act of secession from the law of nations, Germany forfeits her rights as a member of that concert, and by resorting to insurrection against the universal community the illicit government is an outlaw, the suppression of whom is the legal duty of each civilized power.

The actual conflict that is raging is a revival of Assyrianism against constitutionalism, an endeavor by Germany to reestablish the Asiatic concept of a nation, a concept which was first and most completely exemplified by that ancient aggressor. The Assyrians boasted of exterminating independent governments, of abolishing the boundaries of nations and of reducing peoples to slavery. They prided themselves in seizing the property of their victims, of creating satrapies, and founding a universal sovereignty.

To those who believe in the substantial, if not plenary, inspiration of the Bible, who can envision in the shadow of the future the triumph of law, and in the light of the ages the doom of despotic regimes, the total defeat of Germany is as certain as was the humbling of Assyria. As Cyrus was to the antagonist of God's people, so America is destined to be to the adversary of His nations. To do less we would repudiate a divine sanction in the enforcement of which is glory.

The Post Impressionist

Words And Music

I do not believe that the four opening notes of Beethoven's Fifth Symphony are Fate. Nor do I believe that they are a motto like "God Bless America" or "Time Is Money." They are simply three eighth notes and a whole note in conventional music notation, written down to indicate to an orchestra that certain related sound frequencies are to be emitted at certain intervals of time. All that is needed to "interpret" this music are the written notes, an orchestra that can play them, and a conductor to tell it when to start and how fast to go. What we hear is the beginning of an organized sound structure.

The Fifth Symphony was introduced by me to a friend who had never before ventured much farther into the realm of music than the records of Bing Crosby. Now Bing is all right in his place, but a musical diet of Crosby records is like eating heavily sugared Brown Betty three times a day, and nothing else. So I undertook to broaden his musical experience by introducing him to the roast beef and champagne of Beethoven.

The opening subject we called the letter "Q" in the Morse international code, because there is a resemblance between the rhythmic patterns of the two, and because there are practically no extramusical connotations attached to the Morse alphabet. We were going to hear the C Minor as music, not as an allegory. On his third hearing of the first movement he said, "Boy, that ending makes my heart beat faster!"

His heart accelerated not because he had a mental picture of a hairy monster labeled "Fate" jumping up and down on prostrate and helpless Man, but simply through admiration for the terrible grandeur of the denouement which the composer had created to resolve the melodic, harmonic, and rhythmic forces he had established in the movement. We had won a victory over a whole line of commentators from Schindler to Spaeth which for generations has been busily at work spreading the Fate legend. It has been going on ever since Beethoven, often a careless conversationalist, whimsically remarked of the four notes, "Thus Fate knocks at the door."

In his book, "Great Symphonies" (which for callous shallowness is probably unsurpassed by any book on music), Sigmund Spaeth tells how he once heard an educator at a children's concert explain to the little innocents that they could fit the words "I've lost my hat!" to the beginning of this work. He righteously condemns the heresy—and supplies his own words to the passage, which are apropos the "correct" Fate version. What neither Dr. Spaeth nor the anonymous educator realized is that it is impossible to fit a fiction to instrumental music and expect it to magically give us the "meaning" of the sounds we hear. The inevitable result is that the listener finds himself building a towering mental edifice of verbiage depending on such abstractions as "Man," "Fate," "Struggle for Supremacy," etc., to parallel the composer's musical structure, whose only meaning consists in sound relationships. Students do not learn mathematics by substituting abstractions or mythological figures for logarithmic functions; why, then, do musical themes have to symbolize verbal conceptions?

Suppose Beethoven had said, "Thus the gas man knocks at the door." Would he have been taken seriously? I doubt it. Or suppose we accept the "I've lost my hat!" version as the true one. Equally ridiculous. Only such an august abstraction as "Fate" is suitable for such "sublime" music. Hats and gas men are far below the ethereal heights. Yet we know what a hat is when we see one, and we are pretty sure that the visitor with the flashlight and the metal-bound notebook has come to read the meter; but nobody I ever heard of has met Fate on the street, or invited him in to tea, or played badminton with him.

The Fifth Symphony refers to nothing concrete on the face of the earth; neither does the word "fate." So applying the latter to the former may not be logically incongruous. The word is so meaningless, however, that the first four notes of a symphony or a bronze nude may both be labeled "Fate," and be accepted on faith as such by the art-appreciating public. Yet four notes of music are not a nude women. "They are symbols," you say, "for Fate." But the word itself is a symbol—what does "fate" symbolize? Not music or sculpture, surely. I'll leave you to ponder the vagaries of our windy vocabulary of abstractions.

All right—four notes of music are four notes of music. Agreed. As soon as he developed a memory for unfamiliar melodies, my Crosby addict didn't even need the Morse code to help him find his way through the most elaborately wrought symphonic structures. The first movement of the Eroica Symphony or Tchaikovsky's "Romeo and Juliet thrill me to tears, but I don't lose myself in meditations on the trials of a heroic existence or mental images of frustrated adolescent lovers caressing on a Renaissance balcony.

If the reader has lasted out this long, he will now ask, "What about program music? Doesn't the composer ask you to substitute verbal conceptions for themes?" You are not cheating anybody if you listen to what is artificially distinguished as "program" music without following the program. The first time I heard Strauss' "Don Quixote" I tuned in late and enjoyed it simply as a fine theme and variations. On subsequent hearings my enjoyment wasn't enhanced in the least by knowledge of the program; and if I had spent my time slavishly fitting program to music I would have heard the tone poem only as a collection of skillfully orchestrated sound effects. If "Fantasia" does anything, it shows us it isn't necessary to have Arabians in Tchaikovsky's "Arabian Dance."

O. K., Fate—scram!

AMOS TAYLOR

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

Small Demands Small Effort

THAT VERY clear-headed economist, Mr. Stacy May, of the OPM, has pointed out that the national defense program is not nearly large enough. It is not planned on a scale which will give us decisive superiority over the Axis, and it does not nearly represent what the United States is capable of doing. We have a national income which, even at our leisurely and wasteful pace, is more than twice that of Great Britain; yet of this larger income we are using this year only 20 per cent for defense, whereas Britain is using more than 40 per cent of her smaller income. We could not only equal Britain but surpass her; we could quite well devote a larger proportion of our income to war production. For it is true of nations, as of individuals, that the richer they are the more they can reduce their normal expenditure without feeling it seriously.

LIPPMANN

We can readily afford, without impairing the standard of life necessary to good health and good spirits, to outbuild and outproduce the whole continent of Europe, and this should be the measure of our effort. What we are now doing is not nearly the maximum we are capable of doing. That this is obviously the case is proved by the fact that in our supposedly all-out effort we are in fact enjoying a boom in private business and private consumption. A nation cannot be said to be making an all-out effort until it really begins going without luxuries and gadgets and even many normal conveniences.

THE REASON that an all-out effort is only now being planned and prepared, and even now with hesitation, is that the President and his lieutenants have been making a false assumption about the American people and about human nature. They have known that those who, for short, one may call New Dealers, have wanted not to interfere with the rising standard of life of the mass of the people. They have known that in general among businessmen there has been a fear of the effect of overexpansion when the emergency ends and with it a desire to keep intact as much of their normal business as possible. Instead of dealing with these two obstructions directly and boldly, the Administration has acted on the principle that if it did not ask the people to inconvenience themselves too much, there would be less opposition.

This is the usual error of the politicians in a democracy. It is an error because in fact human nature will respond more readily and wholeheartedly to a great demand than to a small one, and one of the cardinal vices of democracy is that politicians try to get a little by indirection rather than ask for a great deal candidly. Yet, given a state of affairs such as exists today, people will hesitate over inconveniences whereas they would respond quite differently to real sacrifices. If you ask a man to walk two blocks on some small errand, he will probably reach for the telephone or think of some excuse for not walking two blocks, but if you summon him to put out a fire a mile away, he will drop everything and run.

A MUCH LARGER program, calling for much greater effort and imposing visible sacrifices, will get a more whole-hearted response from the Nation than a small and cautious program. Men will work harder and faster in a very great enterprise than in one which is treated as a kind of side show to their business as usual. The real cure for such apathy and slackness as now exist is to double the program and ask not merely what is now being asked but very much more. The Americans, perhaps more than any other people in the world, will do great things greatly but they will not go to much trouble about little things.

They have not yet had from Washington a defense program that is large enough and bold enough to interest them fully. The people have been in effect told that the defense program is the affair of certain factories and certain groups of workingmen, and in no vital sense of anyone else.

Thus the New Dealer who wants to expand civilian consumption in this war boom and the businessman who wants as far as possible to do business as usual are in fact encouraged by the insufficiency of the planning at the top and the uninspired meagerness of the program that has been adopted.

Even if in a strictly military sense we dared now to be satisfied with our program, it would from every other point of view be in the highest degree imprudent and dangerous. The program is insufficient to insure a victory in this war.

THEREFORE, this program will either mean that the war is not won or that it will be prolonged indefinitely. In either event, the social gains of the New Dealers and the normal business of the businessmen will be hopelessly compromised.

For if the war is lost in Europe, we shall stand alone and encircled in a world of highly armed anti-capitalist and antidemocratic states. Even if we are able to defend ourselves, in Lindbergh's sense, against actual invasion and conquest, the price of even that much security will be to make ourselves a vast military camp. There will be no place there for social progress or business as usual. If the war is not lost in Europe, but, on the other hand, is not won, if the fighting ceased for a time, there is no conceivable possibility that the Axis would disarm, mighty little possibility that it could demobilize even partially.

Therefore, the peace which ensued would be universally regarded as an armed truce and, unless we went stark, staring mad, we should have to arm totally and keep armed totally for an indefinite future. There would be no place there for social gains or business as usual.

IT FOLLOWS that the only hope of a resumption of social progress and a restoration of normal industry lies in an effort now on such an overwhelming scale that we become invincible and irresistible. Those who think that such an effort involves suspending many privileges we now enjoy are right. It does. Those who think it involves transforming industry and expanding it for war production are right. It does.

But when they conclude that, even with victory, there will then be a catastrophe, they are wrong. The one sure effect of a democratic victory will be a universal longing for the enjoyment of those very liberties which have been lost in Europe and jeopardized everywhere. The democratic victors in this war will not, as in the last, be interested primarily in boundaries and territories. They will be interested above all in personal liberty because that is what they now lack and must now desire more than life itself.

ON THE OTHER HAND there is no reason to think that after this war we must have the kind of sudden economic collapse which our demobilization produced after the other war. Perhaps the greatest of all our mistakes after the other war was that we demobilized much too quickly and disarmed ourselves foolishly. We must not and shall not commit that error again. Having made ourselves the arsenal and the citadel of freedom, we shall, if we have any conception of our destiny and of our place in history, perpetuate our victory by maintaining, as we can so readily, supremacy on the sea and in the air, and also a formidable Army, so that never again in this century shall democracy find itself in mortal danger because it is unarmed.

Land Cheers Survivors

The first account of life aboard a German raider by a survivor of a Nazi-sunk ship is recorded in the letters to his family of James P. McKnight, Allentown, Pa., representative of the United Presbyterian Church. Mr. McKnight was aboard the Egyptian motorship Zamzam when it was attacked in the South Atlantic on April 17. In excerpts from his letters published yesterday, Mr. McKnight told how survivors organized a committee to make demands on the captain. Today, in the final chapter, he tells how the survivors passed the 37 days at sea while living in constant fear of attack.

Epic Of The Zamzam

By James P. McKnight

Today we complete a month on this boat living the barest of existences. No one really thought it would be so long. Our first information, on April 17, given out by the commander of the raider, was that we would be days or months on the ship to which we would be transferred. And next day the captain of the ship said that the voyage could not last over 40 days after we once started.

Well, we cruised in circles until April 26. On that day we made the second and last contact with the raider and started north. That was a day of high hopes. For we thought they were looking for a boat to which we could be transferred and that we might be landed soon in South America or the west coast of Africa.

Tuesday noon, May 11, we turned east. At that time I was closer to home in mid-Atlantic and on the latitude of New York, probably. Almost every one now gave up over turning a thousand miles south to reach the Canaries.

Spirits at Low Ebb

Spirits went to a low ebb. In addition it became cold. Word came that we were to sleep in our clothes on account of danger. We have now slept six nights without undressing. The captain ceased to call on us at all. And for three days we made all sorts of circles and detours and twice we saw smoke on the horizon. Finally, Friday, Mr. Murphy saw the captain and he said our destination was now the shore line of Spain, but the harbor to which we went might be Spanish or French. He told us Friday night we might sight land this morning or tonight. So we lived on day by day, and last night we slowed down dead-slow, and this morning the captain shouted from the bridge that today is our last day in the Atlantic and that tonight we should be near land. Later the purser told Mr. Murphy that we would land Tuesday morning. Now speculation is rife whether it will be in Spain or occupied France. In any case we are still in great danger, although so far we have come through wonderfully.

Now I must go to the rear deck for service. All the married men went at 10 for their visiting between 10 and 11 on Sundays. Nearly all dress nicely, but I have only the dirty clothes I've worn all month.

Sabbath, May 18, wore on slowly. It was said that whoever sighted land first would be given two extra slices of brown bread. It was said that the last dash of 150 miles of Atlantic would be made at night, as it was very dangerous, and we thought that the slowdown last night was to be the last 150 miles for tonight. We are now so far north that we have sunset and "all below" at 8 instead of 6, as in the South Atlantic. We talked in little groups. Many thought we wouldn't get through the night without being intercepted. The storm had died down; some thought the lifeboats might now have a chance. About 8 o'clock I went below, cold and tired. At 8:20 there was a shout and a rush for the stairway: "A light on shore!"

Shore Light Cheered

For five weeks and four days we had seen neither land nor boat (except the raider and our own) and no light. All men, passengers and crew, rushed to starboard to see the light, and a cheer went up. Soon we were passing lights along the shore and what had promised to be the worst night was comparatively safe. For we now kept within the Spanish territorial waters, where there was no danger of subs and so forth.

However, we again slept with our clothes and maintained double guards. The double guards were to insure that two men would be awake to open the hatches above the emergency ladders for quick escape. In the night we were sailing east in the Bay of Biscay and following the shoreline and there were some big waves. One struck the side of our hold, and Mr. Hall, in the bed at my feet, sat right up and put on one shoe before he knew what it was.

All day Monday we followed the north shore of Spain. Its green hills, its towns and villages were a feast for hungry eyes. We speculated as to our destination. We hoped for a Spanish port, as there the British would be free, too. Those who had luggage repacked were ready to land. All of us tried to brush up a bit. I tried to remove the dirt stains from my gray trousers with a soap shaving stick and salt water.

That night, when a wave struck us, half the men in the hold leaped to their feet. We said afterward it was like men getting up in unison from sitting-up exercises. But someone said: "It's all right. It's only a wave." Came Tuesday morning, and we were flying the Nazi flag. The first time we had flown the flag and three mine layers conducted us to a harbor. In the harbor we ran aground and it took hours being pulled off. German naval officials came on board and announcement was made that we might stay on until Wednesday, but that they were trying to make hotel arrangements for all Americans.

Testimony From Reich Barred In Auhagen Trial

Two District Court justices yesterday refused to allow testimony to be taken in Germany in behalf of alleged Nazi agents who are under indictment here.

Special Assistant Attorney General George McNulty argued that no German judges who handled the matter could be unbiased. Relations between this country and the Reich, he contended, are too strained for an exchange of judicial courtesies.

Justice F. Dickinson Letts turned down the plea of Dr. Frederick Ernst Auhagen that depositions be taken in Germany. Dr. Auhagen, the court said, must go on trial Monday on charges of failing to register as a propagandist here.

Similar pleas by Transocean News Service, its manager, Dr. Manfred Zapp, and an employe, Guenther Tonn, were rejected by Justice Jesse C. Adkins.

Writer Disagrees With Post On Adams-O'Mahoney Bill

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I sincerely believe that your editorial on Sunday, June 8, "Sugar Quota," was written without full inquiry into a complicated subject. I hope that you will make our point of view available to your readers. In a nutshell, the position expressed in your editorial, although not a very adamant one, is that S. 937 might well be passed by the House because our country, for purposes of national defense, should increase the subsidized production of sugar and thereby become less dependent upon "sea-borne" sugar.

Before arguing our side of the case, I should like to admit our bias. The Maritime Association of the Port of New York, organized in 1873, embraces all branches of shipping in its membership of over 925 persons which includes the steamship lines, lighterage, stevedores and other allied industries, and gives employment to hundreds of thousands of workers afloat and ashore not only in the Port of New York, but in all other ports of the United States. Obviously, the enactment of S. 937 would reduce the quantity of imports of sugar and reduce the exports of other commodities. From our point of view, unless the enactment of S. 937 is imperative on the grounds of national defense, it should be defeated as being vicious sectional legislation.

I do not believe that our private interest, however, is opposed to the larger public interest. On the contrary, the enactment of S. 937 is clearly against the interests of this Nation, and, specifically, it is contrary to a sound policy of national defense.

Briefly, what are the facts? The Sugar Act of 1937 provides that if, for any reason, the Philippine Islands are not able to fill their quota, then that quota shall be allotted to foreign countries other than Cuba, which, for all practical purposes, means Santo Domingo and Peru. In the last year or so, two major events have occurred which have made this provision of the Sugar Act of great political and economic importance. First, because of a possible shortage of shipping in the Pacific, there may be in 1942 (but not this year) a deficit in the Philippine sugar supply. Secondly, because of this Hitler blockade in the Atlantic, it is impossible for Cuba, Peru and Santo Domingo to ship their normal supplies of raw sugar to Europe. According to the present setup, if the Philippine "deficit" becomes a reality, then Peru and Santo Domingo will have an opportunity of selling their war-created surpluses in this country. In S. 937 the beet sugar bloc proposes to amend the Sugar Act to increase the production of beet and cane sugar in continental United States and our insular areas (in 1942 and thereafter) and preclude Peru and Santo Domingo from exercising their existing rights to ship their sugar here in any considerable quantity.

The Post has taken the general position that this proposed shift in our sugar and Latin American policies is "probably" justified on the grounds that if more sugar is grown in the United States, it will be a factor in the relief of the present shortages in shipping. This contention, so often made by the beet sugar bloc, has no foundation in fact and is merely a smoke screen to cover over its real purpose which is continuously to expand the subsidized production of high-cost sugar in the United States at the expense of Cuba and other Latin American low-cost sugar producing countries.

1. In the first place, no agency of the United States Government connected with shipping and defense has ever stated that an expansion in the beet sugar industry is necessary to relieve a shipping shortage. I refer you to the statements of the War Department, the Office of Production Management, the Maritime Commission, the Tariff Commission, the Department of Agriculture, the Department of State, and the Office of Price Administration and Civilian Supply.

2. S. 937 proposes to expand the production of "domestic" sugar by about 20 per cent. This domestic sugar comes from Hawaii and Puerto Rico as well as from Colorado and Louisiana. Our association would look with favor to an expansion of raw sugar production in Hawaii and Puerto Rico, but on purely logical grounds we point out that Peru is closer to the continental cane sugar refineries on the eastern seaboard than is Hawaii. If shipping is the only point at issue, why doesn't S. 937 give all of the Philippine deficit to the beet sugar States?

3. If the beet sugar industry is truly interested in saving shipping, then it should recommend that Cuba be permitted to send her surplus sugar here. Cuba has in store some 2,381,000 tons of unsold sugar (June, 1941), and all the so-called Philippine deficit could be brought up from that nearby island.

4. Cuba and Santo Domingo are not "overseas" areas, but lie a few hundred miles off the coast of Florida, and are within the area patrolled by the United States by air and by sea. The type of vessel which is used in our West Indies sugar trade averages around 3,000 to 4,000 tons, and these ships are much smaller than those used in our overseas trade. A West Indies sugar ship could not be taken off its ordinary run and sent, let us say, to the Red Sea in the transportation of war materials.

5. The islands in the Caribbean, most of which produce sugar, are politically and economically closely allied to the United States in our defense program. In the first place, the very existence of their population is dependent upon the receipt from the United States of hundreds of thousands of tons of food and manufactured goods. In the second place, our new defense program calls for the shipment of hundreds of thousands of tons of war material to Bermuda, the Bahamas, Puerto Rico, Santo Domingo, Haiti, Cuba, the Canal Zone and the Latin American countries bordering on the Caribbean. Ships must always go to these areas with American products and these ships will always be available to bring back tonnage of raw sugar.

6. Shipping is but one part of a larger transportation problem which confronts our Nation in this emergency. The substitution of rail freight for the transportation of beet sugar from the West in place of water freight for the transportation of cane sugar from the West Indies is no solution of our transportation problem. The center of the beet sugar industry is in Colorado, and this is 2,000 miles from the Eastern consuming areas. The cost of transporting beet sugar to the Eastern seaboard is approximately twice as much as the cost of transporting raw sugar from the islands. American railroads are faced with higher operating costs and higher wages, and bottlenecks in transportation have already begun to appear.

7. Shipping is but one aspect of our national defense program. Even if S. 937 would save any considerable quantity of shipping, it should be defeated, as pointed out by Secretary of State Hull, because it would be a clear "repudiation" of our assurances to Latin-American countries regarding sugar. Latin America today has some 3,000,000 tons of sugar which it cannot send to Europe and which it cannot send to the United States, under the quota system. Enacting S. 937 to expand the production of the subsidized beet-sugar industry would be tantamount to artificially creating a further surplus of an important Western Hemisphere commodity. This would be a direct reversal of our avowed policy to assist Latin America in controlling her surpluses and it would be a "break" for Hitler.

Excluding shipping, the other major basis for the support of S. 937 in your editorial was that in 1937, when the Sugar Act of 1934 was extended by Congress, there was no thought that there would be a large Philippine deficit which might be available to Latin-American countries. Consequently, it is argued, the enactment of S. 937 is justified because it would not deprive the Latin-American countries of any of their "real" rights. This may or may not be true, but it is certainly true that Congress, in 1937, did not foreseee a world war which would have the effect of blockading the sale of a major Western Hemisphere commodity in Europe. And in 1937, a Fifth-Column movement in Latin America was unknown. The theory of the quota plan is based upon the limitation of marketing by all groups in the American sugar system.

The alternative to S. 937 is to maintain the law in its present form, at least through 1942. If such an alternative is unacceptable to the beet-sugar bloc, then it should agree to let the Sugar Act expire on December 31, 1941, and to wipe out the entire subsidy system for sugar which, according to the Vice President of the United States, Henry A. Wallace, costs consumers and the public Treasury some $350,000,000 a year. This would give consumers cheaper sugar and would permit all groups, including the beet-sugar industry, to sell all their surplus sugar. But, of course, such an alternative is unacceptable to the beet-sugar States, because their industry can only exist under a subsidy system.

Treasury Thaws Swiss and Swedish Frozen Assets

The Treasury last night "thawed" the frozen assets of Sweden and Switzerland, indicating that the two countries had given assurances that their credits would not be used to the advantage of Axis or Axis-occupied nations.

General licenses were issued exempting Swiss and Swedish funds from President Roosevelt's order of last Saturday which tied up approximately $2,500,000,000 of German and Italian funds and property and the American holdings of a number of other countries.

The aim of the order was to prevent the use of such capital for purposes harmful to this Nation and the objectives of its foreign policy.

Release of the Swiss holdings, sources here said, involved approximately $1,400,000,000. Figures on Swedish credit in the United States were not available.

House Votes Navy Glider Training Fund

The House yesterday passed and sent to the Senate legislation authorizing the Navy to undertake a $100,000 experimental glider training program and authorizing a $19,500,000 program for development of five Naval shore bases for lighter-than-air craft and one Army air base.

How To Save Gas?

1.—Motorcycle Escorts—Abolish 'em entirely except in cases of necessity, or at least limit to two motorcycle cops the escort detailed to see that a couple of visiting politicians get from their hotel to their favorite night club at 60 miles an hour.

2.—Cavalcades of Honor—Cut out in all American cities the ridiculous custom of having dozens of limousines loaded with aldermen, ward heelers, etc., join in a motorized escort for any city guest, however unimportant.

3.—Cruising Taxicabs—Cut the politics and put some definite limits to the gas-consuming journeys of these far too numerous jitneys.

4.—Bridge Parties—Ladies, how about going to and from the Tuesday Bridge Club in one or two sedans, if you live in approximately the same zone, instead of in 8 or 12? And, after the party, don't dally at the curb with the motor running while you hold up the farewell with two more funny stories.

5.—Deputy Fire Chiefs—Must you drive that fast to get to and from the noon lunch, even if the city pays for the gas?

6.—Mommer and Popper—why must you drive Junior to and from school? Would a half a mile walk bring on fallen arches at his age?

7.—Mrs. Hustlebustle—On the level, lady, do you really HAVE to use the big car every time you need another pound of butter, a spool of thread or some puppy biscuit? Do you have to drive the old bus "wide open" when you're going to and from the parish bingo game? Is there any percentage in taking the car to the shopping area, using an extra dollar's worth of gas to save 18 cents in selective shopping?

8.—Mr. Suburban—With the train and bus service really pretty good why drive the old boiler into town every day when you know darned well it's no fun and a lot of bother?

9.—Department Store Managers—In time of a world war, why not require that the gals carry home that little box of writing paper instead of expecting you to send it out by truck?

10.—Service Station Men—Why not really look into the gasoline consumption and make the necessary adjustment instead of ignoring the matter and telling the owner when he comes back for the car, "We gave it a good going over, and you ought to get better mileage now, Mr. Pennypacker?"

11.—Neckers—Love is wunerful, and all that. But war is war. And, in an unlimited emergency, couldn't you enjoy the moonlight from the front porch?

12.—Weekend Tourists—Can't you find an attractive beach or lake closer to home? Are you so accustomed to four or five hours of traffic ordeals that you couldn't settle for less? Did you ever try a picnic in your own back yard?

14.—Operators of Motorized Horse Vans—What's the matter with those horses, anyhow? Are they cripples?

15.—Mr. Ickes—Why not set an example? Let's see you do it all on a bicycle.

Billy Rose, speaking at the Harvard Club ("The Rose is red, the Yale is blue") said that the Government lacks showmanship in selling its defense program to the people. Mr. Rose would tie it all up with the female figure and a superswimming pool.

Billy, for instance, would have called it the lease-strip bill, the draft drawing would have been done by a bathing Venus, Johnny Weissmuller would have been chosen over Hen Stimson and Bill Knudsen's name would be spelled Nudesen.

Those defense bonds would have borne the picture of Eleanor Holm, Mr. Roosevelt's St. Lawrence waterway drive would have been directed by girl drum majors and Secretary Hull would never be allowed to pose for a newspaper picture except in bathing trunks, with a shapley diving girl on either side.

Turkey is the latest country to sign a pact of Germany's own free will.

It's a ten-year pledge of friendship and should guarantee their mutual enmity and distrust.

Up to the thirteenth round we thought Joe Louis had signed one of 'em, too.

Elmer Twitchell says that either Joe Louis has slowed up terribly or he's running his punches on daylight saving time.

Fair Enough

By Westbrook Pegler

The New Approach

IN A RECENT essay my admired colleague, Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, wrote that, desiring to know something about the situation of the Navajos, she asked Mr. John Collier, of the Office of Indian Affairs, to come in late in the afternoon to give her a tell.

PEGLER

That was a method I had never thought of, having been fetched up in the old-fashioned newspaper practice whereby the reporter, when he wants to know, puts on his hat and goes over to the place where the guy is and hangs around until the fellow finds a little wedge of time between his regular appointments. But never me to reject new ideas, whatever their source just because they are new ideas, and, although I have shaken off not a few of Mrs. Roosevelt's ideas, I thought this one possessed charm, simplicity, directness and the probabilities of a handsome payoff in the way of results.

Well, there were a lot of things concerning which I wanted various authorities to tell me something, and the first was the Communist thing in the New York subway situation. So I got on the phone to the office of our noted mayor and told the girl who I was and said, "I wish you would ask the mayor to drop in late this afternoon and explain some things to me."

There was a small squawk of alarm or astonishment—I wouldn't know which—accompanied by a sort of thump as of a falling body, and I heard a man's voice say: "wotsa matter, Nelly? Did someone insult you on the phone? Leave me talk to the louse."

SO HE GOT on the phone, and I said, "No." I said: "I didn't insult the lady; I just told her to tell Butch to drop in late this afternoon to give me a tell about the Communist thing in the subway, and she lets out a yip, and now here's you talking about people insulting people."

"Why," the guy said, "you ought to know better than that—calling up and scaring a decent, hard-working American wage-earner like that, and what is the matter with you, anyway, you crazy screwball? You must be nuts! And will he drop in later in the afternoon? No, he won't drop in, you crazy screwball. You must be nuts, you cockeyed crazy fool, and don't be calling up any more with your wild ideas or I will get Louie to fan you with a bat."

"Louie who?" I asked.

"Lewis Valentine, our valued and efficient police commissioner." He said. "That's who." And he hung up. But that gave me an idea, because there are several things I wanted the police commissioner to tell me about. So I called headquarters and said to the sergeant-cop on the phone: "This's Pegler. Will you please ask the commissioner to drop in late this afternoon because I want him to tell me about some matters?"

The sergeant-cop stalled me with some double talk that I couldn't quite untangle, and between gabbles I heard him say to some other cop, "trace this one, because it sounds like some nut, and it may be harmless, but he sure is leaping, because he wants the commissioner to drop in late this afternoon and tell him some things, and maybe we better pick him up and put him under glass a while—just to see."

THEN HE turned to me and said I should wait right there and the commissioner would be right over, and pretty soon in comes a man from the screwball detail to see what goes on, and he feels of my head, and I have the damnedest time convincing him that I am not away from myself at all but just trying out a new process of reporting. However, he finally goes away saying I certainly have got something there if it works and why don't I try it on Gov. Lehman? So I said, "I was just going to," and so I did.

Well, at the Governor's office they didn't believe me at all and wouldn't even give him my message, although I told them over and over I had several matters I wanted him to tell me about and I didn't think it very courteous or cooperative of them to brush me off that way.

Finally I said: "Now, look, pals. Mrs. R. is a columnist and so am I, and that is the way she does and they come on time and pour it out for her, and I guess maybe you don't believe in democracy, after all, if that is the way you feel about it."

JUST THE SAME, that was the way they did about it so I finally got down to the county clerk, the probate judge and the road commissioner, and they thought I was fixing to give a drinking, and when I said no—I wanted them to inform me on some matters and no grog—they just said, well, if I would drop in some time they might spare a few minutes.

So that was how far I got with that, and tomorrow it is back to the old-fashioned way, with me doing my own leg-work and very sad over the fact that my admired colleague obviously has something that I haven't got.

United States Navy to Use Uruguayan Ports in Emergency

By the Associated Press

Uruguay announced today she would not consider any American countries warring against foreign powers as belligerents and would permit United States and other American warships to use Uruguayan harbors if war spreads to the Western Hemisphere.

Uruguay, the first South American nation to make such an announcement, took similar action in the World War. She notified all other American nations of her action and proposed that they act similarly under the Panama and Havana accord.

American diplomats here predicted the the Uruguayan initiative would be accepted by "almost all" the nations on the continent and that she may "possibly obtain authority to make a collective declaration."

The announcement was made by Foreign Minister Alberta Guani.

The action will permit the patrol of Uruguayan waters at the mouth of the Plata River in case of war. It was there that the pocket battleship Admiral Graf Spee was scuttled by its German crew after the epic battle of the South Atlantic in December, 1939.

Antitank Officer Shows Post How His Blitz Wagon Works

The Present Method of Putting An Antitank Gun Into Position

By Marshall Andrews
Post Staff Writer

Ft. George G. Meade, Md., June 20.—Among weapons and methods bred by the blitzkrieg is the antitank gun, a wicked little weapon of tremendous striking power designed to stop tanks in their tracks.

Developing reasonably effective tactics for the antitank gun has been another matter. Antitank men bring their guns onto the field swiftly and put them in action in a matter of seconds. They are equipped with rifles and machine guns for security against attack by enemy infantry and .50-caliber machine guns for defense against enemy aircraft.

But, say many antitank men, until they get into action and when they are forced to withdraw from action, they are "naked on the battlefield."

Many devices have been advanced and many suggestions made to overcome this asserted fault. One of them, the "blitz wagon," was invented by Maj. Howard R. Johnson, antitank officer of the Second Army Corps, when he was a captain commanding Company A, Ninety-third Infantry Battalion (antitank), stationed at Fort Meade.

This device, intended to bring a 37-millimeter antitank gun and its crew safely to the battlefield and, if necessary, get it safely off again, has never been described or photographed. The Post herewith presents the first pictures of Maj. Johnson's blitz wagon, demonstrated by a crew from his old company.

The car in the pictures is a condemned Army truck borrowed from the Quartermaster Depot at Holabird, Md. Its "armor" is made of wallboard instead of the quarter-inch steel it would carry in action. It was built by Maj. Johnson and men of his company to try out the idea.

The blitz wagon bristles with machine guns. A .50-caliber antiaircraft machine gun is mounted on top. The antitank gun thrusts through rear ready to fire on pursuing tanks. Going into action, the rear is dropped from inside, forming a ramp down which gun is run.

1. RUSHING toward a point threatened by tanks, the blitz wagon bristles with machine guns. Light guns are thrust through front and sides, while a .50-caliber weapon is raised to repel air attack

2. THE REAR of the wagon dropped to form a ramp shows how the 37-mm. antitank gun is carried inside, ready to fire through an apereture in the armor plate. Crew rolls the gun down the ramp . . .

3. . . . Quickly it is wheeled into position (below), ready to fire. The blitz wagon runs for the nearby woods to wait until needed. At present, antitank guns are towed by open truck in which crew rides

Native of Capital Sets an Example for the Nation

Mr. and Mrs. William Andrew White and their family have gone all out for national defense, and they think every American should follow the example they set yesterday.

Together with 17 of their 18 children, the Whites went down to the Benjamin Franklin branch of the postoffice yesterday, and purchased a book of Defense Savings Stamps for each member of the family.

Missing was Theodore, 19, who is serving in the Navy, attached to the U. S. S. Washington. Mr. White is assistant supervisor of miscellaneous loans in the Loans and Currency Division of the Treasury. None of the brood is married, and all except Theodore live with their parents at 1524 East Capitol Street. William M. is a deferred selectee, employed in the Navy Yard. Ellen works in the Federal Bureau of Investigation, Mary in the Potomac Electric Power Co., and the other children fill every grade in the public schools from kindergarten through high school. Both Mr. and Mrs. White as well as their family were born and bred in Washington.

An English Mother Speaks

This column has received the following letter from an English mother relative to a column entitled, "Pity Not The Women of England," published in the Post March 26, and republished April 6.

Merseyside, England
May 14, 1941

To Every Mother in the United States:

Referring to Malvina Lindsay's article in The Washington Post, I am taking the liberty to write and say that we don't want pity. Rather, we think of what may befall you. If your men don't make every effort to protect you, you will suffer what we have suffered.

I, as a mother, have had to turn my three young daughters out to work every morning after sitting in the air raid shelter from 5 to 6½ hours in the night. Incendiary and high explosive bombs and land mines fall around us shrieking and terrifying our souls. I seem to go insensible as the night goes on, dare not murmur for fear the girls might notice. I pray to God to help us and I hope to God you will never witness such an awful experience happening to your children.

Don't wait for air raids to come your way. Take action now. God bless you all.

Trimming Inch Off of Waistline Will Make Bust Look Larger

By Ida Jean Kain

WOMEN no longer expect something for nothing when it comes to slimming. The blithe guarantee that they can reduce with no effort, no diet and no exercise just makes them wonder what's the catch.

The reason I know you have developed a healthy streak of skepticism is by the questions you have stopped asking. One of the favorite quizzes used to be whether the application of a little magic lotion would not help to reduce—or to develop—their bust. And yet there is the keenest interest in means of improving this measurement.

With excessive overweight or extreme underweight, the first step toward normalizing the bust is to normalize the weight. These tissues are peculiarly susceptible to fatty deposit. The contour is just as greatly affected when weight and vitality are below par. An improvement in either direction usually shows first in this area.

Tendency to Sag

If you are more than 10 per cent overweight, a general reduction will make a marked difference in the bust circumference. But when the fatty deposit has been excessive, there is an increased tendency toward sagging. As the weight is lowered, exercise is highly important.

The too-thin, flat-chested girl benefits most from a build-up in weight and vitality. When the weight is normal and the chest is flat a routine to improve the posture and to develop the chest is needed. As a matter of fact, most figures could be improved by special exercises which stimulate circulation and tone the pectoral muscles.

The influence of exercise is indirect. The breasts are composed of glands rather than muscle. But the pectoral muscles form a sheath across the chest and support the breasts. Better muscle tone gives a better contour.

Maybe You're Sensitive

Too many women are overly sensitive about this measurement. The girl with the small bust seems to feel slighted. If the bust is naturally small, you probably look better that way. A neat trick, however, is to trim the waistline. An inch off the waist is as good as an inch added to the bust. You can exercise your waistline down and keep your weight up to normal.

Another cause for concern is the bust which is smaller on one side than on the other. It might be possible to develop the small side with exercise. At least, it would be worth trying. Practice the backstroke—as used in swimming—on this side for four to six months and see what you can do. An immediate improvement can be effected by the subtle use of a bit of padding in the bra.

Confession May Be Good for the Soul, but That's All It's Good For, Says Happy Wife Who Held Her Tongue About Her Past When Making First Marriage

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Congratulations on the wonderfully fine answer you gave your two priggish correspondents of June 18. If they didn't writhe in shame for their own lack of charity, after reading your remarks, they just aren't human. But maybe they aren't. How rotten of "M. A. B.," the self-styled "successful wife and mother," to villify a poor, misguided girl who had the courage to tell her fiance, voluntarily, that she hadn't been as "good" as he thought her to be, or as she could wish that she had been. How unkind to pass judgment upon her, with no means of knowing what was in her heart. By her "confession" the girl showed that she values the sanctity of marriage and deplores the fact that she cannot bring complete chastity to the relationship.

I should guess that your self-righteous correspondent never was beset by powerful conflicting emotions in her life. And I should also guess that her husband is one of those "misunderstood" married men—since his wife so obviously understands nothing. As for her children, no doubt they say, "I can't talk to mother about these things. She wouldn't understand." Haven't you noticed that the offspring of "goody-goody" women usually are the wildest kids in the neighborhood—with their mothers the last persons to learn of their indiscretions? (Women like that never wake up to what is going on in the world or in their own homes.) And I have also observed that persons who are charitable in their estimate of others are always those of higher morality, higher spirituality and definitely highest mentality.

As for myself, I lacked the courage this girl showed in telling the truth to her fiance. I was engaged once, too—and the engagement led to an illicit affair. Then I realized my mistake. What brought me to my senses was the discovery that the man I loved (he is now my second husband) valued me less after claiming me entirely. So I told him everything was over until we were married. To my surprise, he said he could not afford to get married just then. Well, neither could I afford to continue the affair. So we parted. It hurt, but it had to be.

Almost immediately, I met a man who was his opposite in every way. He adored me because I was so vivacious and he was so quiet. And I determined to hold my peace. Why tell him anything that would hurt him and make his face grow strained with unbelief? He had expressed his views of "that kind of girl," and his attitude kindled some aspiration in me. I felt as I never had felt before, and I thought I must be in love with "the one and only." I married him because he wanted me so much; and wouldn't have thought of taking me without marriage.

In our two years together, everything was as happy as marriages can be—except that we seemed to have different views on most subjects. However, they didn't matter because we tried to adjust ourselves. I did most of the adjusting—learning to read and be quiet, even though it irked me some. But I loved him and was grateful for his love. Then he was killed in an airplane crash and I felt as if the world itself had crashed. But I was glad he had never known about Jim.

Eighteen months later, Jim and I were married—and I guess it was meant that way all the time. I realized I could have married him first, if I had held aloof from an affair. And if I were living my life over again, I would do differently. But we are very happy together, because we have real love and Jim is sufficiently versed in women to know and appreciate my character for what it is. We haven't much money yet but he has a wonderful future and we hope to raise a family soon.

I hope we can profit by what we have learned; that we will have our daughters' confidence, and that I may be a good wife and mother in spite of my experience. It can be done and it has been done. And "H. O.'s" girl can do it—if he is mature enough to accept it all in the way it was meant. Confession may be good for the soul—but that is the only thing it is good for! I agree with your views on most subjects, Mary Haworth, and so does my husband. Keep up your good work. You're wonderful.

J. A. R.

—which penalizes the good women along with the bad. A man who thinks that his love life and his sex life are not necessarily synonymous will make a very poor guide, philosopher and friend for the woman he marries. The design of their fundamental relationship will be left to chance, which augurs no good.

When both sexes abandon the essentially barbaric "double standard," and men and women strive for a healthy and realistic "single standard," that encourages them to discipline themselves so as to be able to express the total personality in permanent emotional alliances, there will be fewer broken hearts, "lost souls," and mangled lives in this world of ours—where, as someone has said, "every prospect pleases and only man is vile." Sincerely,

Man Denounces The Double Standard'

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: In your column of June 18, a woman (signing herself "M. A. B.") writes to say ". . . Unfortunately, the double standard of morality must always prevail—unless women choose to lower themselves to adopt that accorded to males." As a man, I challenge that statement. The doctrine of the so-called "double standard" is itself immoral and vicious.

The double standard—(which this "happy and successful wife and mother" seems willing to condone, so long as women recognize their obligation to "be good")—is primarily responsible for untold crime, vice, heartbreak and emotional maladjustment in the world. Its advocates seem to think there is something rather high-minded and protective toward women about it. Actually and inevitably, the double standard results, in practice, in the degradation of both women and men.

The very condition on which the "double standard" exists, is that a classification of socially ostracized women shall cater to men's basest instincts. And the only remedy for this evil concept is enlightenment, on the part of both men and women. "Good women," in particular, seem not to realize how insidiously debasing to the whole human race is the theory and practice of the double standard. I oppose promiscuity for men as well as for women. The double standard tends to encourage promiscuity among men and, therefore, I am opposed to it.

I am 22 years old and unmarried. I would not want to marry a girl whose views differed from mine in this matter. And I have a beautiful sister, 19, whom I would rather not see associating with, or marrying, a man who believes in the double standard

Mediators Settle 2 Defense Disputes

Detroit, where a three-day strike early this month was ended at the board's request to give time for mediation efforts. Involved were 4,600 employes engaged in producing airplane parts.

Details Withheld

Details of the settlement reached yesterday were not given out, to permit union officials to return to Detroit and explain the terms to their members. It was understood the union would vote Sunday on accepting the settlement.

Members of the panel in this case are Charles Wyzanski, for the public; Rolland J. Hamilton, for employers, and John Brophy, for labor.

The board, through another panel, had been wrestling since May 27 with a strike threat at the Brooklyn plant of the E. W. Bliss Co., holder of $30,000,000 in defense contracts for torpedoes, power presses and heavy machinery. The company employs 1,500 workers.

The United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers, C. I. O., postponed its strike at the board's request, and the board appointed George Trundle, of the Trundle Engineering Co., of Cleveland, as a special representative to investigate the issues of establishment of minimum rates for skilled and semi-skilled workers.

To Select Arbitrator

The board reconvened yesterday to hear Trundle's report. Parties to the dispute then agreed to arbitration on (1) the basis for establishment of minimum rates; (2) the setting of minimum rates, and (3) the effective retroactive date. The board will select the arbitrator.

Members of the panel are Dr. Frank P. Graham, for the public; Eugene Meyer, for employers, and John Brophy, for labor.

In still another move, Board Vice Chairman William H. Davis sent two commissioners of conciliation to Seattle, Wash., to clear up any remaining misunderstandings blocking termination of the strike of Pacific Northwest lumber workers.

Davis wired O. M. Orton, president of the C. I. O.'s Lumber Workers Union, and C. R. Krainbaum, chairman of the employers negotiating committee, that Ernest P. Marsh and E. S. Jackson, the commissioners, would confer next Monday with both sides, and asked cooperation of the union and employers.

Employers Balked

After long and turbulent negotiations, the union only last Saturday was induced to accept recommendations issued by the board on May 23, but early this week the expected settlement was blocked by the employers refusing to accept the proposal. Board officials are said to feel Marsh and Jackson will be able to settle any questions arising from interpretation of the recommendations.

Ford Signs C.I.O. Union Shop Pact

withdrawn by the union as "settled amicably between the parties," it was said.

The contract was signed in the Washington offices of C. I. O. President Philip Murray, and in the presence of Harry Bennett, Ford personnel director, and a score of company and union representatives.

Not a Closed Shop

The union shop clause permits the company to hire nonunion workers, but those hired must join the union within 30 days. The union, however, agrees to accept all Ford employes into its ranks. Under a closed-shop agreement the company could have employed only workers already union members.

Other provisions of the contract are:

1. The U. A. W.-C. I. O. is recognized as the spokesmen for all Ford employes and a limited number of other specified groups.

2. The company will pay wage rates which will be at least equal to the highest rates paid, in the several classifications, by other automotive companies or companies engaged in the production of steel, rubber, glass and cement.

3. All wage increases are to be retroactive to the date of the signing of the agreement. There are to be no reductions from any prevailing rates of pay.

4. The company and the union will confer in December, 1941, on the payment of a bonus.

5. The service department of the company against which the union had complained bitterly, is to be eliminated. The function of plant protection will be performed by employes identified by badge or otherwise.

A shop steward system is to be set up for the handling of grievances, with one steward for each 550 employes.

6. Grievance machinery will be set up to adjust disputes which cannot be adjusted by the stewards and the foremen.

7. The company is accorded the right to place the label of the union on its cars.

8. Overtime work is to be compensated for at the rate of time and a half after eight hours work in one day, or 40 hours in a week. Double time will be paid for Sunday and holiday work.

9. Workers called in for work and not given work will be given two hours call-in pay.

10. Lay-off and rehiring are to be on a strict seniority basis. A worker will accumulate seniority after being in the employ of the company for six months.

11. Where layoffs are necessitated because of a drop in production no senior workers are to be laid off until the work week is reduced to 32 hours.

Murray said in a statement that "the pattern set by Mr. Ford in this contract might very well be followed by other leading industrialists in the United States of America."

"It is the avowed purpose of the C. I. O. to lend every practical and legitimate cooperation toward the maintenance of friendly relations between the Ford company and the organization."

Armours on Way Home For Son's Marriage

Now winging their way over the Andes en route home are the United States Ambassador to the Argentine and Mrs. Norman Armour. They are due to arrive Monday morning at the Washington Airport. Mr. Armour will consult with the State Department before going to Massachusetts to see his son, Norman, jr., married to Miss Cynthia Sewall Burrage.

The prospective bride has completed the details of her wedding, which will take place Saturday afternoon, June 28, at 4 o'clock. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Cameron Burrage, live at Candlewood Farm, in picturesque Ipswich, a seaside town near Boston. The ceremony will be performed at the Ascension Memorial Church there, the Rev. Richard A. Cartmell officiating.

Mrs. William B. Chace will be matron of honor, and the bridesmaids will be the Misses Diana Bird, Elizabeth Jenney, Anne C. Phillips and Lee Thacher. Miss Phillips is the daughter of the United States Ambassador to Italy and Mrs. William Phillips and the sister of Miss Beatrice Phillips, who has made her home in Washington for the last two winters.

Clay Frick, of Roslyn, Long Island, will serve as best man for Mr. Armour. His ushers include George Connett, of Morristown, N. J.; Augustus Paine, of New York; Tyson Gilpin, of Boyce, Va., Robert Bacon, William B. Chace and Cameron Burrage, of Boston.

A reception at Candlewood Farm will follow the ceremony. After a honeymoon in Canada, the couple will make their home in Princeton, N. J.

Cynthia Dunn Expected To Set Wedding Date Soon

Another prospective bride, Miss Cynthia Dunn, daughter of the James Clement Dunns, of Washington, is expected shortly to announce the date of her wedding to Alexander Cochrane, of Boston. Miss Dunn, who made her debut last summer, and her older sister, Countess Guy de Baillet Latour, will be off on Monday by car to spend the summer at Marion, Mass.

Two surprise weddings, both of which took place out of town on Thursday afternoon, are causing interest among members of Washington society. Both weddings were probably the quietest ceremonies of the month and the principals are former Washington residents.

No announcement of their engagement preceded the wedding in New York of Mrs. Martha Barclay Kountze Harrison to Dudley Phelps King Wood. Equally a surprise was that of Countess Miriam Sturgkh, of Washington and Paris, France, to Godfrey Twachtman, of Greenwick, Conn., which took place in Bridgeport, Conn.

Mrs. Wood lived in Washington when she was Mrs. Bernard J. Harrison, jr. She obtained a divorce from Mr. Harrison in Reno a little more than a fortnight ago. Mr. Wood, who made his home here until recently, was at one time assistant to Harry Hopkins in the Department of Commerce. A graduate of Harvard, class of 1929, he is now vice president of the American Export Airlines. He is the son of Mrs. G. Howard Davison and the late Arthur King Wood, of Philadelphia. His marriage to the former Miss Emilie Bruce Merriman, of Newport, ended in a Reno divorce six months ago. Mrs. Wood is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. de Lancey Kountze, of New York and Roslyn, Long Island.

Mrs. Twachtman Left France During Invasion

Mrs. Twachtman has lived an exciting life in Europe, leaving France during the German invasion. She is the daughter of the late J. Nota McGill, Washington patent attorney and vice president of the Union Trust Co., and Mrs. McGill. Her mother attended the ceremony, which took place quietly in Bridgeport, Conn., and has since returned to Haymarket, Va. She will visit there before going to join her son-in-law and daughter in Kansas City, where they will make their home.

Mrs. Twachtman's marriage to Count Sturgkh, an Austrian, was annulled several years ago. Mr. Twachtman is the son of the late John Henry Twachtman, the painter, and the late Mrs. Twachtman. He volunteered in the French army at the outbreak of the present war and served as a lieutenant in the 104th Colonial Artillery. He is a brother of Mrs. Twachtman Pell, Mrs. W. Edgar Baker, Col. J. Alden Twachtman, and Quentin Twachtman. He is now associated with the Remington Arms Co. in Kansas City.

Big Audience Is Assured At Water Gate

Although the opening of the National Symphony Orchestra's fifth season of Sunset Symphonies at the Potomac Water Gate is two weeks away, there is every evidence that the opening concert, on June 29, will have its traditionally brilliant audience. Dr. Hans Kindler, musical director of the summer concerts, will be at the podium.

Early reservations have been made for Elbert K. Burlew, assistant Secretary of the Interior; Paul V. McNutt, Federal Security Agency Administrator, and Mrs. McNutt; Sidney Hillman, associate director, OPM; Commissioner and Mrs. Melvin C. Hazen, Senator and Mrs. Pat McCarran, Representative Jennings Randolph, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Thomas Holcomb, Maj. Gen. George H. Brett, Maj. Ernest W. Brown, Mrs. Matthew John Whittall and Mrs. John L. Whitehurst.

Natalia Aszkenazy Hostess at Party; Diplomats Attend

At another in a series of informal parties that she is giving this season, Miss Natalia Aszkenazy entertained at cocktails yesterday afternoon.

From 5 to 7 o'clock a number of her friends, including a sizable section from the Diplomatic Corps, called at her apartment on Sixteenth Street. The hostess wore a frock of white crepe, cut on simple lines.

Among those present were Prince and Princess Hohenlohe, the Polish Counselor, Jan Drohojowski; Maj. and Mme. Dabroowolski, Capt. Karl Wessel, the Swedish Military Attache; the Norwegian Military Attache, Col. Oscar Klingenberg; the Swedish First Secretary and Mme. Sven Dahlman, the Cuban Counselor and Senora de Baron, Mr. and Mme. Hugo Gouthier, of the Brazilian Embassy, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kent, jr., and several others.

Mrs. A. M. Fox Gives Informal Luncheon

Mrs. A. Manuel Fox entertained at an informal luncheon yesterday in her Georgetown home in honor of Mrs. Albert E. Pappano, daughter of the United States Ambassador to Venezuela, Frank P. Corrigan, and Mrs. Corrigan.

Mr. Fox, who is now in Chungking, China, where he is the United States representative on the stabilization board for Chinese currency, knew the Corrigan family when he was in Caracas advising the Venezuelan government on economic matters. Mrs. Pappano, whose husband is with the State Department, plans to make her home in Washington.

Among the guests were Mrs. John C. McClintock, Mrs. Carl Whelan, Mrs. Frank Waring and Mrs. William Taylor, whose husband is also in Chungking serving with Mr. Fox.

Marion Thomas' Troth Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Le Roy Thomas announce the engagement of their daughter, Marion Whitehouse Thomas, to John A. Fischer, son of Mrs. Elenore Fischer, of Milwaukee, Wis.

Miss Thomas and Mr. Fischer are graduates of the University of Wisconsin. The wedding will take place late in the summer.

Livengood-Stiles Invitations Out

Mr. and Mrs. George Henry Stiles have issued invitations for the marriage of their daughter, Caroline Brown Stiles, to David Johnson Livengood on Saturday evening, June 28, at 8 o'clock.

The wedding will take place at the Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church. Following their wedding trip Mr. Livengood and and his bride will be at home after July 10 at 3006 Monument Avenue Richmond Va.

Brown–Bladen Nuptials Held

The wedding of Miss Zellah Mae Bladen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert F. Bladen, to A. Tolson Brown son of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Brown, took place yesterday afternoon at 5:30 at St. Gabriel's Church. The Rev. William J. Sweeney officiated.

The bride wore a gown of chiffon and lace with a long veil attached to a tiara of orange blossoms, and carried white roses and valley lilies.

Her matron of honor, Mrs. William C. Brown, wore a frock of pink lace and jersey.

The bridesmaids, Mrs. Rita B. Ahearn, Mrs. Evelyn I. McDermott, Mrs. Dorothy M. Latona and Mrs. Thelma F. Hoffer, were dressed in blue lace and jersey. All the attendants carried spring flowers. Little Nancy Edelen was flower girl, attired in a long white net dress with a matching hat.

John C. Brown, jr., was best man and the ushers were Albert F. Bladen, jr., William C. Brown, Randolph G. Brady and Arthur J. Hazes, George A. Brown was ring bearer.

A reception at the Admiral Club followed the ceremony. After a honeymoon at Lake George, the couple will live at 9002 Flower Avenue, Highland View, Silgo Park, Md.

Gisele Shaw In New York

Miss Gisele Shaw, who has been touring women's prisons under auspices of the Argentine Ministry of Justice, has arrived in New York for a stay. Elsa Maxwell, who is now giving her all for defense, was hostess at a luncheon for the distinguished Argentine visitor earlier this week.

The guests included Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed, Miss Mary Anita Loos, Mrs. Lytle Hull, Lady Ribblesdale, Sir Charles Mendl, John Gunther and Anne O'Hare McCormick.

Mrs. Rhodes Visits Her Parents Here

Mrs. Edward D. Rhodes of Tampa, Fla., will pass several weeks in Washington with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James M. Cathcart, at their home on Seaton Place. Her daughters, Maxine and Arlene, are with her.

Mrs. Rhodes, who, during the years she lived here, was active in radio script writing and dramatics, has continued her career in Tampa. After July 1 she will sojourn in Philadelphia with friends.

Horace Peterses Buy 200-Acre Farm in Maryland

Mr. and Mrs. Horace Peters have just bought a 200-acre farm in Maryland—complete with a herd of sheep and several cows. They hope to build a house there in the near future, for which Mrs. Peters will design the plans. She took a course in architecture before her marriage.

At the moment, there's a log cabin on the farm and Mr. and Mrs. Peters plan to spend their weekends there during the summer. The farm is in Howard County just beyond Olney.

Miss Betty Lyon Home From School

Miss Betty Lyon, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. James Alexander Lyon, has joined her parents at their home, Glenview Farm, in Rockville, after completing her term at the Westover school.

The Lyons had three house guests, all classmates of their daughter, who left for their homes yesterday. They are Miss Katherine Sutherland, of Wilmington, Del.; Miss Sally Mead, of Chicago, and Miss Mary Ann Grammar, of Buffalo.

Bolivian Envoy Will Entertain Andrew Donovan

The Bolivian Minister, Dr. Don Luis Fernando Guachalla, will entertain at a luncheon today at the legation on Kalorama Road.

Honor guest will be Andrew Donovan who has been assigned to serve as Secretary of the Embassy in Bogota, Columbia. He was formerly attached to the legation in Bolivia. Among the guests will be Lawrence Duggan, of the State Department.

Gen. Arnold Fetes Bowhill

Air Chief Marshal Sir Frederick Bowhill, who has just arrived in Washington from London, was guest of honor at a luncheon given by Maj. Gen. Henry H. Arnold, deputy chief of staff for air, in the Pan-American room of the Mayflower Hotel yesterday.

Others present included Assistant Secretary of War Robert A. Lovett, Assistant Secretary of Commerce Robert H. Hinckley, Air Vice Marshal G. B. A. Baker, Rear Admiral John H. Towers, Maj. Gen. Sir Frederick, who is stopping at the Mayflower, has been assigned to organize the flying of United States planes to Great Britain. He was formerly in charge of the coastal command of the air ministry in England.

Dinner Tonight Will Honor Miss Ridgely

Miss Mary Stuart Price will give a dinner tonight at the Army and Navy Country Club in honor of Miss Betty Supplee Ridgely, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chase Ridgley, of Baltimore. Miss Ridgley is spending the weekend here with Miss Price.

The guests tonight will be Taylor Birckhead, of Baltimore; William Folterall, of Philadelphia; Ensign John Stevens, of Annapolis; Baxter Prescott, Charles Grant, and the Misses Alice Angersoll and Suzanne Slingluff.

Miss Price has just returned from a visit to her cousins, Dr. and Mrs. Virgil Green Damon, at their country home, Many Waters, in Rockland County, New York. She plans to make her headquarters here for the summer, taking short trips from time to time.

Evelyn Nichol, Lieut. Twombly Wed at Ft. Myer

A military wedding, with the bridal couple leaving under the traditional arch of swords, was that yesterday at noon of Miss Evelyn Whalley Nichol to Lieut. John Fogg Twombly 3d. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Wallace Nichol, of Chevy Chase, and Mr. Twombly is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Claude M. Twombly, of Coeur d'Alene, Idaho.

The Fort Myer Chapel was the scene of the ceremony. Chaplain Ivan L. Bennett officiated in a setting of palms, ferns, white flowers and candles. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of tinted satin with a long, full train, a sweetheart neckline and a matching tinted tulle veil which fell from a coronet of orange blossoms. She carried gardenias and valley lilies.

Miss Nelle Caskie, of Chevy Chase, was maid of honor. She wore duckling yellow marquisette with a high neckline, a square lace yolk, and ruffles of the lace on the skirt. Her hat of yellow horsehair braid had matching tulle trimming and streamers and she carried an old-fashioned nosegay of garden flowers. The bridesmaids were the Misses Dorothy Grace Smith, of Brewster, Ohio; Saralee Gross, of Cumberland, Md., and Nancy Early, of Washington. They were dressed like the maid of honor in julep green and carried nosegays.

Lieut. Leslie H. Cross was best man and the ushers were Lieuts. Ralph L. Foster, Leo J. Nawn, George T. Pitts, Earle W. Kelly, Albert H. Hislip and Lanier D. Buford.

A reception at the Washington Golf and Country Club followed the ceremony. The bride's mother was gowned in heaven blue lace with a hat of toast-colored straw and a corsage of pale pink roses and forget-me-nots. Mrs. Twombly, sr., chose a navy blue sheer dress with a matching fitted coat. A large powder blue hat and a corsage of orchids completed her costume.

After a Southern wedding trip, Lieut. and Mrs. Twombly will reside at Fort Myer. The bride attended George Washington University, where she was a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma Fraternity. Lieut. Twombly attended the National University of Mexico and was graduated from Virginia Military Institute.

Mr. and Mrs. Tenney Are Now at Home In Providence

The bride is the former Miss Margaret Grey Carter, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Henry Holland Carter of Bloomington, Ind., and T... Tenney is the son of Mrs. Keeler Tenney of Washington.

The bride's only attendant was Miss Lenora Morgan, and Robert Hellendale was best man. The bride is a graduate of Oberlin College and of Simmons College, while her husband is an alumnus of the Asheville School and Oberlin College. He is now at Harvard Law School, where he is President of the Law Review. Mrs. Tenney is a direct descendant of John Paul Jones, and Mr. Tenney is directly descended from Thomas Dudley and Simon Bradstreet, colonial governors of Massachusetts.

Have-Fun Carnival Guests Eat 'Kentucky Burgoo' at Shouse's

Seventy gallons of "Kentucky burgoo," a mysterious looking, but delicious stew, were dished out for close to a thousand frolic-minded guests at the "Have Fun" carnival given last night at Wolf Trap Farm, Virginia home of Mr. and Mrs. Jouett Shouse.

Dozens of Virginia hams were spread out on long wooden tables set up on the rolling lawn of Wolf Trap. Hundreds of plates were smashed in the "breakatorium" by people who just felt like smashing things, and dozens of chances were sold on various articles. The money went to the Institute of Women's Professional Relations, in which Mrs. Shouse takes an active interest. The institute helps career-minded women find just the right job.

For several miles around the countryside near Wolf Trap the colored light of the outdoor dancing platform could be seen twinkling in the distance. A corps of pretty young women, wearing white dresses and pert red pill-box hats, served as "taxi dancers." They were headed by Mrs. Shouse's debutante daughter, Miss Joan Dodd, who recently joined her mother after the completion of her school year. The other dancers were the Misses Elaine Darlington, Pat Baker, Sita Finkenstaedt, Betty Stewart-Richardson, Patricia Prochnik, Margaret Gordon, Yolande Alfaro and Anne Bryan, and Mrs. Eugene Carusi, Mrs. B. Lauriston Hardin, Mrs. John de Sibour, Mrs. Edward Burling, jr., Mrs. F. Moran McConihe and Mrs. Igor Cassini.

Among the "divers diversions" offered to the guests was an exhibition match between ping pong experts Hal Crowell and Lamar Harper. Later the pair took on any challengers, giving them an eight point handicap. If the challengers won, they were paid double the price of their ping pong ticket.

Business Booms For Mint Julep Bar

A mint julep bar did a rushing business through the evening, presided over by well known Washingtonians wearing the traditional white jackets. The gentlemen dispensing liquid refreshments were Mr. Shouse, George Garrett, Charles Michaelson, Frank Waltman, Edgar Prochnik, Turner Catledge, Col. Robert Guggenheim, James Wright, Donald Downs, Dr. Edward Ellison and Commander Hamilton Bryan. Mrs. Arthur Woods was an attractive and energetic barmaid.

Senator Alben Barkley and "Chip" Robert were masters of ceremonies and barkers for the many attractions at the carnival. Lively Mrs. Robert helped auction off a bull terrier and a wire haired terrier—she's an ardent member of the Tail Wagers Club and was a natural for the job. Gordon Barton, president of the Washington Bulldog Club, presided over the auction.

Pretty cigarette girls hawked their wares for charity's sake. They were the Misses Betty Burton, Marianna Evans, Laura May Norris and Susan Oulahan.

'Policeman' Marshals Caravan of Cars

The hundreds of cars which formed a caravan on the Virginia roads leading to Wolf Trap were ably marshaled, after their owners had arrived at the farm, by a "policeman," Thomas Clagett. Young William Shouse served as his assistant.

Supper was served from 6:30 to 9, the famous burgoo being dispensed from an enormous iron pot over an outdoor fire. Mrs. Shouse, in a full-skirted printed frock, was here, there and everywhere seeing that things went smoothly. Dawn was near to breaking over the Virginia hills before the last guest went home, leaving a litter of paper plates and mint julep straws behind them.

Rivero Guest Of Cuban Envoy

Dr. Jose I. Rivero, director of the Cuban paper Diario de la Marima, was honor guest at a luncheon given yesterday by the Cuban Ambassador, Dr. Aurelio F. Concheso. Dr. Rivero will return to New York for a stay following his visit at the embassy with the Ambassador.

Guests yesterday included State Department officials and American journalists. They were Laurence Duggan, political adviser to the State Department; Philip Bonsal acting chief of the Division of American Republics; Dr. Jose de Baron, Minister Counselor of the Cuban Embassy; Dr. Vicente Valdes Rodriguez, counselor of the embassy; Dr. Nicholas Rivero, third secretary and nephew of the visitor; Brian Bell, Benjamin McKelway, Alexander F. Jones, Frank Waldrop, C. H. Stevenson, Richard Pattee, Dr. Ramiro Guerra, Cuban delegate to the American Economic and Financial Advisory Committee; Gould Lincoln, Barnet Nover, Harry Frantz, Bertram Hulen, Leon Pearson, Justin Franco, of New York, who is accompanying Dr. Rivero on his trip; S. B. Lyons, A. E. Stuntz, Bert Andrews and Alburn West.

Mr., Mrs. Haskell Are Taking Bridal Trip in the South

Mrs. Stanley Thomson Scofield, of 1633 New Hampshire Avenue, announces the marriage of her daughter, Katharine Heer, to George Brownfield Haskell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Bliss Haskell, of Washington. The ceremony took place on Thursday.

Mrs. Haskell attended Ohio Wesleyan, Northwestern and George Washington Universities, and is a member of Delta Gamma Sorority. Mr. Haskell attended George Washington University and Columbus University Law School. He is a member of Kappa Sigma fraternity.

After a short honeymoon in the South, the couple will live in Washington, where Mr. Haskell is connected with the Office of Production Management.

Mrs. Rowland Plans Trip to Maine

Mrs. Henry Rowland and her daughter, Miss Diana Rowland, will leave early next month for their summer home on Witch Island, Me.

Miss Rowland recently has entered the social secretarial field and is serving as assistant to Mrs. Nathan Wyeth. She is carrying on part of Mrs. Wyeth's work now that the latter has gone to Bar Harbor for the rest of the summer.

21 Working Girls Study Labor Aims

Young Students From Other Cities Forego Vacations to Enroll In Institute Classes

By Lucia Giddens

Twenty-one girls who work in factories and offices gave up part of their annual vacations to come to Washington this week to attend an Institute on Industry as students.

At the National Catholic School of Social Service, where the institute is held, the girls yesterday discussed labor legislation and individuals responsibility for exercising an intelligent voice in the labor movement.

Secretary of Labor Perkins had spoken at the session the previous evening on social and industrial measures that have become effective during this Administration, but the visitors were not too awed, in their first encounter with a Cabinet member, to direct numerous questions at the speaker.

But yesterday the girls passed much of their time listening to each other—getting the varied viewpoints of a paper bag worker of Toledo, member of a union affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, and from a bakery employe of New York City who is a member of a C. I. O. union, among others. They grouped themselves on the sunlit lawn at the school, 2400 Nineteenth Street Northwest, and talked.

Need For Labor Unity

"We'd like to see more unity in the labor movement," said Rita Crippen, who came from Toledo, her blue eyes as earnest as her words. She had just described her own work as the process of "going all through the private life of a paper bag" in a manufacturing plant.

"Of course we're idealistic about the unity we want to see. But one has to aim high to get what one wants," she said, with the conviction of a 22-year-old girl who has passed two realistic years as a paper bag maker.

Miss Crippen is taking time out from her factory work for a week at the institute. Dorothea Gorman, of New York City, who at 22 is manager of a neighborhood bakery, is devoting her vacation to study of labor problems. Josephine Fanelli, of Cleveland, a garment worker, who joined in the discussion on the lawn, said she took advantage of a lay-off to come to the institute.

The girls are following the serious discussions with an interest that surprises the leaders. Between lectures they are supposed to have a 10 minute recess, "but I usually have to remind them the bell has rung," said Miss Linna E. Bressette, institute instructor.

For some of the girls who could not meet the expenses of attending the institute, scholarships have been provided, largely by industrial committees of the Council of Catholic Women.

From Many Jobs

The 21 young women, whose average age is 22 years, include laundry workers, factory workers, shipping clerks, typists and stenographers. Only one of the group resides in Washington.

Miss Bressette, who is field secretary of the social action department of the National Catholic Welfare Conference, has challenged the visiting group to remember that "you have a voice in regulating your own conditions of work, and that voice should be intelligent. You have a responsibility for helping to shape policies and set standards.

"The renewal of the Christian spirit and the reform of the social order go hand in hand."

Dr. George Brown, of Catholic University, lectured yesterday on the National Labor Relations Act. After luncheon, with a group of visiting social workers from Latin America, the institute pupils visited the Women's Bureau in the Department of Labor.

The institute will conclude today. The instructors have included the Rev. R. A. McGowan, assistant director of the social action department of the National Catholic Welfare Conference, and Sister Vincent Ferrer, O. P., of Rosary College, River Forest, Ill.

Registered at the institute were Martha Young, Dorothy Jacobs and Rita Crippen, of Toledo; Helen Hoover, Lakewood, Ohio; Josephine Spara and Genevieve Jannazo, Cleveland; Lenore Kulnane, Painesville, Ohio; Gwen Fleming, Ione Reuter, Veronica Forbes, Justine L'Esperance, Lucy Aurell and Helen O'Malley, of Detroit; Dolores O'Hara, Virginia Darby and Audrey Smith, New York City; Laverne Virginia Shea and Rosemary Leikert, Staten Island, N. Y., and Jacqueline Brophy, Washington.

Girls Talk Labor Problems at Institute

Three of the young women at an Institute on Industry yesterday talked over workers' problems, between lectures, on the lawn of the National Catholic School of Social Service. They are (left to right) Dorothea Gorman, New York City, manager of a neighborhood bakery; Josephine Fanelli, Cleveland, garment worker; Rita Crippen, Toledo, a paper-bag worker

Chevy Chase Club to Meet

The Woman's Club of Chevy Chase, Md., has been called to a meeting by the president, Mrs. Henry Adams, at 10:30 a. m. Thursday at the clubhouse, to take action on its proposed defense program.

Mrs. Edgar Fowler, second vice president, has been named defense chairman. The board will bring to the meeting its report on proposed activities.

Meanwhile, the club's Red Cross unit, organized at its last meeting, is functioning with Mrs. Joseph T. Maguire as chairman. More than 100 members have already enrolled in the various groups, Mrs. Edwin Hahn is in charge of knitting; Mrs. Alton P. Tisdell, sewing; Mrs. John Beveridge, jr., surgical dressings.

A first-aid group, of which Mrs. Arthur B. Hayes, jr., is chairman, is now being organized.

Wilson Chapter Will Entertain D. A. R. Officers

Eleanor Wilson Chapter will entertain the State officers of the Daughters of the American Revolution at a garden card party, at the home of Mrs. John R. Grunwell, 3311 North Glebe Road, Arlington, next Saturday at 2 o'clock.

Mrs Harry C. Oberholser, Mrs. Howard L. Hodgkins, Miss Lillian Chenoweth and Mrs. Charles Carroll Haig will be the honor guests.

Plans are being arranged by Mrs. George F. Warner, Mrs. Guy Mason and Mrs. Robert Van Denbergh. The proceeds will go towards the D. A. R. camp fund.

Job's Daughters To Meet Today

The annual grand council session of the Order of Job's Daughters for the State of Virginia, will be held today at the George Washington Masonic National Memorial in Alexandria.

Mrs. Elizabeth L. Warden, of Owasso, Mich., past supreme guardian of the International Order of Job's Daughters, will be special guest.

Delegates are expected from Richmond, Norfolk, Portsmouth, Newport News, Roanoke, Vienna, Arlington and Alexandria.

At the afternoon session, officers will be elected. The banquet will be held at 6 o'clock tonight at the George Mason Hotel, with installation to follow at 8:30. The entertainment program is under the direction of Mrs. Katherine Cross, vice grand guardian. Beatrice A. H. Ross, of Portsmouth, is grand guardian.

19 D. C. Girl Scout Mariners To Sail Ship on 10-Day Cruise

Nineteen senior Girl Scout-mariners and three adult skippers, all from the District and area, sailed yesterday from the yacht club at the foot of Duke of Gloucester Street, Annapolis, aboard the three-masted schooner William J. Stanford for a ten-day cruise through Chesapeake Bay and along the Eastern Shore of Maryland.

Mrs. W. M. Kiplinger, acting commissioner of the Girl Scouts of the District, was honor guest at a short ceremony before the sailing.

Local Girl Scout officials emphasized the fact that this is not a luxury cruise. The girls will do all the work aboard ship except prepare the meals. They will swab the decks, haul the sails, learn to handle the wheel, ropes and sails, keep a log, chart a course and navigate. They will stand regular watches and will practice knots and splicing. Instruction will be given by Capt. Edward Kelly, master of the schooner.

The director of the cruise, Mrs. William T. Cameron, 5407 Macomb Street, recently completed a skipper's course at the Mariner Sailing Camp, Fairhaven, N. J. Assisting here are Mrs. Frances Cahen, first mate and purser, and Miss Carman Billington, second mate, both of Arlington.

In preparation for the cruise the girls have taken a pilot course under the direction of the Potomac River Power Squadron.

Shore Visits Planned

The cruise itinerary includes visits ashore to the Chesapeake Bay Marine Laboratory at Solomons Island, the State House at St. Marys City, and Tangier Island. On the return trip the girls will put in at Cambridge, St. Michaels, Betterton and Fort McHenry, returning to Annapolis June 30 or July 1, depending on wind and weather.

Mrs. Cameron describes the training as designed to make the girls self-reliant and to teach them to obey orders instantly in an emergency. When off duty, they will learn international signal flag code, fog signals and other requirements for higher ratings.

Mickey Mattare and Ginger Wakeman, two of the crew, will work toward the rank of "old salt," the highest rating a mariner can receive, and one that is possessed by only four or five girls in the country.

The 19 girls who compose the crew are members of two ships (troops) in the District, the Constellation and the Vandelia. The girls from the Constellation are Betty Wright, Florence Porter, Ginger Wakeman, Helen Almy, Mickey Mattare, Betty Jo Kurz, Peggy Randall, Kitty Holman and Dorothy Craig.

The girls from the ship Vandelia are Emilie Martinsky, Elsie Anderson, Rosemary Reid, Helen Kime, Jocelyn Rogers, Charlotte Theiss, Nancy Jacobson, Kitty Evans, Gloria Kohler and Barbara Wiley.

Rance Spitler, son of Mrs. Rebecca Spitler, who directed five previous cruises, accompanied the mariners as cabin boy, or, as the girls put it, to "step and fetch it."

"Happy," a colored cook from the Naval Academy, is in the galley.

Contact will be made each night with the District Girl Scout headquarters for the convenience of parents wishing to send messages to their daughters.

William T. Cameron, chief safety adviser of the Labor Department, gave the schooner a final inspection and bade his wife and the members of her crew "bon voyage." Others at the ceremonies were Mrs. Amos S. Fries, Mrs. Gerrit S. Miller, jr., Mrs. J. P. Leake, Mrs. Gertrude Bowman and Mrs. Edward M. Webster, members of the District Council of Girl Scouts; Mrs. Eugene Boyer, international friendship chairman of District Five, and friends and members of the Mariners' families.

Madame Chairman

A picnic supper with many attractions in addition to food will be provided for members and friends of the Goodwill Industries, June 30, at Prevention Oak, the country estate of Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Roth, Rockville, Md.

After the supper at 6 o'clock group singing around the camp fire and an auction of "white elephant" articles will be featured. A visit to the greenhouses and gardens also will be on tap.

W. Harold Snape, director of Goodwill Industries, announces that proceeds of the evening will help finance the making of several hundred feet of colored motion pictures, showing the activities of the Industries. The pictures will be presented to inform groups about the organization's program of providing work opportunities for handicapped persons.

Hosts assisting Mr. and Mrs. Roth will be Mrs. Charles H. Ruth and Mrs. Elizabeth W. Murray, Mrs. Karl Fenning, Mrs. Howard G. Nichols and Mrs. Stanley C. Sears, of the Industries' group of trustees.

PLAYS FOR CHILDREN—The Children's Theater has lined up plays ranging from "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch" to "The Sleeping Beauty" for its next season, starting in October, at the National Theater. Ruth Tice Walters announces with gay green and yellow folders.

Other plays in the series will be "Little Women," "Penrod," "Toby Tyler, or Ten Weeks with the Circus," and "Poor Little Rich Girl." The series is being brought here by the Clare Tree Major Children's Theater of New York.

A poster contest for boys and girls of 8 to 12 years of age in the District, Maryland and Virginia, is announced by the Children's Theater here, with entries to be submitted by August 1 to local art centers at playground, neighborhood house or art school. The judges will be Edward Rowan, Paul Arit and Robert Gates.

CHECK FOR CAMP—The local chapter of the National Home for Jewish Children in Denver has presented a $300 check to the Center Camp for underprivileged children of the District.

The making of the gift was a feature of a luncheon this week, given by Mrs. Doris Samakov, president of the chapter, for board members, who include Mrs. F. Hall, Mrs. E. Harper, Mrs. L. Gossin and Mrs. M. Lyons.

FISHING AT CLUBHOUSE—Members of the Women's Auxiliary, Izaak Walton League, from Washington and Brunswick, Md., will be guests of the Rockville, Md., chapter at a picnic and fishing partly at its clubhouses at Violet Lock today.

$800,000,000 More Excise Taxes Sought

With the $3,500,000,000 tax bill more than two-thirds complete, the House Ways and Means Committee next week will search out more than $800,000,000 in new excises to round out its bill before the holidays.

The committee yesterday was in recess, but influential members predicted the group will fasten heavy excises to all articles in competition with defense, such as automobiles, refrigerators and other mechanical devices.

This course was recommended by Leon Henderson, defense price administrator, and his views appeared prevailing over the lighter spread of excises asked by the Treasury.

The Treasury asked only a 7 per cent tax on automobiles, for example, while Henderson asked 20. Some favored a committee compromise on 10 or 12 per cent.

Members representing sections producing already heavily taxed gasoline, beer and tobacco particularly were espousing the Henderson case against further excises on such items not competing with defense industry. Others feared that the $1,000,000,000 revenue still needed after individual and corporate surtaxes and excess profits tax schedules were approved may force the committee to dig deeply all along the line.

Before attacking excises, the committee will dispose of proposed new taxes on gifts and estates, but at most members expected only about $150,000,000 from this source. The Treasury recommended $350,000,000 in estate and gift taxes, higher than the British rates. Committeemen generally have balked at this figure and indications were they would more than halve the amount asked by the Treasury from this source.

If the committee encounters difficulty in raising the billion balance needed, one member said they might turn again to individual and corporate taxes which have only been "tentatively" approved.

Frank Greenawalt To Be Buried At Arlington

Frank Foster Greenawalt, Spanish-American War veteran and retired Commerce Department employe, died yesterday at Mount Alto Hospital after a brief illness. He was 74.

A native of Indiana, Mr. Greenawalt came to Washington as a young man and, at the outbreak of the Spanish War, he joined Company C of the D. C. Infantry, first Washington volunteer unit, and served in the Philippines.

Shortly after his return from the war, Mr. Greenawalt took a position in the chief clerk's office, Department of Commerce, and remained there until he was retired in 1933.

Mr. Greenawalt's wife, the former Maude Westcott Libscomb, of Washington, died in 1931.

Funeral services and burial will be held today at Arlington National Cemetery at 10 a. m.

Mrs. Nettie Kolb's Funeral Rites Set for Tomorrow

Funeral services for Mrs. Nettie M. Kolb, 78, will be held at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Charles Birckhead, 1215 Farragut Street Northwest, at 7:30 p. m. today. Mrs. Kolb will be buried in the Mount Olivet Cemetery in Frederick, Md., tomorrow.

Mrs. Kolb died Thursday following a three-year illness. She was born in Frederick, but has lived in Washington for 54 years. For the last five years she has resided with Mrs. Birckhead.

Mrs. Kolb was the widow of Oliver G. Kolb, and was a member of St. Paul's Methodist Church. In addition to Mrs. Birckhead, she leaves two other daughters, Mrs. J. H. Benard and Mrs. Guy Harris, both of this city, and two sisters, Mrs. John Thompson, of Wilmington, Del., and Mrs. William Miller, of Frederick, Md.

Baby Incubator Equipment Given To Freedmen's

America's first station for premature babies, staffed exclusively by colored physicians and nurses was formally donated to Freedmen's Hospital yesterday by A. E. Lichtman, owner of a chain of Washington theaters, at ceremonies at the hospital.

Dr. T. Edward Jones received the equipment, which includes seven baby incubators and one portable ambulance incubator, and is valued at more than $5,000.

4 Radio Heads Oppose FCC's Proposed Rules

By the Associated Press

Four operators of independent radio stations voiced opposition yesterday to the communication commission's new chain broadcasting rules, but an executive of a Baltimore station supported the regulations and contended the chains had been "coercing" their affiliates.

Hope H. Barroll, jr., executive manager of WFBR at Baltimore, testified before the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee that he had received what he considered a "veiled threat" from an official of the National Broadcasting Co. that his station might be transferred from N. B. C.'s "red" network to what he said was the less lucrative "blue" because of a disagreement over use of time.

As a result, Barroll said his station cleared time for an N. B. C. commercial program by shifting a local-interest program it had been broadcasting for several years.

WFBR will change over to the Mutual Broadcasting System October 1, Barroll added.

The Senate committee is holding hearings on a resolution by Senator White (Republican), Maine, to suspend the new regulations pending an investigation of the radio industry. The new rule, among other things, would bar the optioning of time by local stations to the chains and would require N.B.C. to dispose of one of its networks.

While Barroll approved them, Charles P. Hasbrook, owner of WCAX at Burlington, Vt., expressed fear that the regulations might lead Columbia Broadcasting System to discontinue its present contract with WCAX.

The station could not pay in cash, Hasbrook testified, for the telephone line charges involved in bringing chain programs in from Albany—a charge that it now meets by yielding time to C. B. S.

Senator Bone (Democrat), Washington, expressed amazement when Hasbrook said that his telephone line costs ran somewhere between $7,500 and $10,000 yearly, and another witness—J. W. Lee, manager of KGFF at Shawnee, Okla.,—testified that his station had paid $5.20 per mile per month rent for a Class "C" line to pipe in Mutual programs.

Funeral Today For C. G. Lennon, School Custodian

Funeral services for Charles G. Lennon, 54, a District school custodian who died Wednesday at his home, 1611 T Street Southeast, will be held at 2 p. m. today at the home of his sister-in-law, Mrs. John R. Coon, 1534 Ridge Place Southeast. Burial will be in Bethel Cemetery in Alexandria, Va.

A lifelong resident of Washington, Mr. Lennon had for several years been custodian of the B. B. French School at Seventh and G Streets Southeast. He died as a result of a heart ailment after several weeks' illness, members of his family said.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Marie Louise Grimm Lennon, and two daughters, Mrs. Marjorie Dixon and Mrs. Jessie Thomas, of Washington. He also leaves three grandchildren.

Havana's 400 Has the Boot Poised for Carol and Lupescu

By Inez Robb

International News Service Staff Writer

Havana, June 20.—It's an exhilarating privilege for a commoner and a democrat to be able to call a king a cad. Even if the privilege is only exercised in private, it's still soul-satisfying.

In the meantime, Havana's 400, including the small socialite American colony, feel that His Majesty, King Carol is a bit of a cad, egad, in his treatment of Mme. Lupescu.

It would solve a great many social headaches here if only His Majesty would either (1) marry madame or (2) announce their marriage if, in fact, they have been married since 1929 as persistent and reliable reports insist.

That would give madame a definite status and admit her into circles where His Majesty may freely circulate, but which will be barred to her forever in her present state.

The Havana Country Club, one of the most exclusive social organizations in this beautiful city, has already sent His Majesty a guest card, as it would to any other distinguished visitor.

But it sent none to Mme. Lupescu. The country club, which ordinarily would have sent a card around immediately to a man of Carol's eminence, hesitated a full week. It hopefully gave him that period in which to clarify madame's status.

Cubans are the kindest and most hospitable people in the world. Those who have seen Mme. Lupescu have been impressed with the dignity with which she accepts her position. They have not wanted to deliver the snub direct, as the Havana Country Club eventually did.

The Havana Yacht Club, equally as swank and snooty as the country club, will follow suit. The elite Jaimanitis-Biltmore Club will doubtless do likewise. Havana's "old guard," the stanch rich and religious families, control these clubs. Never in the past have they hesitated to give the bum's rush to the most rich and powerful Cubans who have dared believe they could bring an "undesirable personality" within the portals.

Royalty is no novelty to Havana's cafe group, unless, of course, it is solvent royalty. In this class Carol is preeminent. After all, a member of the Havana cafe set married the late heir apparent to the erstwhile Spanish throne.

Countess Cavadonga, once wife of the late Prince of the Asturias, is still a reigning Havana belle. Those were in the days when the count, as he called himself, was broke and beggared in Havana and before he died in a Miami dawn auto wreck with a night club hat-check girl by his side.

In the meantime, however, His Majesty and Mme. Lupescu have shown no inclination to crash any degree of Havana's "400." So far they have shown not the slightest interest in Havana's famed night life. They have kept strictly to themselves, lunching and dining at the Nacional with Col. Urdarianu.

Contract Bridge

Olympic entrants who played the North-South cards found a severe test in defending today's hand. Par was to defeat West's three-no-trump contract with the opening lead of the club jack.

Today's Hand

Neither Side Vulnerable

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♣	1 ♡	Pass	1 ♠
Pass	1 N.T.	Pass	2 N.T.
Pass	3 N.T.	Pass	Pass

Opening lead—♣ J.

The play is put squarely up to South, who must prove himself both shrewd and skillful to escape from a squeeze which will crush his hand. He must hold off with the club ace and then discard it to prevent the squeeze and retain an exit card should he be poked in the lead toward the end. If he takes his club ace early or fails to discard it later, he will be forced to give up a trick in hearts or spades.

Here is the play: The club jack is opened, and South correctly lets it ride to one of North's stoppers, playing the club eight to show his partner he likes the suit. Declarer will immediately set about establishing the diamonds and South will find himself in the lead again with the diamond ace. His safe exit is the club deuce, forcing out West's last stopper but leaving him with a loser in the suit. Declarer can do no better now than to run the diamonds, and here South must make his curcial discard. He can, of course, throw the low spade on the third round of diamonds, but the fourth round offers more difficulty. To let go a heart is out of the question, for West will then win four tricks in the suit. To throw the spade queen will result in declarer's establishing one of dummy's honors for the ninth trick. To toss the seven of clubs will put South in an end play which will require him to lead from his ace, queen of spades.

Trusting his partner for the club ten, he can sidestep the trap and release the pressure on his cards by discarding the club ace. Now if declarer attempts to put him in the lead a club will throw the play to his partner.

With this defense West will have to concede four tricks, winning two clubs, three diamonds and three hearts.

Senate Passes $936,390,000 Relief Fund

By the Associated Press

Without a record vote, the Senate approved yesterday a relief fund of $936,390,000 for the fiscal year beginning July 1 but ignored President Roosevelt's request for elimination of a number of existing restrictions on WPA.

The measure now goes back to the House for consideration of $89,485,000 of Senate increases as well as numerous other amendments.

Both the Senate and House approved the $875,000,000 asked by the President to provide WPA jobs for an estimated 1,000,000 persons during the 12 months beginning July 1. This was a sharp reduction below the $1,381,000,000 available for WPA during the present fiscal year when an average of 1,700,000 persons were employed.

WPA headquarters already has notified State and local offices that some 400,000 persons must be dropped from relief jobs by the first week in July.

Lasser Ban Upheld

Just before final Senate action on the bill, Senator Murray (Democrat, of Montana, sought to remove a provision, inserted by the House, forbidding continued WPA employment of David Lasser, former head of the Workers Alliance, an organization of unemployed persons. Lasser is now on WPA's pay roll as an inspector at $4,400 a year.

Senator Adams, Democrat, of Colorado, floor manager for the bill, objected, asserting that Lasser, while spokesman for the Workers Alliance, had "insulted members of Congress" and was an "improper man to serve in a responsible Government position."

At this point, Senator Glass (Democrat), of Virginia, who apparently had not caught Lasser's name in the Adams-Murray exchange, asked if the Colorado Senator was referring to Howard Hunter, WPA Administrator.

A voice vote upheld the House provision prohibiting employment of Lasser.

Restriction Removal Urged

President Roosevelt, in a Congressional message, suggested removal of numerous restrictions in the present relief program, including the "rotation" provision requiring discharge of persons continuously on WPA for 18 months.

The Senate, however, inserted a provision granting preference to those certified for WPA jobs and unable to get them for three months over those who had been employed 18 months.

Both the House and Senate ignored the President's requests: To eliminate a check-up on WPA employes at least every 12 months; to remove a ban on employment of aliens; to remove a ban on civil service status for WPA administrative employes, and to eliminate "political abuse" penalties now covered by the Hatch and similar acts.

Last Rites Monday For Dr. B. F. Bryan, Adventist Leader

Funeral services for Dr. B. Franklin Bryan, 67, who died suddenly Thursday at his home, 1-D Parkway Road, Greenbelt, Md., will be held at the Takoma Park Seventh Day Adventist Church, where Dr. Bryan had preached for 16 years, on Monday, at 2:30 p. m. Interment will be at Fort Lincoln Cemetery.

A native of Aberdeen, Scotland, Dr. Bryan was graduated from Oxford University and came to this country as a young man, and settled in California. He came to Washington in 1919 to take up his duties as pastor of the Takoma Park church, and continued in that position until 1935, when he retired. Since 1935 he had lived in California and Florida, and had recently returned to the Washington area.

Dr. Bryan leaves a widow, Mrs. Henrietta Bryan; three daughters, Mrs. Mildred B. Sheriff, Mrs. Beryl B. McGuire and Mrs. Jean Willis, and two grandsons, Bryan Keith Gamble and Thomas Bryan McGuire, all of Washington.

Waltons to Meet

The Rockville Chapter of the Izaak Walton League and the women's auxiliary will hold a joint meeting at the chapter's lodge at Seneca, Md., this afternoon and evening. Dr. E. Russell Cook, of the Rockville chapter, is scheduled to give a talk on the early history of the Chesapeake & Ohio Canal, and members of the Washington chapter are also on the program for addresses.

Nelson B. Bell About the Showshops

"One Night in Lisbon" Is Packed With Laughs

Madeleine Carroll and Fred MacMurray Outdo Themselves in Bright Comedy at the Earle; Stage Bill Boasts Three Standard Acts

A LITTLE MORE DARING, in both lines and situations, than any of their earlier costarring vehicles, "One Night in Lisbon," the new Madeleine Carroll-Fred MacMurray romantic comedy at the Earle, provides at least a laugh a minute. There are no blushes mixed up with the laughs, because the action is motivated by impulses that may be brisk and brash, but, at the same time, are disarming, honest and innocuous as the whole thing turns out.

In fashioning her screen play vaguely upon the basis of John van Druten's stage comedy of "There's Always Juliet," Virginia Van Upping has contrived a fast-moving "boy-meets-girl" frolic in which an American flier, ferrying bombers to Britain, almost overnight woos and wins a beautiful young woman whom he meets in an otherwise deserted bomb shelter. She long since has been less ardently courted by a reticent and punctiliously proper young commander in the English navy. The whirlwind Texan breezes them both off their conventional British feet in practically nothing, flat.

Comedy Overshadows "Propaganda"

While "One Night in Lisbon" has its locale in wartime London and only reaches the city of the title for its final sequences, it successfully evades any charge of being a "propaganda" film. It was aimed primarily at high-pressure, adult amusement and hits its target with sharpshooter accuracy. There is, to be sure, a touch of thwarted espionage at the end and patriotic sentiments bob up now and again throughout the developments, but the romantically comic aspects of the story always come first.

Miss Carroll and the impudently persistent MacMurray have never played quite so well together. The sharp contrast drawn between the aristocratic young Briton, chauffeuring a high State official as her bit in the war, and the lanky American, whose chief aim is immediacy, adds immensely to the unfailing "punch" of the comedy—especially when counterpointed by the hopelessly futile propriety of John Loder's infatuated seadog. Edmund Gwenn, as the perceptive official, who lays the spy trap for the picture's climax; Patricia Morison, a former wife of the impetuous airman; Dame May Whitty, a particularly ubiquitous maid and chaperon; Billie Burke, as a helpful expatriated American, and Reginald Denny, as head of the German secret agents, are among those who respond most effectively to Producer-Director Edward H. Griffith's lively direction.

Moves at Speedy Clip

There is no dearth of movement in the progress of the film. It is found possible, with no stretch of plausibility, to route the action through London bomb raids, night clubs and war offices to its final destination in Lisbon. Once Portugal is reached and Dwight Houston and Leonora Perrycoste have managed hotel accommodations for their one night of romance before the clipper takes off for America, Leonora's bedchamber becomes the rendezvous for practically all the characters of importance in the play.

In one of the night club scenes, the crowd stands and sings "There Will Always Be an England." If that be propaganda, make the most of it. It is probably precisely what would have happened, even with the bombs dropping precariously close.

The stage bill at the Earle this week is not quite so pretentious as usual. It is inaugurated by Jo Lombardi's orchestra, with Eileen Ritter doing nicely with that "Hut-Zut" vocal tomfoolery, followed by the Roxyettes in their "Heaven Scent" number. Heaven didn't quite succeed in sending the scent to the loge seat we were occupying at yesterday's first performance. Then come the Stuart Morgan Dancers, whose adagio feats are still the best of their kind; Romo Vincent, a rotund comedian with a dramatic tenor voice which he puts to flippant uses, and Paul Remos and his two Lilliputian partners in acrobatic, balancing and comedy tricks. The Roxyettes fill in the chinks, notably with their fencing number. The newsreel is interesting, but isn't necessary to complete an entertainment that already is plenty good enough.

Is Portugal Always Like This?

FRED MacMURRAY AND MADELEINE CARROLL costarred once again in Paramount's production of "One Night in Lisbon," the current screen attraction at the Earle Theater. In the supporting cast are such noted players as Billie Burke, Dame May Whitty, Patricia Morison, Edmund Gwenn and Billy Gilbert

Jerome Kern's 'Sunny' Stars Anna Neagle on Keith's Screen

By Richard L. Coe

Jerome Kern, co-Pericles with George Gershwin of Musical Comedy's Golden Age, is the hero of Keith's new "Sunny," though he's not to be found on the cast sheet. The lovely songs he wrote for the Marilyn Miller musical of—catch your breath—16 years ago are as lilting as ever, are exceptionally well recorded and still make you whistle as you leave the theater. At which point our admiration for the new film ceases.

"Sunny" is the third of the popular musical comedies of what is reluctantly referred to as "the past" to be revived for the screen by England's Anna Neagle and Herbert Wilcox, her director. As in "Irene" and "No, No, Nanette," they show the same tenderness for past greatness they evoked for the Queen Victoria films. What was a virtue for the Victoria biographies, however, has become a deadly drug in a metier whose essence is buoyancy and wit.

It isn't that they've stuck slavishly to the original of the Harbach-Hammerstein book, which, as we recall it, concerned a circus girl, a rich boy, a Long Island estate and a palatial ship. They've inserted the romance of the bareback rider and society heir into the brightness of New Orleans at Mardi Gras time and brought it up to date with a streamlined circus. But all the tiresome cliches of musical comedy tradition are solemnly reversed in this dark day whose single enlightenment has been a sensible revolution in musical comedy plots. Boy meets girl, loses girl, gets girl with even more certainty than Joe Louis defends his heavyweight title.

Director-Producer Wilcox and RKO-Radio have spared no expense in making "Sunny" an opulent and shiny production. The lovely Anna Neagle is exactly that; she lacks completely the ebullience of the unforgettable Marilyn Miller. Her grace is too posed, her smile too studied.

The amusing Ray Bolger has some pleasant sequences in the role created by another great dancer, the late Jack Donahue, while the lively Hartmans, Paul and Grace, bring a lusty humor to their burlesque dances, especially in the "Two Little Bluebirds" number. Clifton Webb and Mary Hay made so merry, Helen Westley is fine, though familiar, as the matriarch of the bluebloods, but Edward Everett Horton is downright irritating with his unvarying double takes. John Carroll plays opposite Miss Neagle and is able enough in a purely traditional role.

But, as we've said, Mr. Kern's music is the raison d'etre for "Sunny" and to many that will be enough. "Who?" "Sunny" and "D'ya Love Me?" still sparkle in their own loveliness and are engagingly, if not outstandingly sung by Miss Neagle and Carroll.

The first Mickey Mouse cartoon Walt Disney has presented in some time, "The Little Whirlwind," is not the master at his best and the newsreels continue their emphasis on the nosedive civilization's been taking.

LEONARD LYONS

Cupid and the Ring

Billy Conn came to Lindy's, after his fight Wednesday night, accompanied by his manager, Johnny Ray. Ray stated that Conn had lost four pounds in weight the night before the fight—after he had read the father of his fiancee objected to the wedding and wouldn't permit it . . . Irving Berlin's newest song is called "When This Crazy World Is Sane Again" . . . Within the next few days the President will have legislation to make price control effective . . . Ferenc Molnar, the Hungarian playwright, is going to Canada shortly, then return to this country under the quota and apply for American citizenship . . . Tom Girdler's private plane no longer belongs to him. It was requisitioned by the Government.

IRVING BERLIN

An auction of original paintings was held at the recent convention of the leftist organization, the League of American Writers. Almost 100 of the left-wing artists contributed their work in this fund-raising effort . . . The auctioneer put up one painting after another—and kept crying for bids—but there was no response from the crowd . . . In desperation, he asked William Gropper, the artist, to take over the auction block. Gropper mounted the stand, then looked around. "No wonder nobody is bidding," he explained. "The only people here are the artists who donated their work. And the only reason they came, was not to bid, but to see how much their own painting would bring."

Thomas Benton's art students, who resigned in protest from the Kansas City Art Institute, are establishing a cooperative school there—and insisting that Benton be their teacher . . . Floyd Odlum is still in Canada, where his wife, Jacqueline Cochran, took off to ferry a bomber to Britain—the plan which was revealed here in May . . . Heywood Broun, jr., is going into the Army . . . Next season the circus won't have to use any railroad cars. Norman Bel Geddes has designed circus wagons whose wheels are fitted to the size of railroad tracks . . . At the Overseas Press Club a veteran Army officer relayed to them this mellowed advice: "In the Army, the best thing is to keep your eyes open, mouth shut—and never volunteer."

Mabel Boll, the diamond queen, came to town wearing an 80-carat diamond, an emerald which was almost as large as her middle finger and a 40-carat sapphire . . . Her hat consisted of but two tiny roses, sewn together . . . Mabel met Mae Murray, the screen star, who gasped at the jewelry display. "Frankly, I don't think I'm dressed correctly," Mabel confessed. "I think my hat should be the size of my diamonds, and the diamonds should be the size of my hat" . . . "Yeah," agreed Miss Murray, who looked pretty in a large straw hat, and whose left hand was adorned by a small ring. "Yeah," she agreed. "That goes for me, too."

All the Hollywood stars who play gangster roles will appear together, on the Defense-Bonds radio show. The broadcast playlet will have them all collaborating in the robbery of one bond—a vain gesture, they will explain, because a hot defense bond can't be sold . . . The after-the-fight business in the night clubs Wednesday night was the largest ever recorded . . . One of America's best known pacifist writers is enlisting in the Army . . . Jack and Charlie's 21 Club is negotiating for a branch in Washington . . . The second-year class at Fordham Law School invited Margie Hart, the strip teaser, to attend the dance as queen of the annual prom. Miss Hart gave them her customary reply: "Sorry; can't come. I've nothing to wear."

Mayor LaGuardia's office in Washington was designed to suit his preferences—a few days before the announcement was made that he had accepted the home defense job . . . A Secret Service official in Washington telephoned one of the operatives stationed in New York: "I want you to get into the mayor's office at City Hall," was the assignment, "and get me a description of his office—the color of the walls, the kind of desk he likes, and the size of the chair. We want to find out whether he likes his feet to dangle, when he's in the chair, or whether they rest on the floor" . . . "Why not ask the mayor about it?" suggested the New York operative . . . "Oh, no, we couldn't do that," was the Washington reply. "He might think it's silly."

The featured singer with Guy Lombardo's orchestra is 27-year-old Kenny Gardner. Gardner first met Lombardo in a Hollywood diner, four years ago—when he worked behind the counter, and waited on the band leader.

'Shining Victory,' at the Met, Has Had Its Radiance Dulled

Discovery of a cure for dementia praecox would seem to lend itself notably to the cinema. But in "Shining Victory" this shining scientific adventure turns out to be an effective remedy for insomnia. In fact, this critic had a short but violent bout with sleeping sickness. Nor did the weather or the soothing aircooling of the Metropolitan have anything to do with this napping. It was purely the soporific effect of "Shining Victory."

But the rest of the bill is aggressive and snappy as a bull terrier. Between the Conn-Louis hostilities, best of their sort ever brought to the screen, and the battle of wits waged in "Invasion Forum" by a quartet of experts, the Metropolitan screen comes to life in an olio of left hooks and left-handed wisecracks.

The "Invasion Forum" is nearly as delightful as the better known "Information, Please," though its subject of debate is the highly serious question of what will happen if and when Britain is invaded. The experts are Linton Wells, Wythe Williams, Col. George Fielding Eliot and Ralph Ingersoll, of New York's P. M., who has an entirely fascinating lisp.

Mr. Williams was a lone battler against the wall, with his opponents tossing all sorts of verbal explosives at his contention that the German general staff may have worked out an effective way to crack the tough nut of British defense. Wells and Eliot cited tactical reasons for the futility of any German invasion. Ingersoll, who's just back from England, bore down on the strength of British morale.

The sorely beset Mr. Williams finally shouted, "Say, this isn't my plan. It's a German plan," then went on to say that no matter what happened, the United States would be the real victor in this war.

Getting back to "Shining Victory," which we basely deserted after that first paragraph—it has the sort of story that should have made great celluloid. But the story is tripped up and manhandled in direction. Also, stars James Stephenson and Geraldine Fitzgerald impart to their lovemaking all the fire of a bowl of cold oatmeal.

Isolated instances of fine acting pop up throughout. Barbara O'Neil's depiction of a neurotic and frustrated woman is properly shuddery. That old war horse, Donald Crisp, plays an elderly and disappointed physician with appeal and conviction. Sig Rumann does the finagling Budapest scientist repulsively but expertly.

Perhaps you just need a little patience to enjoy "Shining Victory" and its angles on medicine and science. It's a meaty story that's gotten wrapped up in too much motion picture film. MARY HARRIS.

HEDDA HOPPER

Wit Goes to Waste

Hollywood, Calif., June 20. —When I listened to Director David Butler on the Bob Hope show, he was getting as many laughs as Bob. I thought, "What a waste of talent!" Here's an actor-director, and a darned good one. ANNABELLA He's just as funny as the people he's directing. He's a natural to help publicize, think up stunts of promotion in which he takes part as well as his stars.

Director Bob Leonard is another, Archie Mayo ditto —I could name dozens more who'd love the chance to entertain with their reminiscences, experiences, and wit. Yet nine times out of ten, they're buried as the men behind the camera giving orders. What we need here is to utilize the wasted talent already on tap in Hollywood.

Always during times of great stress, when the public heart is heavy, we have a craving for light entertainment, an almost childish hunger for "gals, gags, and giggles." And most of the studios are answering the call—Warners with "Navy Blues," Paramount with "Roads" (to Zanzibar and points west), Universal with "In the Navy." They're all silly-billies, jazzed up with music, dancing, nonsense, and I, for one, am all for 'em.

Bob Presnell, coauthor of "Meet John Doe," is now a major in the Signal Corps, and leaves August 1 for Fort Monmouth, N. J. This will be no amateur performance for Bob. He was in the Mexican fracas with Pershing in 1916, fought in the first World War, comes from an old fightin' family. His wife, Cecelia Callejo, stays here and is up for a good job in "Louisiana Purchase." She's a dancer, protegee of the late Argentina, and what she can do with a pair of castanets makes orchestra leaders turn green with envy.

An actress chosen by Rowland Brown for his "Girls Town" changed her name so often she had the staff completely confused. Finally Rowland said, "You can have the part on condition you use the name I've selected. You will be 'Anne Onymous'! And no back lip."

That book of verses "Breezes from the West," soon to be published, was dreamed up by none other than our Leo Carrillo . . . Harry Sugarman is hosting a reunion party at his Beverly Tropics next week for all our couples who first met at his place—including Ty Power and Annabella, Lana Turner and Tony Martin, Phil Harris and Alice Faye, Jane Wyman and Ronald Reagan. We call "Sugie" that old Cupid cut-up!

Richard Hageman's song "I Hear America Call" will be introduced by John Charles Thomas at the Hollywood Bowl

W. P. Richards' Rites Monday, Ex-Assessor

Funeral services for William P. Richards, former District assessor, will be held at 2 p. m. Monday from his home in Milford, Del. Burial will be in the family burial ground there.

RICHARDS

Mr. Richards died of a heart ailment early yesterday at his home at the age of 75. He became tax assessor here in 1906 and served in that capacity until his retirement in 1936. He left the District service at the age of 70 with the expectation of retiring to a farm. He changed his mind, however, and in 1939 was in charge of reorganizing the assessment system of Montgomery County, Md. Later he went to the Panama Canal Zone to make the first scientific tax schedule for a Government town there.

Mr. Richards was born in Milford and attended Lehigh University. He became a civil engineer and immediately joined the Army, helping to carry out many projects along the Mississippi River.

In 1893, Mr. Richards came to Washington and it was largely his task to give the city an orderly system of streets and highways. Included in his work were opening and developing many roadways in Rock Creek Park.

He leaves his wife, Mrs. Marie O. Richards, of Milford; two nieces, Mrs. Fred Blake, of St. Petersburg, Fla., and Mrs. John Gow Evans, of Cambridge, Md., and a nephew, Robert H. Davis, the District's director of inspection, 4836 Albemarle Street Northwest.

Farm Parity Fund Voted

After weeks of conference disagreement over parity payments to farmers, the House yesterday approved a proposed $212,000,000 cash compromise and sent the $1,060,500,083 farm bill to the Senate.

The House originally voted $212,000,000 for the parity checks, only $50,000,000 of which was in cash, but the Senate raised the ante to $450,000,000 a third of which would be paid on the current year's crop.

Representative Cannon (Democrat), of Missouri, manager of the House conferees, told the House that the proposed $212,00,000 should assure full parity to farmers when applied in conjunction with soil conservation payments and 85 per cent loans previously voted.

Under the $212,000,000 compromise proposed by the House conferees, $97,000,000 of the amount would not be available until the fiscal year 1943. Changes voted in House action on the conference report brought the total of the bill $280,000,000 below Senate figures but $7,000,000 higher than originally approved by the House.

Mrs. Annie Kerr Will Be Buried In Laurel Hill, Va.

Mrs. Annie E. Kerr, of 2504 Tenth Street Northeast, died yesterday at the Sandrich Nursing Home, 3433 Wisconsin Avenue Northwest.

The widow of Charles H. Kerr, she was a native of New Hope, Va. She had lived in Washington periodically since she was a young woman and returned here last March from New Hope to live permanently. She was a member of the Fifth Baptist Church here.

She leaves five children, A. J. Karr, N. B. Kerr and Miss Annie V. Kerr, all of Washington; James A. Kerr, Richmond, Va., and Mrs. Frances Marks, Delaware, Ohio.

WPA Idle to Get 5-Cent Milk

Departmental Auditorium, as scheduled.

The Post learned that no action can be expected from the S. M. A. before July 1 on either of the two important applications pending before the bureau's dairy division: Establishment of a penny milk program for the benefit of undernourished school children and improvement of the present nickel-a-quart project for needy families, including liberalization of eligibility rules.

Henderson's office withheld comment on the Schulte letter, the substance of which was disclosed in The Post yesterday. In making public the text, Schulte said several members of the House Agriculture Committee expressed sympathy with its contents.

Attacking arguments put up by the Maryland-Virginia Milk Producers Association in behalf of a price increase, the letter says of the proposal to include surplus milk in the boost:

"The theory of the use of this product is that it constitutes a surplus in the hands of the producer and therefore if the product could be advantageously used for undernourished children and relief, that certainly the milk producer would be willing to take a slightly higher price than he could otherwise get for said milk, and permit the same to go into this most-needed channel.

"However, we find the Maryland-Virginia Milk Producers Association demanding its pound of flesh even for its surplus products. Not only do they demand a much higher price for this surplus milk than most milk producers in the country get for their Class 1 milk, but in addition to doing this they submit and recommend regulations and rules to the Dairy Division of the Department of Agriculture that have for their direct purpose the continuation of the monopoly exercised by them.

"I have repeatedly pledged the people of Washington that as a member of the Committee of the District of Columbia that I will make it my business to do everything possible to break down the vicious milk monopoly here and see to it that they get milk at a reasonable price comparable to that paid in other cities."

Sex Slayer's Victim Seen Leaving Store

same young woman come out of the store.

"She crossed to the other side of the street," Simms said. "I followed her with my eyes until she got almost opposite my house, then I looked on down the street."

Simms was unable to say definitely whether that girl entered an alley which leads from Florida Avenue to Nineteenth Street or whether she remained on the sidewalk until she reached the corner.

A drayage contractor, Simms revealed his story to a Post reporter late yesterday afternoon.

He was asked at that time why he had not given police the same information and he replied that he "hadn't been asked."

"I want the police to find the man that killed that girl," the colored man stated. "I have three daughters myself and I don't want that to happen to them."

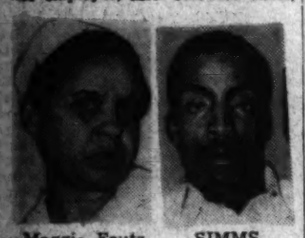
Discounts Taxi Theory

Simms' story is opposed to the possibility that Miss Strieff hailed a taxicab or entered a car on her way from the delicatessen. Police have been proceeding along the line that she must have entered an automobile because they said none of the residents saw her along the street.

Another story that strengthened the police theory that she rode to the store was the testimony of Maggie Foutz, colored domestic, who lives above Duncan's delicatessen. She said she was sitting in her front window Sunday waiting for her husband, Charles, to return from work. It had begun to sprinkle lightly, she said, when a shiny, black-bodied sedan pulled up in front of the store.

"A pretty girl with a pleasant face jumped from the machine and ran into the store," Mrs. Foutz asserted. "She stayed only a few seconds and then ran out again."

Interviewed today at the home of her employer, Mrs. Florence Rosie,



Maggie Foutz SIMMS

3939 Twenty-eighth Street Northwest, Mrs. Foutz said she noticed that the young girl wore a play suit and carried a blue coat over left arm. She carried "something white" in her other hand, the woman declared.

Mrs. Foutz said she noticed that a man was driving the sedan and she believed him to be dark-haired and large framed.

The woman said she did not pay too much attention to the girl but noticed when she stepped into the machine she was wearing sports socks.

She said she thought no more of the incident until Mrs. Rosie called her attention to a picture of the murdered girl in Monday morning's papers.

She immediately identified the newspaper photograph as that of the girl she saw run into the food shop, she said, but gave not thought to the matter until a reporter questioned her yesterday. She said she did not give the information to police "because she wasn't asked."

Follow Umbrella Clue

Detectives meanwhile pursued the "hot clue" when the proprietor of a downtown rent-a-car garage reported a white umbrella was found in the back seat of one of his cars which was used Sunday.

The car, detectives learned, was a black-bodied sedan and one like it was pointed out by Mrs. Foutz to be the same as the one she saw Sunday.

The rent-a-car company's records disclosed the machine was hired about 1 p. m. Sunday and not returned until a few minutes before 11 p. m. It had been driven 101 miles.

Detectives last night were searching for the man who rented the car. His identification was not revealed and the garage owner said he had been instructed "not to talk to anybody about it."

Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald examined the car for bloodstains but found none.

Identification of the umbrella was not established and will not be until a girl friend of the slain woman returns to the city June 29. She, according to detectives, is the only one who can definitely identify it.

Miss Jean Roberts, 1416 Twenty-first Street Northwest, described as Miss Strieff's closest friend, was questioned by headquarters detectives for about two hours last night. Miss Roberts, who is going on a vacation tomorrow, volunteered to go to headquarters to tell detectives what she knew of the slain girl's habits. Police said, however, that Miss Roberts could not shed any light on the case.

Herring Determined to Bring FBI Into the Strieff Slaying

Senator Clyde L. Herring (Democrat), of Iowa, yesterday announced his determination to bring the Federal Bureau of Investigation into the Jessie Strieff murder case.

For that matter, the Iowa statesman said, the famed G-men ought to be employed on all important and difficult cases here in the National Capital.

"This is a Federal city," Senator Herring said, "and here we have the FBI, the greatest crime-detecting organization in the world. The FBI has the trained experts and it has the equipment—the laboratories and the very latest things in crime-detecting paraphernalia.

"Why this city, the seat of Government and a world capital, should not get the use of these men and this equipment is a matter difficult to understand.

"They say that the FBI has no jurisdiction in Washington. I think it has. But if it hasn't, then it ought to have jurisdiction. I have written a letter to Attorney General Jackson telling him this, and I expect to hear from him shortly. If legislation is needed to give Washington the help of the FBI, I will have such legislation drafted."

Concerned for Some Time

Senator Herring said that he had been greatly concerned about the crime picture here for some time. When Miss Strieff, a 23-year-old War Department clerk from his own State, was brutally murdered, he decided to go into action.

On Tuesday, the day after Miss Strieff's nude body, ravished and strangled, was found in a Q Street garage, Senator Herring called on Attorney General Jackson for assistance.

As he awaited the Attorney General's reply yesterday, Senator Herring said he had not made up his mind as to just what form the cooperation between the FBI and the Metropolitan Police Department should take. Perhaps, he said, there could be an arrangement whereby the District Commissioners would be authorized to call on the FBI for assistance. In any event, he said, the city ought to be able to use a famed crime-detecting organization that is located within its borders.

In his letter to Attorney General Jackson, a letter that has brought him letters from many parts of the country, Senator Herring said in part:

"Some years ago a condition existed in this country wherein crimes of violence were being perpetrated throughout the various parts of our Nation with relative impunity, until the Department of Justice took vigorous steps to correct the situation, to the great relief of the Nation as a whole.

Situation in the Capital

"Today, in our Nation's Capital, these brutal crimes not only endanger the lives of its residents but also serve to direct the attention of the Nation to the inadequacy of our law-enforcement agencies at the very seat and heart of our national Government."

Senator Herring said he realized that the F. B. I. has not attempted to act as a direct law-enforcement agency here, and he said he realized, too, that the city had its own police force like any other metropolitan area.

"However," he added, "this practice does not appeal to me as sound. The citizens of the area have their Government superimposed on them, and regardless of its inadequacy they are helpless to change it. Citizens of other metropolitan areas possess the power to make necessary changes in local administration, and thereby protect themselves from inefficiency or dishonesty."

In the past, he said, there may have been reasons for the FBI to withhold help here, and he continued:

"Whatever may be the reasons, it it is becoming increasingly apparent that the present facilities are unequal to the task. This may be because of the unusual conditions existing in our Nation, which have caused a great influx of people into the District and environs from elsewhere.

Wants Speedy Legislation

"If, in your opinion, additional legislation by the Congress is necessary to provide means whereby these intolerable conditions may be eliminated, I should like to discuss the matter with you and assist in every way possible to secure speedy passage of such legislation.

"Under the existing circumstances, however, additional legislation would hardly seem necessary to permit a Federal law enforcement agency in a Federally governed city to protect the lives of Federal employes.

"I therefore call upon you to give serious and prompt consideration to the necessities of the situation and determine in what manner the Department of Justice can contribute direcly toward the elimination of this outrageous condition in the District of Columbia."

Police Probe Plan Splits D. C. Board

The Commissioners last night were divided two to one on their proposed "top to bottom" investigation of the Metropolitan Police Department.

Commissioners Hazen and Young want to name a board of inquiry and get the probe under way. Engineer Commissioner Kutz, however, feels "nothing should be done" until some form of action is announced on Capitol Hill. He added he was not prepared to say he was dissatisfied with the force.

"We are going to have the investigation, all right," said Young, "and it will be a deep probe to find out just what's wrong in the department."

Hazen agreed with a nod. Questioned, however, he declared:

"I don't think this investigation should be a 'trial.' I think it should be impartial, designed to find out exactly what we need to bring the police department to its highest efficiency."

Hazen recalled that he had suggested that the proposed board of inquiry be made up of leading citizens and municipal officials rather than a group of police officers and civilians as Commissioner Young had announced.

Sheridan to Charge Detectives Inexperienced

Charges that six high-ranking detectives lacked adequate experience will be laid before the House District Committee Monday when it meets to decide whether to name a special subcommitte to investigate the Metropolitan Police Department.

The charges will be made by Representative John Edward Sheridan (Democrat), of Pennsylvania, a former deputy State attorney general, who two weeks ago cited instances of alleged police inefficiency here. Sheridan disclosed that in the last 24 hours he has conducted a one-man investigation of the Police Department, acting on his own responsibility because of police failure to turn up substantial clews in the sex slaying of Jessie Strieff.

As a result, he declared, he has learned that four detective lieutenants and two detective sergeants who are acting detective lieutenants "were taken out of police stations without previous experience as plainclothes investigators."

"Furthermore, the Washington Police Department has about two detective sergeants for every detective," Sheridan continued. "That sounds like the Cuban army.

"What I want to know is, why do they have that many detective sergeants? What do they do?

"I also would like to know what Hartman's (Capt. Earl P. Hartman) squad of special investigators is. What does it do? Who are the members of the squad? It looks to me like a private army."

D. C. Crime Wave Rolls On, With Six Felonies in Day

A daylight housebreaking, two holdups at pistol point, two assaults and a robbery were added to Washington's crime record in the last 24 hours.

Mrs. Dillman

Mrs. Marcella Dillman, 19, 1205 N Street Northwest, told police that she was awakened by a colored man standing over her bed. Mrs. Dillman said she screamed and the prowler fled. Her husband, Kermit Dillman, 22, who was asleep in the same room, jumped from bed and saw the man run down N Street, toward Thirteenth Street.

Mrs. Dillman said that last Sunday tenants living in the basement of the building were frightened by a colored man who tried to force his way through a window.

Miss Goldye Goldstein, an employ of a cleaning establishment at 2408 Fourteenth Street Northwest, was held up at postol point by two colored men and robbed of $15. Miss Goldstein said the men fled down an alley after rifling the till.

Police are searching for a colored man who escaped with $1,700 from a building association office at 2010 Rhode Island Avenue Northwest yesterday. S. S. Symons, secretary of the association, told police that the man entered the office and asked for a job. After the man had gone, Symons said he discovered the money was missing from the till.

Mrs. Dorothy Baggerly, 29, a waitress, living in the 3200 block of Monroe Street Northeast, was recuperating in Gallinger Hospital from injuries suffered when she and her husband were beaten by two men near Bladensburg Road across from the District Line.

Mrs. Baggerly told police that she and her husband were attacked as they walked along Cemetery Walk Thursday night. Mrs. Baggerly was removed to Providence Hospital by the Bladensburg Rescue Squad and treated for cuts and bruises. She was later transferred to Gallinger Hospital.

In another attack, John J. McConkey, 1226 North Carolina Avenue Southeast, was beaten and robbed of $16, a meal ticket and his pants by a man wearing a khaki uniform. McConkey said the man approached him near the Lincoln Memorial and started a conversation. The man then struck him, McConkey said, knocking him unconscious.

Police Study Flood of Tips In Strieff Case

Concerning crime, the record shows one thing, almost invariably, Washington police say.

It is no special prescience, technique nor magnifying glass that "breaks" murder cases. Tips and telephone calls do it, they add.

Of these the police now are getting many. Approximately 2,000 have come through their switchboard since Betty Strieff was slain, and they listen now to everything.

Most of the callers are women, frantic in reaction to the horror of last Sunday. Many have said they fear for themselves. There was, for example, the woman who said she was caught in the rain last Sunday, shared a cab with a strange man and got kissed.

Another woman, returning from a seance, related disclosure from "the other side" that the assailant was a white man. Hundreds of the 2,000 callers have been middle-aged women who suspected they had been followed along the streets.

If police history repeats, some such tip by telephone will send the Strieff murderer to the electric chair.

Randolph Asks Military Police Help for D. C.

Use of the new 703rd Military Police Battalion at Arlington Cantonment to help Washington police check the current wave of depraved and vicious crime was suggested yesterday by Chairman Randolph of the House District Committee.

In a letter to Secretary of War Stimson, Randolph urged use of the battalion's 570 men "or such part as may be necessary . . . to police duty in Washington." It would, he added, "seem desirable that military police should be given practical training in civilian police problems. From the standpoint of the Washington civilian police, I feel certan the authorities would be happy to have some of their men released by assignment of patrol or other duties to the military."

A copy of the letter was sent to the District Commissioners.

Congress Has Power

Army officers pointed out that under the Act of June 18, 1878, no part of the Army may be used as a posse comitatus or for the execution of civil laws except as expressly provided by the Constitution or an act of Congress.

The 703d Military Police Battalion, commanded by Lieut. Col. Everett M. Yon, was organized June 12 with 500 men and 19 officers of the Twelfth Infantry, which was transferred that day to Fort Dix, N. J.

Its organization into four line companies and a headquarters company has just been completed.

In suggesting use of the battalion for patrol duty in Washington, Randolph said the city "is faced with a serious crime situation." This problem, he added, "exists largely because the Capital is growing in the defense emergency more swiftly than civil authorities have been able to expand the Police Department to proportions adequate for the public safety.

Didn't Consult Police

"I am sure you will agree with me also that the revolting murder last week of a War Department employe and a series of similar crimes committed earlier are symptoms of the problem. It seems logical that the military should have some part in relieving a situation attributable to such a marked degree to our preparedness effort."

Randolph said he made the suggestion before consulting either the District Commissioners or Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of Metropolitan Police, "because I feel the situation to be urgent."

Minister Lacks Church

The Rev. Ernest E. Grosse yesterday learned he is a pastor without a gospel tent and made two appeals: First, please look out for the tent, 60 feet by 40 feet, last seen at Thirteenth and D Streets Northeast, before it was sent to storage last fall. Second, "if someone has it and won't bring it back, please come and get the tent poles, as they are now useless."

We'd Like to Know, Too

New York, June 20 (A.P.).—Old No. 1,708 has finally found its way back to the Bronx Zoo. A homing pigeon, No. 1,708 was taken to Washington, D. C., on September 24, 1933, and released. Nothing was heard from it until yesterday when Joe Gerben, the Zoo's pigeon man, saw it land top the aviary where its cote used to be. Gerber said he'd like to know where the bird had been.

D. C. to Fight WPA Slash, Young Says

Calls on Welfare Board to Shape Plans to Aid 4,000 Agency Will Drop

The District is not going to take the contemplated Federal cut of 50 per cent in WPA employment "sitting down," Commissioner John Russell Young asserted late yesterday, revealing protests already have been drafted ready for release when "official" notification of the July 1 slash is received.

Young spent considerable time yesterday discussing the problem with Senator Overton (Democrat), of Louisiana, chairman of the Senate District Committee, and said he has called upon the Board of Public Welfare for suggestions to aid the 4,000 workers who will be without jobs.

"We are going to have many persons on our hands who will face starvation," Young declared, "and we must see to it that they don't starve."

Relief Not Provided For

Because the city has no provisions to care for unemployed employables through direct relief, Young said the Commissioners are "greatly alarmed" over the prospect of what might happen when the WPA reduction becomes effective.

Howard O. Hunter, Federal WPA chief, already has indicated clearly that no change in plans to slash the local work rolls will be made.

"We have got to get money quickly to meet this crisis," said Young, estimating that between $300,000 and $400,000 will be necessary to cover the sudden increase in unemployment.

Asks for Digests

At the request of Senator Overton, Young said he has asked local agencies involved in the drastic personnel curtailment to prepare digests of their various problems—both as to loss of services and workers.

Protests on another front in the complicated situation were filed last night with Paul Edwards, local WPA administrator.

Dr. Winthrop Peabody, president of the Tuberculosis Association, shocked at the proposed cut in clerical personnel at the T. B. clinic, warned that the "health of the city" was at stake. He said the clinic force of 28 persons would be reduced to six if the Federal edict is enforced.

Dr. Peabody also sent communications to Congressional leaders urging retention of full WPA assistance in the local control and detection of the disease.

On July 1, the national WPA roll will be slashed 29 per cent, bringing it down to 1,000,000 persons—the lowest figure since September, 1937.

Booming employment in private industries due to national defense activities has been given as reason for the extensive and sudden curtailment.

Boy Scouts Distribute U. S. O. Posters

THEY GET EAGLE BADGES—At a court of honor in Central High School, Washington Boy Scouts were awarded eagle badges. Mrs. Stanley Patten, of 4801 Connecticut Avenue Northwest, pins an eagle badge on her son, Stanley, jr., while Mrs. Fred W. Beltz, of 3430 Quebec Street Northwest, pins a similar badge on her son, Fred. Both boys are of Troop 78. Yesterday the Boy Scouts at top did their good deed for the day by distributing posters for the United Service Organization. 'Isms Evil, Westminster Parley Told

Dr. Speers Warns Church Students That False Faiths Menace World

By Robert Tate Allan
Post Church Editor

The world today is in danger of being dominated by the "spurious religions of Nazism, communism and fascism," Dr. T. Guthrie Speers last night warned church school workers at Western Maryland College, Westminster.

Dr. Speers, patsor of Brown Memorial Presbyterian Church, of Baltimore, addressed delegates at the opening joint worship session of the eighteenth annual officers and teachers' conference and the seventeenth annual young people's conference.

The conclaves, sponsored jointly by the District Sunday School Association and the Y. M. C. A. religious work department, attracted religious workers from practically every denomination from Maryland, Virginia and the District.

While today is an age of faith, it is an age of "misguided faith," said Dr. Speers, adding that it must be realized that "communism, Nazism and fascism are religions—religions that are making the world a 'hell.' They, too, have their creeds, symbols, prophets, martyrs and discipline, he said.

Arriving on the rolling campus the delegates lined up at the college postoffice windows to be checked in by Registrars John A. Patterson, sr., and John A. Patterson, jr., and Don Thomas.

During the informality of the supper hour, Chester Jones, of Calvary Baptist Church, was named "judge" of a mock court by Page McK. Etchison, executive secretary of the officers and teachers' conference. While the "judge" could get no "convictions," he warned he would "try" two delegates at this morning's breakfast.

Preceding Dr. Speers' address at the opening worship hour, Lynn B. Elmore, member of Calvary Baptist Church and soloist at Gunton-Temple Memorial Presbyterian Church, led a song-service and sang a solo; Miss Esther Dunkley, of Kenilworth Presbyterian Church, read Scripture, and Association President Dr. Charles E. Resser offered a prayer. William S. Jones, of Metropolitan Baptist Church and president of the officers and teachers' conference, gave the closing prayer.

While the officers and teachers were holding a retreat under Dr. Resser's direction, the young people split up into two groups to discuss problems facing them today. The leaders were the Rev. Theodore E. Miller, pastor of the First Baptist Church, Baltimore, and the Rev. Harry V. Porter, pastor of Westminster Memorial Presbyterian Church, Washington.

The association plans to stage a dime dance each Friday night

D. C. Funds Bill Readied For Senate

Hearings May End Today; WPA Cut, Arms Emergency Pose Problems

Senate hearings on the $52,500,000 District appropriation bill may be concluded today and the measure be put in final shape for presentation to the Senate early next week, Senator John H. Overton (Democrat), of Louisiana, chairman of the District appropriations subcommittee, said last night.

Before the measure is reported to the Senate, however, acute fiscal problems of the city, posed by the defense emergency and the 50 per cent cut in WPA allotments, will be discussed in a conference Monday with the District Commissioners, Overton said.

An appeal for an additional $100,000 for improvement of District recreation facilities was made before an executive hearing of the subcommittee yesterday by Representative John F. Hunter (Democrat), of Ohio, chairman of the District recreation subcommittee. The subcommittee recently drafted legislation to put play facilities of the District in the hands of a citizen-dominated board. The measure is expected to be acted on by the House Monday.

Hope Seen for Playgrounds

Hunter said an increase in the $25,000 recreation allotment now carried in the bill would give the board at least enough money to put "a lot of playground" in usable condition. Many recreation areas have been purchased by the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, but funds have been lacking to clear and grade the land, let alone purchase equipment, Hunter stated.

At its morning session, the subcommittee was told of the "relief crisis" threatened by the WPA cut. Conrad Van Hyning, acting public welfare director, declared that of 4,000 workers to be dropped here, fully 1,000 will never find work and another 1,000 will have to search for jobs for a long time.

Whitehurst Asks $100,000

Capt. H. C. Whitehurst District highway director, asked the subcommittee to approve $100,000 for plans and land purchases leading to construction of a $4,500,000 bridge across the Anacostia River at South Capitol Street. The item was cut from estimates by the House subcommittee.

The Rev. Harry B. Porter of the Southwest Citizens Association, and Harry Wender, vice president of the Federation of Citizens Associations, outlined urgent improvement needs in Southwest Washington, calling particular attention to a large unimproved recreation area across from the Thomas Jefferson Junior High School.

Ray H. Everett, secretary of the Social Hygiene Society, asked an additional $49,500 for venereal disease control in the District.

Other citizen witnesses included Charles I. Stengle of the American Federation of Government Employes; Washington I. Cleveland, American Automobile Association, and Mrs. George C. Thorpe, of the women's safety committee of the A. A. A.

Fifteen additional citizens remain to be heard when the subcommittee reconvenes at 10:30 a. m. today.

173 Four-H Boys and Girls Have Busy Day

A round of discussions, a visit to the White House, watching the Cleveland-Washington ball game and a tour of the Library of Congress left 173 boys and girls tired last night in the 4-H tent city on the Mall here.

The delegates gathered in the morning in the auditorium of the Department of Agriculture to hear a panel discussion on rural youth's responsibilities in the home and on the home farm. Amy Wessel, State club leader from Minnesota, two boys and two girls from that State and a representative from Mississippi and New York took part in the talk.

Later the State leaders held a conference in the Agriculture auditorium which was led by B. W. Marston, of Wyoming. Social hygeine and 4-H work in general were discussed with Dr. C. B. Smith and Roy E. Dickerson taking part.

In the afternoon, 4-H members visited the White House and had their official camp photograph made on the south lawn. It is hoped, an official said, to gain an audience with the President before the encampment ends to make him an honorary officer of the 4-H Club.

After a luncheon in the Department of Commerce, delegates saw the Washington-Cleveland baseball game at Griffith Stadium and concluded their day with a tour of the Library of Congress.

Miss Erna Ruth Wildermuth, of Clovis, N. Mex., and John W. Pou, of Statesville, N. C., have been awarded National 4-H fellowships of $1,000 each, the Agriculture Department announced. The fellowships, given by the national committee on boys and girls club work, Chicago, permit a year's advance study at the department here.

Girl, 6, Killed On Way Home From School

IDA JANE MAYHEW,

Death claimed 6-year-old Ida Jane Mayhew yesterday as she was hurrying home to announce that she had been promoted from the first to the second grade at Upper Marlboro (Md.) School.

The little girl had alighted from a Prince Georges County school bus across the Marlboro Pike from her home in Mellwood, Md., and started across the road when she was struck by an automobile operated by Robert B. Swanson, 41, a farmer of Upper Marlboro, who, police charged, failed to stop for the bus.

The father of the girl, Ignatius Mayhew, a farmer, had not wanted her to go to school yesterday since it was the last day and school would last only an hour. The child said she had to go to receive her report card and promotion papers.

Louis Branson, of Meadows, Md., driver of the school bus, told police that a truck had halted behind the bus but that no other traffic was visible as he started to help the girl across. A car appeared suddenly and struck her, throwing her 50 or 60 feet, he said.

Swanson was charged with manslaughter, reckless driving and failing to halt behind a school bus discharging passengers and was released on bond of $1,150 for his appearance July 1 in Upper Marlboro Police Court for hearing.

The child's mother, Mrs. Mary Mayhew, died in April in child birth. A sister, Ellen Phyllis, 3, and a brother, Michael McManus Mayhew, 3 months, survive.

Two other children escaped serious injury when struck by autos in the city.

Four-year-old Mary Ward, of 1316 Emerson Street Northeast, who ran between two parked cars, was struck by a car operated by Ernest Hoolidge, 59, of 1353 Emerson Street. She was released from Casualty Hospital after being treated for severe cuts to the face and both legs.

Boris Ballard, 12, of 225 Pennsylvania Avenue Southeast, was riding a bicycle at Eleventh Street and Pennsylvania Avenue when a car driven by Joshua Heatley, 33, of 409 Florida Avenue Northwest, struck him. The boy was treated at Providence Hospital for cuts to the right arm and face.

Buckley Gains A New Delay In Auto Case

The year-long game of tag between Attorney M. Edward Buckley and a charge of drunken driving romped through another round of technicalities in the Police Court yesterday, without Buckley being placed on trial.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Oliver Gasch protested against the new delay, and found himself in a sharp clash with Judge Hobart Newman.

"It wouldn't be the first case that died that way, would it?" asked Newman when Gasch said he feared the prosecution would expire for lack of evidence if his witnesses had to make many more useless trips to Judiciary Square.

Buckley was charged with drunken driving after an accident in the 2100 block of Thirteenth Street Northwest last July. Two automobiles were damaged. Buckley demanded a jury trial and was freed in $500 bond. Assistant Corporation Counsel Ralph Quinter, jr., nolle prossed the charge on October 30.

Charge Was Changed

Judge George D. Neilson was sitting in the traffic court on January 13. Nevertheless it was before Judge Newman that Buckley appeared and the drunken driving charge was stamped "Nolle prosequi in open court January 13." Buckley then pleaded guilty to a new charge of driving on the wrong side of the street. Given until January 18 to pay his $25 fine, he finally paid it on January 23.

The Post published these proceedings on January 30 and an investigation followed which led to the drunken driving charge being reopened.

Buckley then complained that reopening the drunken driving charge was unconstitutional because it would place him in "double jeopardy." Judge Neilson overruled this plea on April 30 and a few days later refused to reconsider. Buckley's trial was then set for yesterday in the jury court. Judge Neilson was sitting in the jury court yesterday.

When Buckley's case was called before Judge Neilson, Buckley said he had withdrawn his demand for a jury trial, so the case was sent to Judge Newman, now in Traffic

Renews His Plea

Before Newman, Buckley renewed his double jeopardy plea, arguing that he was being deprived of his rights. "For example," he said, "if I wished to offer the defense that I was not the man driving the car, I could not do it, because they would use my left-handed driving plea against me."

Gasch pointed out that Judge Neilson already had rejected the double jeopardy plea.

"Have you any law that says I cannot hear the question again?" asked Newman.

Gasch and Assistant Corporation Counsel Milton Korman cited this provision of the District Code:

"The act of each judge respecting the business of the court shall be deemed and taken to be the act of the court."

Newman then ordered the lawyers to produce other legal authority at 11 o'clock this morning. Gasch asked whether Newman would go on with the trial after ruling today, or whether the prosecution witnesses would be excused to a later day.

"I'll cross that bridge when I come to it," said Newman.

Gasch then instructed his nine witnesses to be back in court today. Several of them complained aloud.

Jim Walter Is Named Manger Representative

Jim Walter, Washington advertising man who has been associated with the Hamilton Hotel, has been appointed Washington representative for the Manger chain of hotels.

Walter, according to an announcement from E. J. Carroll, general manager of the Manger properties, will have an office at the Hotel Annapolis, which belongs to the chain. His duties will be chiefly to promote the Vanderbilt Hotel in New York.

Secretarial Graduates Get A Program for Democracy

Addressing 230 young women graduating from the Washington School of Secretaries last night, Representative Jennings Randolph, of West Virginia, outlined a program to follow in the present crisis.

The world today, he said, calls not only for trained talents, but also for "unswerving loyalty to the principles of democracy."

"You must safeguard our spirit of freedom under attack and recognize that America cannot survive without spiritual faith," the Congressman, chairman of the House District Committee, declared.

Other points in his program included: Opposition to external and internal destructive forces; fighting, if necessary, the philosophy of Hitler that would subjugate mankind and make a mockery of Christianity; readiness to give service or make sacrifices to preserve our freedom, tolerance and juustice.

Adria C. Beaver, vice president of the school, presided.

Frolics Tonight At 3 U.S.O. Clubs For Servicemen

Dancing and entertainment programs tonight at three clubs affiliated with the United Service Organizations will open a weekend of recreation for service men arranged by the welfare organization.

At the National Capital Service Men's Club, 606 E Street Northwest, the first unit to be operated here as a result of the Nation-wide drive to raise $10,785,000, 24 Red Cross hostesses will be on hand to meet visiting soldiers, sailors and marines. Dancing will be to the music of Van Lier Lanning's Little Symphony Orchestra band.

At the Soldiers, Sailors and Marines Club, 250 soldiers, sailors and marines are expected at a dance.

The Washington Army and Navy committee of the Jewish Welfare Board, a USO agency, and the Jewish War Veterans Post, No. 58, will hold a dance at the Jewish Community Center.

Blaze in Office Of Pan American Union Building

Fire broke out in the ornate Pan American Union Building last night and brought out a large force of fire-fighting equipment and a huge crowd of spectators—but did little damage.

The fire was sighted by John Harvey, 1101 Massachusetts Avenue Northwest, and Robert H. Wagner, of the Army War College. They ran into the building to the second floor and fought the blaze with fire extinguishers until firemen arrived. Damage was confined to draperies and to the walls of the office of the assistant director of the union, Pedro De Alba.

Guards at the Navy Department Building across Constitution Avenue turned in the alarm after the fire had been called to their attention by Mr. and Mrs. Norman Colburn, of Ballston, Va.

Colburn said they were riding past the Pan American Union, when his son, Norman, 11, tugged his arm and said:

"Look, Daddy, there's something on fire in that corner room.

Cause of the fire was not immediately determined.

K. of C. to Frolic

The Knights of Columbus of the Seventh District of Maryland, comprising the councils at Rockville, Forest Glen, Bethesda and Hyattsville, will hold their annual field day on the farm of J. H. Orme, on the Veirs Mill Road, midway between Rockville and Wheaton, tomorrow afternoon.

Minneapolis Mayor Asks FBI for a Police Chief

Newly elected Mayor Marvin Kline, of Minneapolis, dissatisfied with his city's police, yesterday came to Washington and made a dramatic move about it.

He asked the Federal Bureau of Investigation to lend or give an FBI operative to Minneapolis to head the force, or to train a man selected from the Minneapolis department.

KLINE

The 37-year-old mayor-elect, who takes office July 7, said he would find a man at present in the department if he could, but if there were none capable of executing his policies he would try to get a former FBI man or someone else he could send to Washington for FBI training.

He was unable yesterday to see J. Edgar Hoover, but talked with Hoover's assistants. The FBI, Kline said, "had nothing specific to offer" but the problem was discussed generally.

Kline said he announced during his campaign that the Minneapolis police chief, Frank Forrestal, would be replaced. His city, he said, is sitting on a combustible labor situation, "and I don't want a repetition of the 1934 and 1936 labor bloodshed. I want to get a police chief who can maintain the public peace" and one who might foresee difficulties and be trained for eventualities.

Kline said he was determined to stamp out dives and "sneak" liquor joints, of which there were 51 a year ago in his city of 493,000 persons.

Gen. Hershey Hits at 'Slackers' In Talk to Junior Chamber

Brig. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, deputy director of Selective Service, lashed out at the "slackers" and the "shirkers" in the Nation's emergency in his talk yesterday before members of the United States Junior Chamber of Commerce holding their annual convention in Minneapolis.

"We must put our house in order," the General asserted. "The call to quarters has blown. Every station must be manned. All are posts of activity. There is no place for the slacker or the shirker."

The General declared that the people of this country will not tolerate indefinitely the unsocial behavior of those who are willing to seize upon the Nation's emergency as an occasion for furtherance of their personal advantage.

Meanwhile, yesterday Gen. F. R. Keefer, chairman of the District Chapter of the American Red Cross, announced that in the future a personal letter will go to each selectee inducted into the Army advising him that the home service department of the local chapter is ready to serve him and his family.

The Red Cross letter to selectees says in part, "If an emergency should arise in your home and you need information, advice or assistance, you should get in touch with the Red Cross field director at your station."

House Painter, 38, Drowns Swimming In Anacostia

John Edward Davis, 38, a house painter, of 905 G Street Southeast, drowned yesterday as he was attempting to swim across the Anacostia River. An expert swimmer, Davis apparently was seized with a cramp, for when his body was recovered, his right hand clutched his stomach.

Davis had been swimming near the foot of Fourteenth Street Southeast, and announced he would try to swim across. When he sank, Paul R. Donley, commodore of the Washington Yacht Club, went to his rescue with Capt. Thomas Bennett and his son, Thomas, jr., in Donley's 46-foot cabin cruiser, Dream Boat. When they reached the spot where Davis was last seen, however, they found no trace of him.

Policemen T. D. Dailey and G. W. Van Meter, of the Harbor Police, recovered the body later after dragging the channel. Davis leaves his wife, Mrs. Florence Davis, and three children, John, Bernard and Florence.

Colonel Slips Off From 115th To Take Bride

While the 115th Infantry combat team was returning to Fort Meade yesterday after a week of maneuvers in Caroline County, Va., its commander, Col. D. John Markey, of Frederick, was honeymooning.

Col. Markey was married to Miss Carlotta Kinnamon, an instructor in the Frederick High School, yesterday morning at Cambridge, Md. He left the A. P. Hill Reservation, at the close of maneuvers Thursday night, while most of his men were visiting Fredericksburg, Va.

Since the reorganization of the regiment after the World War, Col. Markey has been its commander. He is on leave for about a week, and Lieut. Col. Stephen P. Fuller is taking over his command until he returns with his bride to Fort Meade.

Home Guard Force Seeks Volunteers

The following men have volunteered: Charles Harrison Mann, Robert Clementson, Melvin Loving, Charles E. Parker and Frederick Snowden.

Those desiring further information are asked to call Charles Harrison Mann at Jackson 1414 or go to the armory in Alexandria on Monday nights, the regular drill night.

Poll Shows House Committee Favors Schulte Liquor Bill

In a telephone poll of its five members, the Public Health Subcommittee of the House District Committee yesterday voted to report favorably the Schulte bill to ban all forms of liquor-price advertising in the District.

At the same time Representative William T. Schulte (Democrat), of Indiana, subcommittee chairman, announced he was holding in "abeyance" a bill, approved by the District Commissioners, to permit stand-up drinking at Capital bars.

Representatives McMillan and Shafer voted with Schulte to report the price bill to the full committee at its meeting Monday. Representative D'Alesandro, another member of the subcommittee, said he had not had an opportunity to give the bill full study, while Representative Copeland could not be reached.

The measure also would set up "dry zones" within 600 feet of schools, churches and military and naval posts in the District.

Archie, Lewis Turn Trick In 9th Inning

8,000 Ladies' Day See Indians Score 3 in 9th; Carrasquel Checks Late Rally

By Shirley Povich
Post Staff Writer

George Archie, newest hero of Griffith Stadium fans, was very much involved in a ninth-inning run that lifted the Nats to a 7-6 victory over the Cleveland Indians yesterday. Eventually, he crossed the plate with the run that defeated the league-leaders to the high-pitched joy of 8,000 ladies-day fans and cash customers.

There was some delay about the Nats' victory. The Indians, trailing, 6-3, going into the ninth, came up with three quick runs to tie the score, and the Nats were a glum gang.

Clint Brown was sent to the mound by Manager Peckinpaugh to hold the Nats in check in that ninth, but with one out Archie put the winning run on base with a sharp single to left. Little prospect of a run was evident, though, when Roger Cramer struck out, but Archie stole second on the next pitch. Buddy Lewis fetched him home with a solid single to left.

Thus the Nats emerged from a 16-day hibernation period in the American League cellar into seventh place and handed their spot back to the St. Louis Browns, who were losing one yesterday to Boston.

Lewis a Cohero

Lewis, with three straight hits, was a cohero with the Nats' third baseman, but Archie was having a large afternoon for himself. He turned in several clever plays at third base and in the seventh it was his single to center that put the Nats in a 4-3 lead.

The Nats bounced out from under a 3-0 deficit to win the ball game, scoring in all of the last five innings after the Indians had treated Sid Hudson roughly at the outset. Walter Masterson was doing a noble relief job of it after the fifth inning until the Indians caught up with him in the ninth.

Alex Carrasquel qualified for some sort of kudos in the ninth inning after giving all the appearance of being something of a bum. With the Indians needing three runs, Masterson opened the ninth by walking Keltner, and the Indians had the tying runs before anybody was out. Walker singled off Bloodworth's glove and Jeff Heath made his fourth hit of the ball game—a double that scored Keltner and put the tying runs on second and third.

Alejandro Baffles 'Em

Carrasquel got the job at this point and was no immediate success. In fact, he butched it. He pitched a single to Campbell whose blow to center scored the tying runs. Carrasquel, however, was superb thereafter. After threatening to walk Trosky, he fanned him on a 3-and-2 curve, and on the pitch Jake Early nipped Campbell trying to steal second. Archie made a clever play on Mack's grounder for the last out of the inning.

George Case, Buddy Lewis and Jimmy Bloodworth each collected three of the Nats' 15 hits, the same

Cards Reported Loathe to Renew Rickey's Contract

By International News Service

St. Louis, June 20.—Branch Rickey's five-year contract as vice president and general manager of the St. Louis Cardinals may not be renewed when it expires after the 1942 season, the Post-Dispatch said today.

The contract was understood to call for a salary of about $50,000 a year, with a bonus based on the club's earnings.

The newspaper said Sam Breadon, president of the Cardinals, believed it would be unwise, under present conditions, to obligate the club to the extent of $250,000 in another five-year Rickey contract.

Breadon and Rickey refused to discuss the report.

Bogart's Par 71 Tops 139 Md. Amateurs

Parker Nolan, Overton Miss First Flight in Big Surprise

By Merrell W. Whittlesey
Post Staff Writer

Pikesville, Md., June 20.—Ralph Bogart, the husky youngster who holds the District amateur title, was the only par shooter of a record field of 139 here today and it was good for medal honors in the twenty-first renewal of the Maryland State Amateur Championship. The 21-year-old Indian Spring shotmaker played each nine in 35 for a 70.

Bogart's 70 was good over the Suburban course but his round was almost secondary to the failure of defending champion M. Parker Nolan and Spencer Overton, the tournament favorite, to make the championship flight.

Overton, the 43-year old former champion who was runner-up in the Middle Atlantic Amateur last week, missed a top bracket for the first time in his golfing career with a sloppily played 77. Nolan matched this total, two too many for the championship flight. They had good company, however, for Earle Skinker was on the outside looking in with an 82, Ernie Caldwell had 80 and Cliff Richardson, another former champion, 80. A half-dozen other Baltimore stars were among the casualties.

D. C. Lands Four

The District placed only four contestants in the first flight but the quartet was only a total of five over par. Bogart's 70 was the leader but his margin was just one shot over Volney Burnett, the 1938 champion from Indian Spring with a 36-35, 71, and Eddie Ault, a clubmate who was a medal threat all the way with one of his best rounds, 36-35, 71. Gene Pittman, of Congressional, completed the Capital City representation in the pay-off bracket with a 38-35, 73.

Bogart, who barely made the grade in the Middle Atlantic Amateur last week and was knocked out by the fifteenth hole of the first round was back on his winning Chevy Chase Invitation form today. He dropped birdie putts of 20 and 30 feet on the fourth and eighth holes of the outgoing nine and coming back knocked approach shots stiff on 14 and 15 for two more birdies.

The powerful-hitting youngster missed par four times, pushing a noon shot on the second hole and 3-putting the ninth for miscues on the outward trip while coming back he missed the tenth green and then with par for a 69 on the eighteenth he drove into a trap and finally missed a 10-footer for a sub-par round.

Albertus at 71

With Burnett and Ault at 71 was a former Washingtonian who hits tee shots a la Jimmy Thompson, big Bob Albertus. Four over par at one time, Albertus started a sub-par streak by holding a wedge shot out of a trap and that led to a back nine of 33.

There were no 72s and with Pittman in the 73 bracket were Bobby Jones and Eddie Semmler, Hillendale, Herbert Wagner, the Mid-Atlantic medalist, and Benson Ensor, a prominent Baltimore public links player. Edgar Lucas, tournament committee chairman, was among the 74 shooters, despite a 6 and 8 on par 4 holes.

Although Bogart was the only par shooter, 20 players had 75 or better and Gene Bruning, Rolling Road, and Bill Parker, Mount Pleasant, won playoff berths with pars on the first hole. Harris Jones, Louis Mann, Carl Snooks, Frederick, and Jesse Dowling, jr., lost out. Dowling finished 2-2-4 to make the playoff and then hit two balls out of bounds on the first hole.

Washington is assured of at least a quarter-finalist as Bogart and

Ft. Meade Boxers Desire To Meet Fort Dix Team

Fort George G. Meade, Md., June 20 (AP).—Negotiations were under way by Twenty-ninth Division officials today to schedule a boxing meet here July 2 with the Forty-fourth Division team from Fort Dix.

Winners and runners-up in the recent Twenty-ninth Division Tournament will represent the Blue and Gray. They will train in the post gymnasium under the direction of Lieut. George J. Adams, division athletic officer.

Billy Conn 'Just Misses' Once More

Pittsburgh, June 20.—Billy Conn, the boxer who almost beat Joe Louis, but didn't, today became the man who almost got married, but didn't.

He announced that after two days of negotiations with the parents of Mary Louise Smith, his 18-year-old fiancee, he had agreed not to marry their daughter without their consent.

The marriage was frowned upon by James L. Smith, one-time big league baseballer and father of Mary Louise, because of his daughter's youth and her suitor's profession.

Smith There First

The wedding had been scheduled for this morning at St. Philomena's and only last night Conn and his fiancee called on Father Anslem, a Franciscan who is a friend of the fighter's, and asked him to attend the ceremony.

Father Anselm went to the church at the appointed time, but found that Smith had been there earlier, presumably to cancel the wedding, and later the announcement was issued by Conn that the marriage was off.

Yanks Rout Tigers, 14-4, On 17 Blows

By the Associated Press

New York, June 20.—The New York Yankees went on a slugging rampage today to overwhelm the Detroit Tigers, 14 to 4, with 17 hits including home runs by Tom Henrich and Charley Keller, the latter's fourth in four days.

Their first seven hits and seven runs came off overheated Bobo Newsom in the first three innings and caused him his ninth defeat of the year. Archie McKain was left on the mound to absorb the remainder of the Yankee bombing.

The New York homers came in the first inning, each with a man on base, to give the Yanks a total of 27 round trips in their last 16 consecutive games. The Tigers, in setting the American League record for homers in consecutive games last year at 17, hit 26 home runs.

Joe DiMaggio also extended his batting streak to 33 games with three singles and a double in five times at bat.

The Yanks sent 11 men to bat in the seven-run fifth inning and over the game as a whole made 29 total bases, every player made a hit, every player scored a run and every one except Johnny Sturm batted in a run.

Lefty Marius Russo, coasting behind this barrage, held the Tigers to seven hits for his first victory since May 7.

Archie Harris Betters World Discus Record

By Russ Newland
Associated Press Sports Writer

Palo Alto, Calif., June 20.—Giant Archie Harris, great Negro athlete from the University of Indiana, cloaked himself in international glory today by bettering the world record in discus throw trials of the National Collegiate Athletic Association track and field championships. He sent the platter sailing 174 feet 8¾ inches.

For purposes of safety, the discus throwers were sent to a field adjacent to Stanford Stadium, where other athletes were qualifying in nine other events.

Few See Great Toss

Only the officials assigned to the discus throw and a handful of spectators were there to give Harris a cheer.

Only a few weeks ago in the Big Ten meet at Minneapolis Harris established a new American discus record with a toss of 174 feet, 1 inch.

Harris' mark today, although made in the trials, will stand unless bettered in tomorrow's finals. It also will go as a new N. C. A. A. record. The former, 173 feet, was made in 1936 by Ken Carpenter, of the University of Southern California.

The big Negro also qualified in the shot put, at 50 feet 5¼ inches. Al Blozis, of Georgetown, led in the iron ball competition with a heave of 54 feet ⅛ inch.

Aside from Harris' performance, individual laurels for the day went to Billy Brown, of Louisiana State University. He qualified in three events, the 100 and 220-yard dashes and the broad jump. He led the broad jumpers at 20 feet 7¼ inches, won his heat in the century in 9.8 seconds, and took second in the 220.

Most tragic phase of the preliminaries was the spill taken by Leslie MacMitchell, of New York University, in an 880-yard run heat. Favorite to win, he tripped and fell heavily on the track, then made up some 30 yards to finish next to last but out of the qualifying class.

MacMitchell, however, is entered in the mile run tomorrow, an event he won in the recent intercollegiate AAAA championships.

As expected, Southern California, shooting for its seventh team championship, galloped off with the most qualifying places, 11. University of California landed 6 places; Ohio State, 5, and Indiana, 4.

Other qualifying places were distributed as follows: New York University, Washington, Stanford, University of California at Los Angeles and Louisiana State, three each; Notre Dame, Colorado, Wisconsin, Northwestern, Penn State, Michigan Normal, Miami of Ohio, Washington State, Texas, Illinois, two each; Oklahoma, Nebraska, Montana, Rice, Georgetown, Xavier, Howard, Payne, Minnesota, Pittsburgh, Utah, California Aggies, Michigan, Loyola of Chicago, Oregon State, Oklahoma A. and M. and Utah State, one each.

John Rigney Rejected by Army Doctor

By the Associated Press

Chicago, June 20.—The United States Army gave John Dungan Rigney back to baseball today.

The 26-year-old Chicago White Sox pitching star was rejected for service in the Selective Service Army because of a chronic perforation of the right ear drum—a rejection which classified him as unfit for any type of military service.

"Frankly, I'm disappointed, for I was looking forward to serving in the Army," said the big right-hander after an examining board of two Army physicians and two civilian consultants had placed him in class 4-F. Their decision was the third and final one on Rigney's physical status—the hub of an "in or out" episode which originated as far back as last March and which at one time was headed for the desk of President Roosevelt.

Wanted 60-Day Delay

The ear condition resulted in Rigney being recommended for class 4-F by draft board physicians in Pasadena, Calif., while the White Sox were at spring camp. Later an examination by a physician of his River Forest, Ill., board resulted in his being reclassified in 1-A.

Rigney then requested a 60-day delay in his call on the ground immediate service would deprive him of a large portion of his reported $12,000 yearly salary. Col. Paul G. Armstrong, State director of Selective Service, then asked the President to review the case. The following day Rigney withdrew his request, reporting this morning with a packed suitcase, ready to go. Shortly after he learned of his rejection, his 23-year-old brother, Edward, was temporarily deferred because of a temperature he was running.

As he left the induction center the diamond star was presented with the 7 cents car fare given all rejected men. That was sufficient to take him to the city limits. The bus fare from the limits to his River Forest home is 10 cents.

Nats May Buy Milwaukee Club 'If Price Is Right'

By the Associated Press

Milwaukee, June 20.—Joe Cambria, scout for the Washington Senators of the American League, said here today that his club would buy the Milwaukee Brewer American Association baseball club if the price was right.

He added, however, that his club would not pay as much as $125,000, the reported sale price.

Downing Keeps Western Junior Golf Crown

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

Into the mails yesterday went the script for baseball's All-Star game, scheduled this year at Detroit on July 8. The 16 managers of the two big leagues submitted to league headquarters the names of 25 players who are their selections as best fitted to uphold league prestige.

POVICH

Presumably, each league manager selected six pitchers, and that, for the American League managers was something of a task, because aside from Bob Feller, there isn't a pitcher in the league who readily suggests himself as all-star stuff. It is significant that the American League pitcher with the record next best to Feller's is Al Benton, of the Tigers, who doesn't start ball games.

Clark Griffith has a plan to offset this lack of solid pitchers in the American League. "I'd have to have the cooperation of a couple of the other clubs," he was staying, "but if they would play ball with us, we could show the National League some pretty good pitching for nine innings. I'd have Feller out there for the three innings he's allowed to pitch, and then I'd show the National League Lefty Grove and Ted Lyons for three innings apiece.

"We'd be all right if we had Grove and Lyons around with a week's rest. That would be great pitching. 'Course I don't know if it can work out that way, because they only pitch once a week anyway and Boston and Chicago will probably figure they can't be spared from the pennant race. I wouldn't blame 'em, but those two old timers would be our best bets aside from Feller."

Pitching would seem to be the only problem of the American League in fielding a swell ball team. Selecting the outfield comes under the heading of a pleasure rather than a task. Right off the bat, Ted Williams of the Red Sox and Joe DiMaggio of the Yankees suggest themselves. Williams with his .416 average represents the hottest article in the American League, and DiMaggio is still in the midst of a 32-game hitting streak.

Picking the third outfielder should not be tough, either. Jeff Heath, of the Indians, is pounding the ball at a .360 rate and could certainly be tolerated in the line-up. Sam Chapman, of the A's, deserves a place on the club and no sane manager would kiss off the possibilities of Detroit's outfield trio of Pat Mullin, Bruce Campbell and Barney McCosky. It's funny, but Hank Greenberg would scarcely be missed in the American League lineup this season.

The managers need not be even half smart to pick themselves the stand-out first baseman of the league. Towering far above the rest is Detroit's Rudy York with his 15 home runs and the 56 runs he has batted across the plate thus far. York has outstripped the hardy perennial Jimmy Foxx and there is no other first baseman in the league to challenge him. The big Detroiter who was once referred to as the totem pole first baseman because of the belief that he couldn't get around very well, has blossomed as something of a fancy fielder.

The second base selection is similarly a pipe. No mistake could be made on any one of three choices. Joe Gordon of the Yankees is probably tops, but Bobby Doerr of the Red Sox would scarcely weaken any club, and there is always Charley Gehringer of the Tigers. Gordon's distance punch recommends him, however, and he has a faculty of being at his best when the chips are down.

If Cleveland's Lou Boudreau is anything less than an unanimous choice for shortstop, then the league's managers are either obstinate, insane or prejudiced. Boudreau for two years now has been stamping himself as the finest shortstop of the generation, and one of the good lead-off hitters of the league.

Third base is where Washington might horn into the All-Star lineup. Cecil Travis has some sort of a claim on that job with his .352 average and his ability to play the bag. His chief rival would be, of course, Cleveland's Ken Keltner who is sporting an average in the vicinity of .300. Keltner's 12 home runs and his league leadership in triples would be no drawback to his claim on the job.

All of which brings us down to the catching, and automatically the name of Bill Dickey suggests itself. The league managers never look any farther than Dickey for their all-star catcher, even in the years when he is supposed to be slipping. But this is a year in which Dickey is doing all right. He'll be tapped.

Whirlaway Favored In Stakes Today

By the Associated Press

New York, June 20.—Whirlaway, the 3-year-old champ, returns to the turf wars tomorrow as the odds-on-choice to whip five others of his age in the $10,000 Added Dwyer Stakes at Aqueduct.

Idle since completing the turf triple by winning the rich Belmont Stakes on June 7, the chestnut from Warren Wright's Calumet Farm figures to have the mile and quarter of the Dwyer at his mercy. He has been asked to pick up 126 pounds and give four to ten pounds to his rivals but that should prove no handicap with Eddie Arcaro in the saddle.

The race is not a rich one but Trainer Ben Jones sees no reason for keeping his star in his stall, especially in view of the fact he relishes plenty of work.

Victory tomorrow will boost Whirlaway's earnings for the year to above the $170,000 mark and for two years of racing to some $250,000.

Whirlaway's chief competition is expected to come from J. F. Byers' Robert Morris, the colt that finished second to him in the Belmont Stakes and who will pack 119. But at that Robert figures to be no better than 6 to 1. The advance quotations on Whirlaway were 1 to 3.

Mrs. Louis Tufano's Market Wise, to whom Whirly gives four pounds, will take another crack at the champ after falling in the Kentucky Derby but he's lightly considered along with Samuel Riddle's Lord Kitchener and William Woodward's entry of Greville and Perisphere.

Welsh and Leavens Meet Tomorrow

Despite a week's postponement Interest was growing yesterday in the finals matches of the City of Washington Men's Tennis Tournament, which will be held tomorrow afternoon at Edgemoor Club.

At 2:30 Defending Champion Barney Welsh will meet newcomer Don Leavens for the singles championship, and a couple of hours later Welsh and Hugh Lynch will engage Leavens and Davis Johnsen for the doubles title.

The matches were rained out last Sunday.

Giants Rally In 8th, Beat Cards, 6 to 2

By International News Service

St. Louis, June 20.—A five-run rally in the eighth inning gave the New York Giants a 6-to-2 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals tonight before a crowd of 19,152, the largest to witness a St. Louis night game this season.

Bob Carpenter, after a shaky start, held the Cardinals to six hits in winning his fourth victory of the season. Lon Warneke, victim of loose support, was charged with his third defeat.

Marcey Rolls 477 Set at Clarendon

Walloping the maples for a tremendous set of 477 in the Clarendon Mixed Doubles League, Lee Marcey posted all kinds of records for Eddie Goldberg's nearby Virginia drives. Marking up games of 162-145-170, Marcey included 16 spares and 5 strikes in his gigantic effort. Marcey's 31 marks out of the 30 boxes was a record for Clarendon and that he made 16 out of 17 spare breaks during which he interspersed the 5 strikes, attests to his uncanny accuracy and coolness in the final game when he totaled 170. Marcey is a 117-average man and was rolling with his wife, who counted 288.

NORTHEAST

Mildred Peacock's Silver Spring All-Stars will tangle with Dave Mulquin's Brookland Recreation Girls Sunday night at the Northeast drives, starting at 7:30. Besides herself, Miss Peacock will have "Boots" Pettit, Evelyn Gay, Thelma Simmers and Rena Ridenour on the firing line, the latter substituting for Kitty Mulroe, who is ill. The Brookland girls are Vickie Croggon, Ruth King, Evelyn Sebastian, Lois Gladding and Martha Biggs. Spectators are invited to view the match.

The second meeting of the Prince Georges Tigers and Four Corners nine will take place tomorrow on the latter's field at 3 p. m. In the first tilt the Cornermen eked out a 2-1 victory.

Mealtime Is Biggest Feature of Morven Park Day

Westmoreland Davis' Filly Goes 'Hollywood' at Request

Daughter of Supremus Turns on Personality To Charm Morven Park Farm Visitors

(This is the ninth of a series of articles by Anne Hagner on horse breeding farms in this area.—Editor.)

By Anne Hagner

She's just like a movie star," said the colored groom admiringly as he snapped a halter on a handsome gray yearling at Westmoreland Davis' Morven Park Farm, near Leesburg, Va.

True enough, the filly emerged from her stall like an actress at a Hollywood preview and turned a faultless profile, head and ears up, for the benefit of onlookers in the stable yard.

Her equine self-assuredness is apparently well founded, but this daughter of Supremus was judged best in the class for yearling fillies at the Upperville Colt and Horse Show in a field of nearly 30 of Virginia's finest youngsters.

Davis, Governor of the Old Dominion during the World War, breeds horses principally for the race tracks, but the little gray shows such promise that he plans to save her for the show ring. Her dam, Bunkum, is a Morvan Park mare by Pompey, and at this point has a likely looking gray colt by the Maryland stallion, imported Quatre Bras II. She has been bred to Gino this year.

Charming Yearling

It is her yearling daughter, however, that attracts most of the interested comments at the big, red brick stables. Frank Burrow, her groom, has only to bring visitors in the vicinity and she poses, feet standing perfectly, for long moments, staring off in the distance. Despite the unfamiliar confusion at Upperville, the gray adopted her customary "look for eagles" expression and completely charmed ringsiders.

Almost as bright a star on Morven's 2,500 acres is a suckling by Forty Winks out of a well-built Sir Greysteel mare. According to Frank, he is the best of the 1941 crop, although his conformation is only slightly superior to that of Bunkum's Quatre Bras colt.

In the next stall is Nancy Jane, dam of the widely known racing mare, Mannikin, winner of the $5,000 Nursery Stakes and many other important trials. Her most recent foal is a colt by the Morven Park stallion, Teddy Beau, remount horse whose barn is in an adjoining pasture.

Tremendous Filly

Fourth of the farm's seven broodmares with colts this spring is a Sir Galahad mare with a tremendous filly by imported Belfonds. The other three barren matrons are turned out to graze in a field nearby.

So extensive are Morven's acres that "the Governor" and Mrs. Davis journey to the barns only a few times a week. Most of their activities are centered on the picturesque mansion, built by them nearly 50 years ago, which overlooks many miles of typical northern Virginia landscape.

Visitors approach the house via a 1¼ mile private lane, winding through big trees and skirting the

Two Upsets Mark Trans-Miss Golf

St. Louis, Jun 20 (INS).—Two startling upsets, which saw the defending champion along with one of the meet favorites relegated to the sidelines, marked today's play in the Trans-Mississippi Golf Tournament at the Sunset Golf Club.

Art Doering, of Chicago, who won the Trans-Mississippi title last year, was the victim of the accurate strokes of his fellow-townsman, John Barnum, 2 and 1. Barnum, a big, strapping fellow, was 1 down at the turn, but his sensational second nine which saw him 3 under par for eight holes, broke Doering's spirit and clinched the match.

Les Slattery, pint-sized St. Louisan, provided the other upset when he ousted George Dawson, of Chicago, Illinois State champion, 4 and 3. Dawson was unable to make his short game behave and the St. Louis veteran, who shot even par, took advantage of every opportunity.

Parker Again Victor Over Don McNeill

By the Associated Press

Chicago, June 20.—Frankie Parker, who conquered Don McNeill just five days ago to win the St. Louis Triple A Tournament, did it again today to reach the finals of the National Clay Courts Tennis Tournament.

The scores were 3—6, 6—0, 6—4, 6—2, with Parker, 1939 clay courts winner, playing a heady, steady game and frequently passing the defending champion at the net.

Parker, who gives a lot of credit for his sterling play this year to a flat forehand drive that he has developed, will face the winner of tomorrow's semifinal match between Bobby Riggs, of Chicago, and Gadnar Mulloy, of Coral Gables, Fla.

Metropolitan Ten Beats Loan & Trust

Metropolitan Bank softballers advanced to within one game of clinching the Banker's League first-half title yesterday when they soundly trounced Washington Loan and Trust, 12-4, at Lincoln Memorial field. Metropolitan needs only a victory over Morris Plan ten next week to con the crown.

Len Thomas Discounted For G. U. Job

The name of Len Thomas, New York attorney who formerly was in practice here, was brought up yesterday as a possible successor to Gabe Murphy, resigning graduate manager of athletics at Georgetown. But the possibility of Thomas even considering the position was promptly squelched last night by Father John J. Kehoe, S. J., faculty moderator of athletics at the Hilltop.

"Thomas probably would be a popular choice for the position," said Father Kehoe, but I am certain he would not be interested because of his thriving law practice in New York."

Father Kehoe also denied that any of the men so far mentioned as likely to be under consideration for the job Murphy will quit on July 1 is really a serious candidate.

Thus apparently eliminated from the picture are Pete Haley, local restaurant owner, Harry (Babe) Connaughton, Georgetown's first all-American football star; Rome Schwagel, the former Hoya sports publicity purveyor; Cliff McCormick of New York, and Tom Golston of Chicago. . . . J. H. M.

D.C. Cricket Team Play British Again

The Washington Cricket Club will play host to men of His Majesty's Navy today at the Langley Park, Md., estate of Leander McCormick-Goodhart, attache at the British Embassy.

The visiting team, for the second week, will be made up of officers and men from the H. M. S. 113, now in port in Baltimore. The local cricketers played a team from the ship last Saturday and deafeated them, 101 to 58. Today's game will begin at 2 p. m.

Three Tie for First In Washington Tourney

A three-way tie for first place resulted in the Washington Golf and Country Club's three-club tournament yesterday, Mrs. R. N. Sutton's 99—14—85 winning after a draw. Tied with the winner were Mrs. R. D. Young, 103—18—85, and Mrs. J. L. Hutchinson, 105—20—85.

Fourth place went to Mrs. J. E. McCabe, 107—21—86, after a draw with Mrs. L. E. Hutchinson, 120—34—86.

Mrs. Meckley Golf Winner At Kenwood

Mrs. Betty Meckley took the low gross prize in the Mrs. E. A. Rule Cup play yesterday at Kenwood with a pair of 83's for a 166 total in the 36-hole tournament.

Mrs. F. M. Hopkins, with 91, 92 and an 18 handicap, took low net with a 147. Mrs. A. A. McEntee, with 89, 85—11, was second with 152, and Mrs. A. W. Gilliam, 98, 98—20, was third with 156. Three were tied for fourth—Mrs. H. W. Sharpe, Mrs. W. L. Weible and Mrs. J. C. Dale—with 159's.

In the "B" group, Betty Nuttman took low net with 109, 113, 28 handicap, 166. Mrs. M. M. Dwyer took second with a 168. She had scores of 114, 106 and a 26 handicap.

Mrs. Walper Wins At Indian Spring

It was "ladies guest day" yesterday at Indian Spring, and Mrs. Leo Walper came through with an 82 for low gross. She had an 87 with a 5 handicap and her score won her a "turban wave."

Mrs. Dannaker, with 104 22—82, won the low net for visitors, and Mrs. D. Stewart's 112 27—85, won the low net for club members. Mrs. F. Godfrey won low putts with 30, and Mrs. E. Clark won high gross.

Baltimore Ten Beats Fat Boy, 8-5

Harold Steffes, Fat Boy's ace slab star, suffered his first defeat of the season last night at Washington Softball Stadium as the Tru-Fit Clothing Co., of Baltimore, put five of their seven hits into one big inning, the fourth, and, coupled with two damaging Fat Boy errors, scored seven runs as the main ingredients of an 8-5 victory.

The locals found Tim Timanoff, Tru-Fit hurler, for nine hits, two more than Steffes allowed, but he received faultless support.

In the Capital City League, Carr Bros. & Boswell, behind the two-hit, shutout hurling of Doug McLaren, turned back Garvin's Grill, 4-0. Lewis and L. Frey led the seven-hit Carr Bros. attack.

Tonight, Hoffberger Ice, of Baltimore, will invade at 9:15 p. m. to take on Kavakos Grill, Capital City League leader, while at 8 p. m., May Hardware and Fat Boy will collide in a Capital City League contest.

Pirate Run In Ninth Beats Phillies, 7 to 6

By the Associated Press

Pittsburgh, June 20.—The Philadelphia Phillies lost their fifth straight game today, but carried the Pittsburgh Pirates to the very last ditch in the ninth inning before bowing, 7 to 6.

Bosox Beat Browns, 4 to 2

By the Associated Press

Boston, June 20.—Although outhit, 11 to 7, by the St. Louis Browns, the Boston Red Sox took the series opener today, 4 to 2, making better use of their blows.

Jumping on Eldon Auker for three runs in the sixth, the Sox provided Joe Dobson with his fourth victory, against two defeats. Dom DiMaggio and Ted Williams led off with doubles, and after McQuinn committed an error by dropping a thrown ball at first base, Foxx was walked intentionally and Tabor singled.

Cubs Win, 5-0

By the Associated Press

Chicago, June 20.—Larry French, sidetracked from two starting turns because of his disappointing record, came back to shut out the Boston Braves on four hits today while the Chicago Cubs cashed in passes for three runs and added two more on homers by Phil Cavarretta and Babe Dahlgren for a 5-0 triumph.

The veteran southpaw walked none, fanned seven and didn't allow a man to second until Johnny Cooney doubled with two out in the ninth.

Inverness Golf Led by Hogan And Demaret

Toledo, Ohio, June 20.—Ben Hogan, diminutive leader for the Varden Trophy and the year's No. 1 money winner, and partner, Jimmy Demaret, the Connecticut pro transplanted from Texas, won a pair of matches today to set the pace at the end of the three rounds in the seventh annual Inverness four-ball invitational golf tournay.

Hogan had seven birdies and an eagle in the 36 holes, as he and Demaret won a two-up victory over Horton Smith and Lawson Little, and a three-up decision over Dick Metz and Clayton Heafner.

After finishing even in yesterday's opening round, today's twin wins left Hogan-Demaret with a "plus five" count in the race for the $2,000 first prize, a point ahead of Byron Nelson, P. G. A. champion and home pro, and his partner, long-hitting Jimmy Thomson.

Thomson and Nelson in seventh place at the end of the first round, battered out a six-up conquest over Sam Byrd and Johnny Bulla this morning, and then came back in the afternoon to hold Lloyd Mangrum and Harold (Jug) McSpaden even.

The big news of the tourney, however, was that the feud between Bulla, the huge Carolinian now working out of Chicago, and two-time Open Champion Ralph Guldahl, came to an indefinite and somewhat strained conclusion.

Dodgers Rout Reds, 6 to 2

By International News Service

Cincinnati, June 20.—The Brooklyn Dodgers today handed Bucky Walters his worst defeat of the year when they beat the Cincinnati Reds, 6 to 2, as Hugh Casey turned in a three-hit victory.

Previously having allowed no more than four hits in any game, Walters was engulfed by nine hits through the eighth, with Joe Beggs pitching the ninth inning.

Official Cards on Louis-Conn Bout

By the United Press

New York, June 20.—Billy Conn was fighting a winning battle for the world heavyweight boxing championship Wednesday night until he indiscreetly attempted to slug with Joe Louis in the thirteenth round and was knocked out.

This was formally confirmed today when Gen. John J. Phelan, chairman of the New York State Boxing Commission, disclosed that the Pittsburgh challenger was holding a comfortable lead in the official scoring when he walked into Louis' right hand with less than 15 seconds left in the round.

The score cards, as compiled by Referee Eddie Josephs and Judges Marty Munro and Eddie Healey, gave Conn a substantial margin. Josephs counted seven of the 12 rounds preceding the knockout for Conn to five for the champion; Munro awarded Conn seven and Louis four with one even; and Healey scored six rounds for each man and had the bout all even.

The cards, which were handed to a deputy instead of to Phelan at the end of the bout, were not made public until late today.

The official tallies follow:

Josephs — Louis, 1-2-5-6-10; Conn, 3-4-7-8-9-11-12.

Healey — Louis, 1-2-5-6-7-10; Conn, 3-4-8-9-11-12.

Munro—Louis, 1-2-5-6; Conn, 3-4-7-8-9-11-12, Even 10.

Louis won only four rounds unanimously, the first, second, fifth and sixth. Conn, however, was given all three votes on the third, round, fourth, eighth, ninth, eleventh

Garden Pool Beats Pimlico Lady in Charles Town Feature

Pays $6.80; Welsh Lad Runs Third

6-Year-Old Defeats Favorite by a Neck; Clifton's Dawn Wins, Sets Up $79 Double

By Walter Haight

A Staff Correspondent

Charles Town, W. Va., June 20.—On the warmest day of the meeting, a horse named Garden Pool proved a refreshing hunch to a large portion of a crowd of 6,000 here this afternoon. The 6-year-old mare, a daughter of Calf Roper, put on a determined drive engineered by Jockey Lee Eversole and came on to win by a neck over the favored Pimlico Lady. Four lengths behind the battle for first money came Welsh Lad to be third in a field of six, going 6½ furlongs in a race named the Waynesboro Purse. In the role of second choice, Garden Pool, representing John Allgeyer, paid a $6.80 mutuel. Her time was 1:20 1-5, or 1 1-5 seconds over the track record. For the first time in days the racing surface was in a fast condition.

Beaming Lady and Pimlico Lady staged a head and head battle for the pacemaking honors while Eversole rated Garden Pool within striking distance. Pimlico Lady finally shook off Beaming Lady to take a two-length lead. Eversole then went to work and Garden Pool wore down Pimlico Lady inside the sixteenth pole. Welsh Lad closed some ground to take care of the show position.

Hernandes Lads Shine

The Hernandez boys, no relation, each won a pair of races in the opening stages of the program. John Hernandez gave L. M. Allen's Clifton's Dawn a good ride to win the first race. Orlando Hernandez took the second on the front running Waller, owned by J. L. Friedman. Sammy Palumbo then scored in the third with H. L. Rorabaugh's Part One to complete a $79 double. Orlando came back to win the fourth with High Aim, a $13.60 shot and then John, better known hereabouts as Butsy, did a lot of driving to score with Mrs. H. S. Horkheimer's Pomary in the fifth race.

Danny Scocca, the Washington boy, turned in a fine ride on Danzig to win the seventh race from the favorite, Pamunkey. Third money in this field went to Corora. Danzig, locally owned, paid $11.80.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CLIFTON'S DAWN, $10.40, $4.80, $3.20; SIR JEROME, $4.30, $3.00; MYRTLE M., $2.60.

CLIFTON'S DAWN assumed command in the opening furlong, drew clear of MYRTLE M. and was kept to a drive to the end. SIR JEROME was off in the first flight, was hard handled, but could not menace the winner seriously. MYRTLE M. forced the early pace and weakened gradually. HEROD'S PILATE saved ground throughout.

SECOND RACE—Four and one-half furlongs. Purse, $500; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 3:04. Off at 3:04½. Winner, J. L. Friedman's b. m. (7), by Blackwood—Patricia Ann. Trained by J. L. Friedman. Value to winner, $350; second, $75; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:50⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—OWALLER, $9.00, $4.00, $3.20; MARANDAN, $3.00, $2.60; SEA MISS, $11.80.

OWALLER took command at once, set a strong pace and won with some speed in reserve. MARANDAN was closest to the pace from the start and was hard handled. SEA MISS saved ground and showed a good effort. APRON STRINGS was a forward factor early and tired gradually.

THIRD RACE—Charles Town course. Purse, $500; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 3:28. Off at 3:29. Winner, H. T. Rorabaugh's ch. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—PART ONE, $11.80, $6.60, $3.60; DRESSMAKER, $4.40, $3.60; LULA KHAYYAM, $3.60.

PART ONE improved his position gradually, came to the outside of LULA KHAYYAM and drove into the lead to win easily. DRESSMAKER, outrun early, closed with a bold rush. LULA KHAYYAM raced SAIL BY into submission to take command and weakened when displaced. MIST HAWK closed full of run.

Daily Double—OWALLER and PART ONE Paid $79.00.

FOURTH RACE—About 7 furlongs. Purse, $500; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:58½. Off at 3:58¾. Winner, A. A. Gray's b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—HIGH AIM, $13.60, $4.20, $3.20; TAUT, $3.20, $2.60; MOW YOU DOWN, $4.80.

HIGH AIM, off slowly and forced wide for racing room, improved his position gradually and came to the outside to be up in the concluding strides. TAUT was steadied early, went to the front in the stretch, but barely failed to resist the winner. MOW YOU DOWN raced KINDLE into submission to get to the top and weakened in the closing test. MOW YOU DOWN bumped SMOKE GAL at the first turn and closed some ground.

FIFTH RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $500; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:19½. Off at 4:20. Winner, Mrs. H. S. Two-dollar mutuels paid—POMARY, $5.80, $3.60, $3.40; BLUE COVERT, $18.40, $14.00; IVY X., $7.60.

POMARY, closest to the pace of BLUE COVERT from the start, came to the outside of the leader approaching the stretch and wore down her rival under strong handling. BLUE COVERT set the pace under hustling tactics and barely failed to last. IVY X. closed a gap after racing wide. VAN TRYST closed willingly.

SIXTH RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $500; allowances. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:40. Off at 4:40. Winner, J. Allgeyer's br. m. Two-dollar mutuels paid—DANZIG, $11.80, $4.20, $2.80; PAMUNKEY, $2.80, $2.40; CORORA, $3.00.

DANZIG took command at once, withstood frequent bids of PAMUNKEY and drew out under punishment in the stretch run. PAMUNKEY raced on the outside of the winner from the start and weakened in the final stages. CORORA, slow to begin, closed fast around. ASTERISK went evenly.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $500; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 5:45. Off at 5:45. Winner, Mrs. W. E. Doeber's b. m. Two-dollar mutuels paid—BRIGHT GEM, $14.20, $6.80, $5.20; SOME GROUCHER, $4.60, $3.60; MISS PILGRIM, $9.40.

BRIGHT GEM, not hurried in the early stages and taken out for racing room after a half, came around the leaders to take command and won easily. SOME GROUCHER lacked early speed, improved his position and closed under a hard drive. MISS PILGRIM was vigorously handled throughout, took command over IRISH OAK, but could not resist the others.

Selections at Charles Town

Dear Al:

Trainer Charlie Gribben explained yesterday about the appearance of Tall Story in this section. He said the Glen Riddle horse had developed the habit of sulking and was shipped to Berryville, Va., to see if the fault could be corrected. He said that Tall Story had been doing well and he had decided that a race here would benefit him. Hence his entry ni today's $1,000 Senator M. O. Rouss Handicap. Win or lose, Tall Story will be shipped to New England next week. Mrs. Danny Shea has sent Jacksaw to the Merryland Farm. P. W. Rudacille has given Beauty Wave to the United States Army, so we won't have to waste two bucks on that horse any more. Palumbo's ride on Part One yesterday definitely seals his comeback. It was a masterpiece of good judgment and good riding. Brother Wageley has a cabin open down on the Shenandoah, Jockey A. F. Martinez swings into action today after serving a suspension for alleged rough riding. "Me try all time," he says. Jockey Eddie Churchill was fined $50 yesterday for cutting over too sharply with Taut in the fourth race. Eddie has been riding hard these days, but his bad judgment endangered his fellow riders, so the stewards acted. Bill Phillas, Charles Town's No. 1 restaurateur, has been so busy that he hasn't been to the races this year. He's a good fellow, but he laughs when I order hot cakes and sausage in the morning. Add good rides: That of Butsy Hernandez on Pomary. Freddie Burton has gathered one of the best programs of the meeting for today. I would like to have the money spent on gasoline for the tractor that pulls the harrow here. Only time it is idle is during the running of a race. See where Walter Haight ran at Delaware Park. Finished last, so he still has beaten only three horses so far. Flashed a little speed, so Galt Davis says, so maybe there's some hope for him. I can hardly wait to hear Alan Clark's story. See you on the rail.

BILL.

First race—NOTORIETY showed plenty of early foot last out and may be ready to turn back these at the short sprint route. TIME PASSES has speed and will be close with this kind. BRIAR BIRD downed cheaper ones.

Second race—CLYMENE is not a lock in this field. However, she has been sharpened and should run good. The ones she will have to beat are CHARMING BOY and FERNBRAKE. May she have a speedy journey.

Third race—LIL'S DAUGHTER has a fair chance of taking it all in a field of this kind. Likes the route and I'm going to string along. STEALING HOME is sharp and ready. EXHORT should go well.

Fourth race—LANCASHIRE has keen closing ability and probably will be along in time to defeat these. WAR SCARE has the early speed of the party and will have to be caught. FRANK H is dangerous.

Fifth race—With a fast track, ROYAL BUSINESS will be the right one in the day's feature event. Gets in with 114 pounds and is ready for the question. TALL STORY carries 124 pounds and may not know his way around these turns. THE FOP to take care of the others.

Sixth race—MY FIRST has the speed of this gang and needs only alert handling at the gate. FARMLANDS belongs close with these. STUBBS for the other money.

Seventh race—AGNES KNIGHT will find this distance right up her alley. Gets an ordinary weight assignment and I'm going to string along. EASTER HOLIDAY and KINGOO to take care of the place and show.

Eighth race—CHALOTAUR should overcome the poor post position and go on to win this event. CHANNING has shown enough to be dangerous. WINTONA closes fast.

Substitute race—If this even is used, I'll take KISSEM, OLIVILO and SEA FINN.

Best bet—CHALOTAUR.

Capital Store Sales Up 10% During Week

The Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond yesterday reported that Washington department store sales in the week ended June 14 showed a 10 per cent gain over the like period last year. Sales were 5 per cent under the previous week this year.

For the entire Fifth Reserve District, department store sales in the week ended June 14 were 11 per cent above last year.

Cumulative sales in Washington for the four weeks ended June 14 were 16 per cent above the corresponding period in 1940 while volume in the Fifth District was 15 per cent ahead in the four-week period.

Nationally, the Federal Reserve Board estimates that department store sales in the week ended June 14 were 13 per cent higher than in the corresponding period last year.

In the week ended June 7 sales were 6 per cent above last year, and in the four weeks ended June 14 they averaged 15 per cent more than in the similar part of 1940.

By Federal Reserve districts, increases last week over a year ago included:

Boston 19, New York 10, Philadelphia 12, Cleveland, 11, Atlanta 21, Chicago 13, St. Louis 17, Kansas City 14, Dallas 22, and San Francisco 17.

Local Dividend Voted

Directors of the Security Storage Co. have a dividend of $1 a share on capital stock, payable July 10 to holders of record July 5. Secretary Paul Alvey said books will be closed between those dates.

Sugar Deliveries Show Sharp Gain In Five Months

By the Associated Press

The Agriculture Department reported yesterday that refined sugar delivered to the American market by manufacturers and importers totaled 3,246,813 short tons during the first five months of this year.

Deliveries by the same sources during the corresponding period last year totaled 2,417,645.

Officials said there was a marked decline in deliveries during May, which totaled 513,421 tons, compared with 605,157 in the like month a year ago.

They pointed out, however, that refiners' stocks of raw and refined sugar had increased by May 31 to 1,000,035 tons, or more than double the stocks of 487,501 tons of March 31, when such stocks were at the lowest level of the year to date.

Shell Union Votes 40-Cent Dividend

New York, June 20 (AP).—Shell Union Oil Corporation today declared a common stock dividend of 40 cents a share. At this time a year ago 25 cents was paid. he total last year was 75 cents.

R. G. A. Van Der Woude, president, said results so far this year "have shown a satisfactory trend, and it is expected that the second half of the year will show an improvement over last year."

The situation of the corporation as to earnings, surplus and cash justified the dividend action, Van Der Woude said.

Opinions Vary on Defense Progress

The Dark Side

New York, June 20 (AP).—J. Leonard Replogle, director of steel supply in the 1918 War Industries Board, was quoted in the magazine Iron Age today as saying the United States faces a "tragic period, possibly involving loss of the war, unless the Government revises its steel production plans.

Replogle, who is chairman of Warren Foundry and Pipe Corporation, recommended:

"1. Severe restriction of commercial use of steel, with a 50 to 75 per cent cut in automobile steel shipments as a starter and further cuts until no steel is going into automobiles for civilian use.

"2. Reduction of losses and elimination of some of the vast burden now being thrown on the American railroads due to needless cross-hauling of steel and petroleum products.

"3. Abandonment of schemes for vast long-term increases in steel capacity which would come into production too late to help United States industry and would complicate the task of post-war adjustments to peacetime conditions."

The Bright Side

New York, June 20 (AP).—Burnham Finney, editor of the magazine American Machinist, said today that American defense production is not "in a mess" and "there is emphatically no cause for defeatism on the subject."

In an article appearing in the American Mercury, Finney said:

"Unquestionably, things could be better, but we have gone far in a year's time—much farther, for instance, than in the initial year of our 1917-1918 production effort.

"Despite confusion and waste motion, America is achieving another miracle of the industrial age. It is justifying its reputation for mechanical genius and efficiency.

"Before this summer is over, we shall be in a mass production of defensive equipment, with the rate of output rising steadily and steeply through next fall and winter. * * *

"When our mass production factories get into full swing, the speed with which we will turn out war materials for Britain and ourselves will amaze the world."

Commonwealth's Evaluation Data Rejected by SEC

By the Associated Press

The Securities Commission refused yesterday to permit the Commonwealth & Southern Corporation to introduce evaluation evidence at a hearing to determine whether the corporate structure is unnecessarily complicated or the voting power unfairly distributed.

Commonwealth & Southern had insisted on the right to present evaluation data for the entire system on the ground that the SEC could not properly decide the questions without such evidence. The company had offered to put J. Samuel Hartt, an independent utilities expert, on the witness stand.

The commission said in part:

"Some readjustment to respondent's securities structure is clearly necessary to eliminate preferred dividend arrearages and remove the undue and unnecessary complication attributable to the outstanding $6 preferred stock."

The arrearages referred to amounted to $28,118,231 on March 31. The SEC said also that the company had paid no dividends on its common stock since 1931.

Mail Order Firms To Tighten Credit

Chicago, June 20 (AP).—Two of the Nation's largest mail order and retail merchandising organizations, Sears, Roebuck & Co. and Montgomery Ward & Co., announced today that they will shortly take steps to tighten installment credit requirements.

Effective July 1, the two companies will reduce maximum time payment periods on refrigerators and gas and electric ranges from three to two years. Maximum periods on other lines will remain unchanged at 18 months, but larger down payments will be sought in all instances, the companies said.

Court Authorizes McKesson Offering

New York, June 20 (AP).—Federal Judge Alfred Coxe has authorized the trustee of McKesson & Robbins to sell $2,500,000 of 15-year sinking fund debentures to provide more working capital for the firm in order to handle a larger amount of business.

Mortgage Bankers' Next President

FREDERICK P. CHAMP, of Logan, Utah, is the official nominee for president of the Mortgage Bankers Association of America. Nomination is tantamount to election. He will succeed Dean R. Hill, of Buffalo, N. Y.

Coast Line R. R. Places Big Order

Wilmington, N. C., June 20 (AP).—C. McD. Davis, executive vice president of the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad Co., today announced orders had been placed for 2,900 freight cars, nine Diesel-electric passenger locomotives and 16 light-weight, streamlined passenger cars.

This huge amount of new rolling stock closely follows the purchase of 1,693 new freight cars and was made necessary, the Coast Line executive said, by the increased volume of traffic the road was handling. Davis pointed out that a number of camps and cantonments serving the national defense program had been established along the Atlantic Coast line along with shipyards and other defense activities.

Tobacco Prices In Maryland at All-Time High

Baltimore, June 20 (AP).—Maryland tobacco now is selling at an all-time high price, and the demand likely will continue "for several years until world economic conditions have had time to adjust themselves," George Sacshe, manager of the Maryland Tobacco Growers Association, said today.

War has slashed importation of foreign tobaccos extremely, he said, urging Maryland growers to "increase their production"

He saw a "strong possibility that after Maryland (tobacco) is substituted by manufacturers for foreign tobacco, this substitution may remain permanent."

Turkish tobacco, he explained, is "used to give aroma and flavor to cigarettes which cannot be obtained from tobacco grown in the South. Maryland air cured tobacco in aroma and flavor is the nearest approach to the Turkish grades. Consequently the inability to get Turkish and Greek tobacco stimulates the demand for the Maryland crop."

Week's Clearings Best Since 1938

New York, June 20 (AP).—Bank clearings expanded sharply in the week ended June 18, passing the $7,000,000,000 mark for the fourth time this year and reaching the highest level since the week of December 21, 1938.

The total of $7,237,985,000 was an increase of 24 per cent over $5,839,314,000 in the comparable 1940 week, Dun & Bradstreet reported today.

Excluding New York, clearings for the current week were the highest for any week since the first week in April, 1931. Transactions at New York, however, account for more than half of the total turnover for the country as a rule.

Security Offerings Fall to $24,033,421

New York, June 20 (AP).—Public offerings of new securities dwindled during the week ended yesterday to $24,033,421, the smallest total in eight weeks, Standard & Poor's Corporation reported today.

A dearth of refunding issues was responsible for the decline in new offerings. Nearly $21,000,000 of the total represented new money, about half of which was taken by corporations.

N. Y. Central Issue Placed in Market

New York, June 20 (AP).—Offering was made today of $15,000,000 New York Central Railroad 2¼ per cent equipment trust certificates at prices to yield from .40 to 2.60 per cent, according to maturity. Salomon Brothers & Hutzler headed the offering group.

U. S. to Order 30% Cut in Rubber Use

By the Associated Press

Akron, Ohio, June 20.—Major tire companies plan to set up retreading stations in large cities to help take up the slack occasioned by the Government-ordered curtailment of rubber consumption, rubber men said today.

Instead of buying new tires, many motorists will have tires retreaded, it was predicted.

Rubber consumption will be cut approximately 30 per cent from the average for 1941's first five months as a result of curtailment aimed at building up the United States stockpile of the staple. May consumption was 71,187 long tons, and the five-month average was 68,054.

An informed source reported the curtailment plan called for the taking of rubber factories' average monthly consumption in the year between April 1, 1940, and April 1, 1941. During the third quarter this year, the authority said, the Government will allow companies to consume 94.6 per cent of this 1940141 monthly average, and during the last quarter the companies will have their allotments cut to 82.5 per cent. During the year to be averaged the entire industry used 683,615 tons, or 56,968 a month.

Reliable information here indicated June consumption in the industry would run to 74,000 tons. This means that consumption next month, under the third-quarter rationing restrictions, will take a drop of 20,000 tons—to 53,892—if the third-quarter allowance is maintained steadily throughout the period.

Total reserves in the United States on June 1 were 363,000 tons, of which the Government held 186,900 and commercial sources 176,000. There were 147,459 tons en route. Crude imports in May were 105,859 tons. Commercial sources took 96,911 tons of this while the Government's Rubber Reserve Co. got 8,948. Dealers and manufacturers added 25,724 tons to their stockpile in the month.

Rubber reclaimed for use last month amounted to 21,353 tons, and rubber interests said reclaiming plants had a capacity of only slightly over 25,000.

Barrage Balloons To Be Produced By U. S. Rubber

New York, June 20 (AP).—All-American barrage balloons, their fabric made of synthetic rubber, are about to be constructed at Woonsocket, R. I., the United States Rubber Co., which is to undertake the manufacture, announced today.

The contract, an "educational" order, was placed by the United States Army Air Corps. The Woonsocket plant, which has been idle for some time, will make all the parts of the captive gas bags except the ascension cables.

The synthetic rubber to be used will be neoprene.

The Army already is training barrage balloon battalions to handle the defensive equipment for the protection of such vital targets as naval yards and airplane factories, the British having demonstrated the effectiveness of captive balloon protection.

Cotton Spinning Rate At 121.8% in Month

By the Associated Press

The Census Bureau reported yesterday that the cotton spinning industry operated during May at 121.8 per cent of capacity, on a two-shift, 80-hour week basis, compared with 119.8 per cent during April this year, and 89.4 per cent during May last year.

Spinning spindles in place May 31 totaled 24,353,138, of which 22,980,286 were active at some time during the month, compared with 24,434,380 and 22,787,396 for April this year, and 24,805,780 and 22,217,302 for May last year.

Foreign Exchange

New York, June 20 (AP).—The Canadian dollar declined ⅛ of a cent in terms of the United States dollar in foreign exchange trading today.

The Mexican Peso, Hongkong dollar and Argentine "free" peso were up a shade.

New York Cotton

New York, June 20 (AP).—Cotton futures rose to the highest prices since March 30, 1937, today, but retained only a portion of the day's best gains of 70 cents a bale, up.

Active buying by New Orleans and mill interests and a broad speculative demand helped the rise. There was a lot of talk on the floor about a sharp drop in 1940 loan stocks to around 300,000 bales, mostly of undesirable quality.

Activity in Worth Street was at a standstill following reports from Washington that price ceilings were being studied by Government officials. Some looked for an official announcement on the subject next week and said they believed it would be on a poundage basis.

Exports Thursday, 14,736 bales; season so far, 1,012,624. Port receipts, 27,287. Port stocks, 3,286,433.

Pivotal Issues Off Fractions to 2 Points; Trading at Standstill in Final Hour

New York, June 20.—The stock market backed away today as speculative aind investment forces were unable to find much buying inspiration in either the foreign or domestic news.

Many customers lightened commitments in preparation for the lengthy weekend which they have been extending over Saturday. The result was that, while selling pressure never was particularly pronounced, leaders generally finished with declines of fractions to more than 2 points.

The Associated Press average of 60 issues was off .4 of a point at 41.4, putting the composite at just about where it started the week. It was the biggest drop for any session since May 22. Transfers of 356,070 shares compared with 459,590 yesterday.

Dealings subsided to virtually nothing in the final hour as boardrooms awaited the President's message to Congress which denounced Germany's sinking of the Robin Moor and declared the United States would yield her rights on the sea to no one. The communication came out too late to have much effect on trends and prices ended at or near the lows of the day.

The confusing European war picture, brokers said, had much to do with keeping potential bidders in the background. Hopeful business developments were plentiful, but some offset here was seen in widening governmental controls, expectations of rationing of rubber, gasoline and other materials. Motors slipped as this week's output of new cars was off slightly due mainly to parts shortages.

Prominent stocks on the downward drift included United States Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, General Motors, Douglas Aircraft, Westinghouse, American Can, Dow Chemical, Allied Chemical, Union Carbide, du Pont, American Telephone, Kennecott, United States Rubber, Santa Fe, Great Northern, Montgomery Ward and Standard Oil (N. J.).

Exceptions were Warren Brothers common and preferred which went to new tops for the year. White Sewing Machine preferred jumped 6½ points on a single 100-share sale, first transaction in this stock since May 14 last. Improved also were Eastman Kodak, Pan American Airways and Caterpillar Tractor.

In an uneven curb, Sunray Oil, McWilliams Dredging and Bell Aircraft edged forward, while among losers were Electric Bond & Share, Gulf Oil, Glen Alden Coal, Phoenix Securities and Humble Oil. Turnover here was around 67,000 shares against 75,000 Thursday.

Gains in some of the secondary rails and fair advances among Latin Americans gave the bond market a steady tone today.

Advances and declines, generally of minor fractions, were about in balance at the end of the day but the rate of trading showed rails to be of chief interest to investors.

Transactions totaled $5,969,800 face value, compared with $5,096 yesterday.

United States Gvoernments Improved their positions slightly, ending 7-32 point higher to 3-32 lower in the stock exchange, bringing prices in line with an advance of around 2-32 over the counter.

Sugar Futures

New York, June 20 (AP).—Sugar futures, both world and domestic, moved consistently higher today, but profit taking was encountered and best prices were shaded. The domestic contract ended up 1 to 2 points on sales of 17,450 tons. Some deliveries were up 4 points at one time.

The world contract attracted a broad speculative demand and closed up 3 to 4½ points after reaching 6 points in some months at one time. Sales totaled 32,600 tons.

One operator (Revere) purchased 3,100 tons of Philippines at 3.55 cents. Prices in the refined market were nominal and unchanged.

Soybeans Set Pace for Climb In Key Staples

By the Associated Press

Chicago, June 20.—Soybeans again set the pace in grain futures trading today and with the exception of July corn every commodity on the Board of Trade closed with net gains over yesterday's quotations.

Strength in soybeans was associated with advances in cotton, cottonseed oil, lard and surrounding commodities. Soybeans at times extended the gains as much as 2½ cents a bushel and carried old crop October contracts to a new seasonal high to $1.35¾, and December futures to $1.35⅞, also a new peak. Final quotations were shaded, however, and the net gains were reduced to ⅞ to 1⅜ cents a bushel.

Wheat, bolstered by strength in soybeans and a fair demand from commission houses, chalked up net gains of ⅝ to 1 cent a bushel, July closing at $1.00⅝-½ and September at $1.02⅛-¼. Final prices for corn were ⅛ down to ⅜ up, the former on September corn closed at 75½-⅝ and December at 77¾, a new high for the season. Oats closed ⅛-½ cent up, rye ⅜-1¼ higher and lard advanced 7½-12½ cents a hundred pounds.

Traders virtually ignored almost perfect weather in the grain belts and a warning by Leon Henderson, director of the Office of Price Administration and Civilian Supply, that the Government would take swift action to check inordinate price advances.

At New York, Straits tin gained .10 to .15 of a cent a pound, cottonseed oil added fresh advances of .15 to .22 of a cent and cotton climbed 25 to 40 cents a bale. Rubber, which was placed under Government control overnight, gained .5 to .14 of a cent a pound. Both sugar contracts were narrow.

Wool tops took a full plunge of a cent or more a pound and minor losses ruled in most deliveries of coffee, cocoa and hides.

The Associated Press index of 35 wholesale staples attained a new high since 1937 at 87.98, compared with 87.65 on Thursday.

Boss Joins Army; Workers Run Mill, Share in Profits

Groton, Conn., June 20 (AP).—The employes of two thread mills engaged in national defense work will run them and share in the profits for the next year at least, while their chief executive drills with the Army.

"I'm going with a free mind because of the great confidence I have in my people," said Max G. Johl, president and general manager of Max Pollack & Co., employing 200 persons in a plant here and 75 in its Willimantic factory.

In the absence of Johl, 12 years a reserve officer, who reports for duty July 1, employes will share in the earnings under a bonus arrangement.

Johl said that about 40 per cent of the factories' output was thread for uniforms and Army equipment.

Week's Auto Output Estimated at 133,565

Detroit, June 20 (AP).—Ward's Reports, Inc., today estimated passenger car and truck production this week at 133,565 units. The slight decline from last week's 134,682, the survey said, was due to scattered parts shortages which impaired operations in minor degree. A year ago this week output totaled 90,060 vehicles.

Ward's said that volume would begin its normal seasonal reducing cycle.

Machine Tool Shipments Continue Gain in May

Cleveland, June 20 (AP).—National Machine Tool Builders' Association estimates May machine tool shipments at $60,800,000 as compared to $60,300,000 for April and $57,400,000 for March. Shipments for May a year ago were estimated at $32,800,000.

A Takoma Park woman—Mrs. Tom Pritchard, of 107 Cedar Avenue—has been announced as one of the winners of the Nation-wide Palmolive slogan contest which is being conducted on "The Story of Bess Johnson," which you hear over WJSV at 3:30 every day.

Mrs. Pritchard receives one of the five $50 awards for slogans which are given daily on the program, in addition to a daily main prize of $500. In all the sponsors are handing out $27,500 in prizes in the slogan contest which closes at midnight on June 27.

At the conclusion of the contest, a special grand prize of $5,000 is to be awarded to the writer of the best slogan of all those sent in. Official entry blanks, it seems, can be obtained in your local grocery stores.

For each entry sent in, the sponsor is contributing 1 cent to the National Girl Scout organization and 1 cent to the local troop specified by the writer-in. In addition, the sponsor has set aside a special group of cash prizes for the 181 Girl Scout councils receiving the most mentions. There'll be a $500 first prize, 30 $50 prizes and 150 at $5 apiece.

The names of winners and other contest information are being given daily in "The Story of Bess Johnson," heard Mondays through Fridays over WJSV, and starring, by some peculiar coincidence, a girl named Bess Johnson.

TERRY AND THE PIRATES — Sheep in Wolf's Clothing — BY MILTON CANIFF

YOU MEAN YOU'VE BEEN KICKING TERRY AND ME AROUND TO SHOW US WHAT IT'S LIKE TO LIVE UNDER THE HEEL OF A HEEL?
RIGHT! WHERE A PERSON MAY BE A FRIEND ONE MINUTE— AND AN ENEMY THE NEXT—IF HE'S AFRAID YOU HAVE SOMETHING ON HIM!
MANY OF US IN MY COUNTRY ENVY YOUR FREEDOM... BUT WE'RE AFRAID TO MENTION IT TO OUR CLOSEST FRIENDS! IF YOU AMERICANS KNEW WHAT IT WAS LIKE TO HAVE YOUR MINDS IMPRISONED IN YOUR OWN BODIES, YOU WOULD BE MORE JEALOUS OF YOUR LIBERTY!
A VERY PRETTY SPEECH, MY FINE-FEATHERED FRIEND —BUT THE FACT REMAINS THAT TERRY AND I ARE YOUR PRISONERS... DEEP IN OCCUPIED TERRITORY!
THAT'S WHY I HAVE TRIED TO SHOW YOU WHAT TYRANNY IS LIKE... BECAUSE I AM GOING TO SEE THAT YOU GET AWAY INTO FREE CHINA —AND I WANT YOU TO KNOW HOW SWEET FREE AIR CAN TASTE!

MARY WORTH'S FAMILY — BY DALE ALLEN

BUT, MR. SYKES! WHAT WOULD I DO WITH A HOTEL?
A GREAT DEAL OF GOOD, MRS. WORTH!
IT IS POSSIBLE TO MAKE COMFORTABLE APARTMENTS FOR 50 FAMILIES IN THE BUILDING... ALMOST ENOUGH FOR ALL THOSE POOR PEOPLE NOW IN TRAILER CAMPS!
AT CURRENT RENTAL RATES IN BOOMVILLE, YOU SHOULD TAKE IN, ROUGHLY, $2000 A MONTH!
VERY GOOD! BUT THERE APPEARS TO BE NO ONE IN THE BUILDING NOW... WHY?
ER--YES! QUITE SO! I SUPPOSE WE STEP INSIDE-- I'LL BE ABLE TO EXPLAIN THAT POINT... (I HOPE!)
DALE

DONALD DUCK — Three of a Kind — BY WALT DISNEY

NOW, IF Y' SPILL THESE CONES YOU'RE OUTTA LUCK! I WON'T BUY ANY MORE! SEE?
WELL, GEE,
UNCA DONALD
DON'T DRIVE SO ROUGH!
JOE'S ICE CREAM -SODA POP-HANG
BUMP!

MICKEY FINN — Convinced! — BY LANK LEONARD

THIS IS MY BOSS, TOMMY— INSPECTOR SIFFALICK OF THE BRIGHT BELT SQUAD! HE WANTS TO ASK YOU SOMETHING!
DO YOU KNOW WHO THIS MAN IS?
MICKEY! IT'S HIM! THE FELLOW WHO ASKED FOR MY AUTOGRAPH!
OKAY, MICKEY— I'M CONVINCED! FROM NOW ON, I'M WORKING WITH YOU!
GEE, JOHNNY— THAT MAKES ME FEEL AWFUL GOOD!

MR. AND MRS. — Putting Him in His Place — BY ARTHUR FOLWELL AND ELLISON HOOVER

DON'T YOU THINK OUR WAITER IS THE IMAGE OF ROBERT TAYLOR?
HUH?
THAT NEW LAUNDRYMAN LOOKS EXACTLY LIKE HUMPHREY BOGART IN THE MOVIES!
YEAH?
JOE! DID YOU NOTICE THAT SOLDIER? ORSON WELLES TO THE LIFE!
DIDN'T NOTICE
SAY! WHO — OR WHOM — DO I REMIND YOU OF?
YOU? DON'T BE SILLY! NOBODY!

DIXIE DUGAN — Serious Business — BY J. P. McEVOY AND B. J. STRIEBEL

STOP— WAIT— I-I DIDN'T MEAN FOR YOU TO FIRE HIM, MR. WOLFE—AN APOLOGY IS ALL WE WANTED!
ISN'T THAT FOR ME TO DECIDE?
BUT HE SAVED OUR LIVES BY RISKING HIS OWN! WE'RE ACTUALLY TO BLAME!
OH-YES! SEE! WE APOLOGIZE TO HIM—AND I THINK YOU SHOULD GIVE HIM A RAISE, I MOMENTSLY DO! (GULP)
WHY CAN'T WOMEN MAKE UP THEIR MINDS? O.K., HALE, GET BACK TO WORK!
THANKS
THEY SAVED YOUR NECK THIS TIME— BUT THE NEXT TIME—
YOU'D LIKE TO GET RID OF ME— WOULDN'T YOU, MISTER WOLFE?

DON WINSLOW OF THE NAVY — Take It, Partner — BY FRANK MARTINEK

QUE TAL, WINSLOW? WHY DIDN'T YOU BOMB THE ISLAND?
FROM HERE IN THE PLAY'S ALL YOURS, PARTNER!
BUENO! OUR CRUISERS MAIN BATTERY IS NOT JUST FOR SHOW.
THE REDUCTION OF BASA IS UNDERWAY.

BIG CHIEF WAHOO — BY SAUNDERS AND WOGGON

AH GOT SOMETHIN' T' OWN UP TO, MISTER STEVE—! BUT, YE SEE, AH NEVER DID HAVE NO SILK DRESS—SO-!
NOW!—JUST A MINUTE, EMMY!
BEFORE YOU SAY ANY MORE— HERE'S A PROMISE! WHEN I FLY ON TO WASHINGTON TO MEET CHIEF WAHOO AND MINNIE-HA-CHA, I'LL MAIL YOU BACK A SILK DRESS— A RED ONE!
A RED ONE? OH, MISTER STEVE!
OF COURSE, IT'LL NOT BE VERY SOON! I SEEM TO BE GROUNDED HERE FOR A LONG TIME!
JEEPER LEEPER
IF I COULD ONLY GET OUT TO LOOK THE PLANE OVER AND SEE HOW BADLY IT'S DAMAGED!
AH RECKON YE COULD GO RIGHT NOW—EF'N YE—KINDA SORTA—PUT YER ARM AROUN' ME!
